Out in the pleasant sunshine of a bright October day, Kollicking, Irollicking through the woods

scaring the birds away, Went a group of laughing girls and boys to play tilt the sun was set; Martha and Robbie, and Tom and Will, and Dolly, the household pet !

They "made believe" they were foragers bold, scouring the country o'er. To add to heir scanty soldier fare from an enemy's fruit:ul store, And they charged on the squirrels' homes till they beat a quick retreat;

While their precious heards came railing down at the noisy victors' feet. They played tag and follow my leader and scampered up and down,

Covering each other in their glee with the leaves so crisp and brown, Till they huddled down to talk and rest and plan some pleasure new, While Marths unpacked the "goodies for the hungry, bright faced crew. 'I'm too little to work," said Dolly, toss ing her curls away-"You make the dinner, Mattie dear-then I'll be pape, and pray! I know just how he does it, 'cause I've
