due to the ignorance of those voting and not to any fault of the system. If a person who H. G. CONNOR, has the educational ability fails to cast his vote according to his conviction it is the result of carelessness. Against this disadvantage there comes the advantage, of eliminating that GENERAL INSURANCE element which is voted by the use of bribes. This class of our population is almost always the most ignorant of TACOBBATTLE, both races. They have no regard for the principles which are before the people, but cast the vote for what there is in it. By using the reform ballot system this element would be almost wholly eliminated. It would then be useless to colonize votes, because the votes pay required. It is guaranteed. most wholly eliminated. It that are now governed by this method are those that such a
