THE SOUL'S CORONATION.

The church, then, is a divine institu tion, in that it is the perpetuated body of Christ and with as of his redeemin ; power; and it is also a practical manifestation of whatever spiritual life resideamong us. It is the appointed means for unfolding and nourishing our capacities for morality and for piety. It is a nuisery of goodness. It is a school for the conscience. It is an oratory for praye . It is the soul's house, collecting, protecting, cherishing, multip ying spiritual life, This is what the church is by intentionhe ideal church -the church of God's esign. It is an organization for giving practical efficacy and triumphant power to the deepest truth we know; namely that life is more than meat-the soul too precious to be bartered for the world But come there into the church as it is, Come, that is, into the region of men's spiritual purposes and doings as they are into that department of their life which they call religion. What do we see? Life? In exest? Energy? Reality? Pass in there from the streets of travel and ships of merchandise, Is there life before you like the eager, throbbing in ensity of life you 'eave behind you? Pass in there from the balls of legislation and political debate. Is there interest in duly and worship like the interest in the problems of public economy, and the questions of party success? Pass in there from the school houses and the university. Is there energy spent on forming righteous charac ters like the energy that beams in the faces and summates the amortion of students and their teachers. Pass in there from the j wous groups of kindred in their homes. Is there reality like the reality of the love and games, the sympathy and talk, the fellowship and ferver of families and wedlock, of parental devotion and filial gratitude?

Why not? Is it not reasonable service Where s the lalsey in the argument? What is the talschool in the New Testi ment? Was the saviour mescaken, when he declared the sucremacy of spiritua interests-said it would be in it likable to sell all the world beside for the sout-and bade men seek the Kingdom of Heaven and its righteousness fi st ? Were the apostles exagerated in their z al ? Is sin a matter of small concern to us, when God cannot look up in the elightest stain of it without abhorence! Is spiritual ruin less dreadful to us than it was to the immacu-Lite Lord who was crucified to save utrem it? Is repertance an indifferent matter, when every prophet Heav a has ever sent, has made it the burnen of his meseage? Why then do s; tritual concerns languish and dwindle beside the strong activities of business, the onward much of learning, the vital torces of the world !

It must be because the lower nature has overborne the higher. Conscience and faith are absorbed and quenched appetite and ambition. The carnal life enslaves the spiritual. In the noise and presents of our weekly gain-getting and gavely, we lose our perception of the true proportions and objects of our bes We exchange our immortality for a fortune, our Saviour for pieces of silver, and price the inmost and eternal life less than the body, its raiment and its meat,

Here then, is the inevitable conclution we are brought to. What is wanted is to restore t e spiritual life to the sovereignty God has designated for it; to recrown the soul and make it master of the flesh; to estimate it as God estimates it; to seek its regeneration as He did who laid down his life for its sake, and declared, that except a man be thus born again, he can not see the kingdom of Heaven

What shall reawaken the sleeping heart? What shall restore the allenaved estate? What small lift men in a the honor they were designed for-persuade them that to be christians is nobler than to be capitalists? What shall subording e comfort to character, excit the spiritual expacities over the flighty, and give back to the soul its lost throne ? The question is personal. It is to be answered by each for himself-not by public demonstrations, ner any voting in assemblies. We must take it home into our private meditations. Salt examination must furnish the key to it. What shall it profit me-'s the searching wordif I gain the would and lose my soul? Will that be a "easonable se.vice? And the remembering the weakness of your best resolves, an I dasting off your pride of will. Lke the blind man at the readside, lift up your aims in patient trust to

to Christ saying, "Lad that mine eyes might be op ne i, that I might see these spiritual reslities as they are, and apprehend the way whereby thou caust lead me to immortal peace." There must be personal effort-energy-watching-prayer. There must be roused, diligent, urgent seeking, -av much more conest, profound, systematic, and persevering than all our worldly emernise, as the life is more than meat. The kingdom of Heaven comes not into any breast by accident, by sioth, by unconcern.

Riches must begin in the feeling of poverty. And the vilest poverty is that of the rich man who lancies he has need of nothing Poor and blind and miserable, the heart most feel itself before it c in posse-s itself of all things by reconciliation to Go I. And man is never so destitute as when his outward spearance and comfort, mack an empty acting breast. All that is external and material, is never really possessed, till it is made o serve the soul, which is in ependent of its favors. Learn to look on the Spien for o your physical prosperity, as only the 1-ding raiment of your spiritual substance Not the garments, not the meat, not the skill per the pleasure but the life they strengthen and discipline for eternity Then, gaining or losing, you are rich; diving or dying you are immortal. B heve this: believe in the Christ who reveiled and sestablished it. All things are yours, the moment you are Cariet's. That will BE THE SOUL'S CORNATION. For to be faithzul upto the death of the body, is to put son the crown of so undying life. Bept. 8 h, 1879.

The wonderful subje t of is ske ch is a little boy, the son of Souhera narea, s who are visitors to the town sentioned. Sive aliges a since, by an accident, the particula a of which we have not been able to obtain, the child's neck was broken, and the geniu- of a surgeon was called into requisition to supply some means by which the latte fellow c uld live in uis unfo tugate condi ion. Iron or a se bars were arranged, running up the spine and classing on either side of the face, thus holding the head in its worde tul position, and time lives on the little boy, now ten or twelve years of age. Sometime since the frame work used to sustain the position of the heart was proken, and the head tell to one side cutting off the power of speech. The mother took the little one in her less, son held its boad in a natural pest ion until the clasp was mended, when all went well as previously. We had never imagined such a thing as a person living with a broken neck, and presume that there was never, at least in this country an lost mee such as the one just related We get our information direct from Ma tion and can veach for the veracity of our
