R. GRAY BROWN, Democratic nominee for Vice-President on the ticket with Horace Greely in 1872, died at St. Louis on the 14th inst., aged 59 years.

ALTHOUGH it is not generally known John Wilkes Booth left a family—a wife, son and daughter. The children are now grown. The family has lived in seclusion and under a false name for twenty years.

OUR Senators occupy places on the following committees: Senator Vance, on Contingent Expenses of the Senate, District of Columbia, Finance and Privileges and Elections. Senator Ransom, on Commerce, Private Land Claims and Potomac River Flats.

THE colored league of Massachusetts held a public meeting in Faneuil Hall, Boston, last Tuesday night, and a resolution was unanimously passed declaring that all colored voters of the country are called upon to act for themselves in the future, independent of any political parties, and vote for no man who is not pledged to assist the colored race to attain its rights as citizens of this country.

It is predicted that in the course of the next five years the steel rail will have completely supplanted the iron rail as the steel rail has its iron predecessor. Already one-half of the rails manufactured in Wheeling are made of steel, and the machinery and plant necessary for their manufacture are being set up in every rail centre and at nearly every rail foundry. It is said that steel rails can be made about ten cents per keg cheaper than those made of iron.

THE New Bern Journal says "to prevent the election of incompetent Solicitors the law ought to be changed so as to elect them by the General Assembly." The Journal is quite right, not only Solicitors but Judges ought to be elected by the Legislature and then these offices would be removed from the passions engendered in political canvasses and relieve the judicial system of one objectionable feature, at least.

SENATOR HAMPTON has introduced in the Senate a bill making it a misdemeanor for any Senator or Representative of Congress to recommend or solicit, directly or indirectly, the appointment of any person to an office under the Government of the United States, and that any such Senator or Representative who shall be convicted of making such recommendation or solicitation, shall be punished by a fine of not less than $500 nor more than $1,000. The bill ought to become a law, but will not.

THE House of Representatives has adopted a new rule which divides the appropriation bills among different committees. Hereafter all the appropriation bills were under the control of one committee. It is contended by some that business will be facilitated by the change, and by others that the new rule will cause a perceptible increase in expenditures, which are all.

MR. RANDALL favored the Mr. Morrison advocated the bill that the greater portion of the Republicans voted for the new rule. Five of our Representatives voted with Mr. Randall and one is recorded as not voting.

THE Senate has passed the Hear succession bill and it is now before the House. The bill provides that in case of the death or disability of the President and Vice-President, the members of the cabinet shall successively act as President. Under this bill, no special election will be held but which ever Secretary should take the Presidency shall keep it until the end of the term. This is very nearly the same bill that passed the Senate last winter. Mr. Randall has offered in the House a bill continuing the term of office of the doctors for four years and in case of the death of the Vice-President the doctors are immediately to be called together and elect a Vice-President. If both should die the doctors are to elect a successor to both and until an election takes place the members of the cabinet are to conduct the government. If either of these bills becomes a law there will be no election by the people for the next presidential term which is a most desirable feature. One of the bills ought to be passed as soon as possible as under the present law, should Mr. Cleveland die, John Sherman would be President and that would be most desirable.

"Permanent." There are medicines which give only temporary relief and then leave the sufferer worse off than before, especially in cases of the kidneys. Remember that this is not the case with Brown's Kidney Pills. See what Mr. J. J. Gaines, R. C. says about this medicine. "My wife has been troubled with kidney troubles for years, and now I believe she is permanently cured." It also cures liver and kidney complaints.

GENERAL TOMBS DEAD.

General Robert Tombs died at Washington, Georgia, on Wednesday, the 15th inst., at six o'clock in the evening. His health had been bad for a long time.

The son-in-law of Robert Tombs was English royalist who followed the fortunes of Charles II. and who settled in Virginia after the disastrous battle of Worcester. During the revolutionary war a regiment of Virginia troops was sent to Georgia after the losses at Savannah and Dry Creek, at the request of the Georgia authorities. The father of Gen. Tombs, then quite a young man, was a major in the regiment. At the close of the war the State of Georgia gave to each officer and soldier in the regiment a tract of land, and Maj. Tombs selected an estate in what is now Wilkes county, and settled upon it. Robert Tombs was born in 1816, and at his death was over 75 years of age. He was a member of the university of Virginia and distinguished himself as an expelled for his political views. He then went to the university of Virginia, and during his special study after completing his course he began the practice of his profession at his home, and was very successful. His practice yielded $2,000 a year for him, and he was thirty years of age. His political career began at twenty-seven with his election to the lower house of the Georgia legislature. He won distinction in that body. While in the legislature he was elected to Congress, where he remained six years. He was elected to the Senate while in the House, succeeding Hon. J. McPherson Berrien. He entered the Senate in 1855 and was re-elected in 1857. On both occasions his election was virtually unanimous and was without a struggle. He was never beaten in a popular election. The State of Georgia having passed its succession ordinance January 19th, 1861, Mr. Tombs withdrew from the Senate on the 23rd, and on March 14th he was expelled. He was a member of the Confederate Congress which met at Montgomery, Ala., and subsequently for a short time secretary of war of the Confederate States, and also served as a brigadier general in the Confederate army. Since the war he has figured in public life.

WARRENTON. A BRIGHT FUTURE FROM BRIGHT TOBACCO. A FEW NOTES OF WHAT IS DOING AND WILL BE DONE THERE.

WARRENTON, N. C., Dec. 19, 1885. MESSRS. EDITORS.—Once upon a time, as the fairy books will prove to you, there was a lovely Princess who was thrown into a deep sleep by some malicious fairy, and then placed in an enchanted castle where she was doomed to remain until a prince should appear who was brave and skillful enough to pass the fairy dragons that guard the entrance and to kiss the princess which brought her back to life.

As the Princess did come at last, you remember, after a hundred years, and what a fitting king he was, and how at the sound the wicked old fairy's griffin and castle did vanish into thin air, and how beautiful the Princess looked when she awoke, and what a happy life she and her noble deliverer led together for long, long years!!! Well Messrs. Editors, we Warrentonians fancy our "Sleeping Beauty" of a town, which has slumbered so long under the influence of such untoward agents as war, poverty, and possibly a little (?) indolence has now been aroused after a sleep quite as long as that of the Princess. Our Knight Alexander comes in an attractive guise, his garments are golden-hued, we call him Bright Tobacco, and his magic finger takes form in the voices of the manufacturers as they sell rich pipes of the Leaf that lie on the warehouse floors.

Wednesday Dec. 2, was a red-letter day in Warrenton's history, for there was opened the immense warehouse just completed by the Messrs. Arringtons. Seventy thousand pounds of tobacco were sold in Warrenton that day, at prices ranging from $3.00 to $55.00 per 100 lbs, and there have been successful "breaks" on a number of days since. Besides the large warehouse of Messrs. Arringtons, Messrs. Boyd Bros., who are active and experienced tobacco men have a fine one where they have large sales semi-weekly. Mr. L. J. Holden has a price house already finished and Messrs. Arrington and Boyd each have one in course of erection. It is interesting to go on the streets here. It is true you see every where signs of departed grandeur, which would be depressing were it not for the fact that at every turn the sight of new timber and the sound of the hammer greet you. New people are coming in constantly and there is a general air of revival and hopefulness which is pleasant to behold. Your correspondent has heard the manifold advantages and the manifold destiny of Warrenton as a tobacco centre so frequently and so variously set forth that it would fill at least three columns of your paper were the attempt made to repeat the opinions of Messrs. Boyd, for your readers. But there does seem to be a good and sufficient reason to think the town has entered upon an era of growth and prosperity. It has been proven that the surrounding country is well adapted to raising the bright tobacco, and next year a largely increased average will be given it. Then, we have here new capital brought by men who have learned how to use money, and thereby make money and these men will not allow the market to go down, with the product at our doors and the price of that product waiting here for the producers, it is reasonable to believe that there is a firm basis to start upon.

There could scarcely be found in the State a healthier point than this and certainly no where could so find better society. The people are hospitable, refined and kind. There is no ostentation, the ladies dress simply and the manners of both ladies and gentlemen are of that unaffected, yet thoroughly courteous kind, which we sometimes hear described as "the old-school Southern politeness." And thus Messrs. Editors to sum up, we have plenty of the much sought wood, and plenty of buyers who have plenty of money, and health of location and pleasant society, and may we not trust that we will see a return of those good days when Warrenton was one of the wealthiest towns in North Carolina. That such a sight may gadden our eyes your correspondent does devoutly pray.

The Catarrh remedy, Ely's Cream Balm has proved most satisfactory. Prior to two months ago I had not breathed fresh air through my nose for three years now I am but little bothered in that respect. The pain in my head as well as other disagreeable symptoms, I confidently believe it has a cure. S. M. Logan, Reynoldsville, Charlton Co., Ga.

Monroe Express.—Eight hundred tons of fertilizer, a friend informs us, were sold at Matthews, Mecklenburg county, this season, at an average of $30 a ton. The farmers who bought this great quantity of fertilizer live almost exclusively in two townships. These two townships therefore paid $24,000 this year in cotton for their fertilizers. Most likely Mecklenburg county, which has thirteen townships, paid out this year as much as $175,000 for fertilizers. This great sum is sent off from the county to enrich manufacturing establishments abroad.

The great demand for Sherman's Indian Venereal is solely due to its intrinsic value. The remedy we find in preference to any other, and say that it destroys and expels venereal poison.
