of the latter's elevation to the Speaker Wm. R. Morrison, of Waterloo, Ill. was born in Monroe county, that State September 14, 1825, and consequently is in his 49th year. He was educated in the common schools, and graduated at McKendree College, Illinois. He adopted the law as a profession, and soon after he became a member of the bar was elected Clerk of the Circuit Court. From this position he was next advanced as a member of the Illinois House of Representatives, serving four terms, the last of which he was Speaker of the House. Mr. Mor rison was then elected to represent the Seventeenth District of his State in the Thirty-eighth Congress, was again re-turned to the Forty-third, Forty-fourth, Forty-fifth, Forty-sixth, Forty-seventh and Forty-eighth Congresses, by an average majority of about one thousand. In the Forty-sixth Congress Mr. Morrison served as Chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, and was succeeded in that position in the Forty-seventh Congress by Judge Kelly, of Pennsylvania; again the Committee wheel revolves, and Mr. Morrison once more becomes the head of the most important House Committee.
