YOUNG LOVE ON ITS WAY HOME.

Overhead glittered the stars of a cloudless sky in June, and the full moon beamed enchantingly on a landscape wrapped in repose. Not a breath ruffled the leaves of the trees that lined the avenue along which Bolivar Pike and Buenvista McCorkle were wending their way slowly homeward from a meeting of the Gynecological society. Not a ripple stirred the surface of the romantic pond on the left in whose bosom was mirrored the glorious firmament, and not a sound came from the suburban farmhouse on the right, whose inmates were sleeping the deep, dreamless, reposeful sleep of deliverance that follows an evening spent in reading one of Trollope's novels.

"Bolivar!" exclaimed the maiden, as something by the roadside that seemed to reflect the pale radiance of the moon-beams caught her eye, "what is that on the ground?"

The young man stooped and looked at it.

"It is nothing but a snail, Buenvista," he said. "The beauty of the night has tempted it forth. It is a wonder," he continued, dreamily, "that all animate nature is not out for a moonlight stroll. The night is too lovely to be spent indoors, even in the restful slumber that tired nature exacts after a day of toil."

The enjoyment of the wondrous forenoon of the evening seemed too deep for words, however, and in silence the young couple proceeded slowly on their way, containing only in that voiceless yet eloquent language that expresses itself in a glance of the eye, a pressure of the hand or the softly-breathed sigh that is felt rather than heard. O, glorious season of youth and hope, when—but we digress.

Long had they walked on thus in ecstatic silence when the gentle girl again spoke.

"Bolivar," she said, "I think I see on the ground another snail."

The young man stopped to inspect it. Raising himself and slightly quickening his steps he said:

"No, Buenvista, it is the same snail!"

A START IN LIFE.

At Greensboro they pointed out an old dandy whom they said had just got married and was going out on a piece of rented land to make a start in life. If I loved him out to his cart, to which was hitched an old and faded ox. His bride, a coal black damsel of 18, sat on a bag of corn in the cart and held to the rope lines around the ox's horns. The cart containing, in addition, a skillet, a kettle, ten pounds of side-pork and a jug holding two quarts of molasses. There was a rick for a stubble, a lion's feather pillow and an old blanket. That was the outfit.

"So you have just got married?" I asked.

"Yes, sah—dan-juh got married to dat gal."

"How old are you, uncle?"

"Shoo, now, but I reckon I'm about 60."

"And you've got a young wife?"

"Yes, sah—dun got a gal."

"And you are happy?"

"Happy, sah! Why, Ize walkin' right on aigs all de time!"

"And you are now going out to make a start in life?"

"Yes, sah—gwine to start right off. Got de ox, got de cart, got de gal and got two hull weeks' provisions, an' if dars any ole nigger in Nurf Carolina who feels no like jumpin' 50 feet high an' yellin' for Canaan dan I does I'll gin two bits to see him!"—Detroit Free Press.

IT WAS BAD ENOUGH.

At the last Clover Club banquet in Philadelphia Senator Joe Blackburn, of Kentucky, told more and better stories than any man at the clover table. One was illustrative of the wonderful hopefulness and irresponsibility of the Democratic party. The day following the late National election the Senator was in Washington in the company of Representative Allen, of Mississippi, who is described by him "as the witliest and liveliest looking man I have ever met."

They were approached by young Hearst, who excitedly displayed a telegram from his father, the California Senator, which read: "As sure as there is a God in heaven California has gone for Cleveland!" At that time Harrison's victory in New York State was assured, and it made no earthly difference how California had voted. "Young man," said Allen solemnly to the junior Hearst, "your father's telegram reminds me of what happened to a friend of mine who went out to Colorado, and was thrown by a bronco and killed. His companions telegraphed to his widow: 'Jim was thrown to-day by a bronco, and his neck; both legs and one arm were broke.' A few hours later a second telegram came to the bereaved woman. It ran in this way: 'Later particulars are not so bad—Jim's arm was not broken.'"

"Contentment is great gain," the poet spoke that which should enter deep into every heart when he said:

"Contentment gives a crown,
When fortune has denied it."

MISTAKES.

From the Bank Register (Minneapolis) Scotland.

We apologize for mistakes made in all former issues and say they were inexcusable, as all an editor has to do is to hunt news, and clean the rollers, and set type, and sweep the floor, and pen short items, and fold papers, and write wrappers, and make the paste, and mail the papers, and talk to visitors, and distribute type, and carry water, and saw wood, and read the proofs, and correct the mistakes, and hunt the shears to write editorials, and dodge the bills, and dun delinquents, and take cuttings from the whole force, and tell our subscribers that we need money. We say that we're no business to make mistakes while attending to these little matters, and getting our living on paper-tail soup flavored with imagination, and wearing old shoes and no collar, and a patch on our pants, obliged to turn a smiling countenance to the man who tells us our paper isn't worth $1 anyhow, and that he could make a better one with his eyes shut.

TO BE PITIED.

A gentleman was out driving with his wife, who was noted for her bad temper, and, in a narrow road, met a woman which they had some difficulty in passing. The lady, apparently thinking that the carter was not making as much haste as he ought to do to get out of the way, began to scold him pretty freely. Just, however, as they drew clear, the man stepped out to the carriage, and, respectfully touching his hat to the gentleman, asked whether he might speak a word. The lady, thinking that he was going to apologize for his slowness, interposed, and said, very sharply:

"Yes, say whatever you have got to say."

Whereupon the man, again touching his hat, and looking hard at the gentleman, said, very quietly:

"Sir, I do pity 'em from the bottom of my heart, for I've got just such another brute at home myself!"

CONSUMPTION SURELY CURED.

NOISE WITHOUT POWER.

Albany Christian Advocate.

An eminent minister while delivering a lecture to some theological students on oratory, said: "Young gentlemen don't stand before a looking glass and make gestures. Pump yourself full of your subject till you can't hold another drop, and then knock out the bung and let nature caper." That's it. When a man is full of his subject then he will be effective. Enthusiasm moves men. Burning zeal wakes up men. A hot iron, though it be blunt, will burn its way. The old Methodist preachers were effective men. They were men full of living religion. Hence Dr. Chalmers remarked: "Methodism is Christianity in earnest." Wm. Witt said that eloquence was found in one word—"Sympathy." Spiritual pathos effects a congregation to tears. There is too much of this dry thunder preaching—noise without power.

BENJAMIN F. TRACY,

SECRETARY OF THE NAVY.

BENJAMIN F. TRACY.

General Benjamin F. Tracy, is about fifty-seven years old. He was born in New York and was educated in the common schools, and entered the law college of Nathaniel W. Davis. In 1851, he was admitted to the bar. In 1853 he was a candidate for district attorney of Tioga county, and though it was a Democratic stronghold he was elected, being re-elected two years later, defeating Gilbert C. Walker, afterward Governor of Virginia. He was elected to the assembly in 1861, and a year later recruited the 109th and 137th regiments, becoming colonel of the former. He commanded this regiment a while and led it in several battles. His strength gave way under his duties and he gave up the command, accepting the command of the 127th U. S. colored troops, and was ordered to command of Elmira military post with its ten thousand Confederate prisoners. After the war he settled in New York where he resumed the practice of law. In 1876 he was made U. S. District attorney for the Eastern district of New York. He is about six feet high, rather slender and weighs about 180 pounds. His face is clear cut and attractive, his hair is gray and he wears a triply cut gray beard.

SPRING BARD IN DISGUISE.

Go put away your ulster and bring out your new spring coat for the air; as fine a poem as the poet ever wrote; it's balmy breath and soft caress creates the casual wish that you knew some quiet place to go and sit and smoke and fish; or loll upon a grassy bank and read a holy book, or "peep" and "go in swimmin'"; with no person near to look; or wander in the timberland and pluck the fragrant flowers, and fill the happy, happy days, with happy, happier hours; or climb a sun-kissed haystack in the hot-tem-land and dream of that wondrous land of vision, of that blossom-bordered stream, which leads like a picture in their unobscured lines, as spring through those legend-locked and haughty confines; or clamber up an apple tree and perch upon a limb and breathe the blossoms' fragrance as you sing a silent hymn; or with a loved one stroll at eve and inspiration drink from the beauty of the landscape and the banjo's pleasant plink. Your mind insists on rioting on such a day as this—a day as full of ecstasy as love's initial kiss.

A PRETTY GIRL.

Form is most important. Coloring and a fine skin will not make a face strictly beautiful unless the features are regular and the head and face of perfect contour. The eyes should be set horizontally, having neither an upward nor downward inclination, not too far apart nor too close together. The nose should be placed at an even distance between the eyes, joining the forehead in a subtle curve, the lower portion straight to emphasize the surrounding curves of the cheeks and lips. The "mouth like a Cupid's bow" is very beautiful. The distance from the eye to the tip of the nose, and from there to the chin, should each be one-fourth the length of the face; the mouth should be set at one-third the length of the nose and chin; the chin should taper slightly to form an oval outline face.

Nevertheless, with features that do not come up to the ideal, a girl will be considered "pretty" if she has smooth, clear skin, bright, animated eyes and good teeth.

PLAIN HISTORY.

Switt's Specific is a simple vegetable compound, prepared from roots gathered freshly from the forest, and contains nothing of the mineral kingdom, or any poisonous substance, or any article at all which comes from the chemist's laboratory.

The formula of the remedy was obtained from the Creek Indians in Middle Georgia, by reliable white men, who had witnessed the wonderful cures made by that tribe of Indians, of blood diseases. Mr. Hugh L. Dennard, of Houston county, Ga., began using Switt's Specific in 1829, and continued its use all of his life, and asserted that he had never known it to fail to cure any case of scrofula, blood taint, or contagious blood poison. The testimony has been corroborated every day for years. The present Compound was formed in 1879, and has since made known to the world the virtues of Switt's Specific, and to-day it is sold in every city, town and country store all over America, Great Britain, and many other portions of the world.

I have seen Switt's Specific used, and know of many cases of the worst form of blood diseases which have been cured by it. I know the proprietors to be gentlemen of the highest type and utmost reliability. I recommend it as a great blood remedy, unequalled by anything that I know of.

MAN TO BLAME.

I am going to quote from a modern writer of stories—a woman—on this subject of coquets:

"A woman never thought of being any more than of marrying, until man put it into her head. Man impudently says: 'What a dear little creature! What a sweet little waist to squeeze,' etc., and so every woman tries to be dear and little and squeezable. The foolish part is for a woman to imagine a coquet string will make her so. But from the days of Eve (after the fall, of course) to the present moment a small waist has been an object in life. Yet there is no real beauty in a laced up figure, and disease is written all over it."

MORE LAND—LESS MULE.

Wilmington Star.

A friend overheard the following conversation between two darkies on their way from the Sound. One was an old fellow, the other a young, half inclined ex-slave.

"Uncle Jim, let's go ter dat new Loko-bomer country, whay de gubment gibs yer hundred and sixteen acres o' lan' fer nothin'!"

"How many mules does dey say?"

"Don't say nothin' 'bout mules."

"Ain't gwine. Dey owes me forty acres an' er yaller mule now; an' I need dat mule, too."

"But dis is diff'rant. Dey ain't nothin' 'bout mules 'tall, an' 'lits mo'n er hundred acres o' lan', an' you talkin' 'bout forty!"

"Same ting, I tell yer, boy. 'Mo' lan' less mule. I ain't gwine, I tell you."

OKLAHOMA PROPER.

The original Oklahoma tract lies in the very center of the Indian Territory and contains 1,887,800 acres of the richest farming land South of Dakota and west of Missouri. Recently the territorial name has been made to apply to a region extending northward and southward so as to include what is known as the vast tract of country that rejoins in the free and lovely title of "No Man's Land." This extended territory covers about two-thirds of the Indian Territory and has an area of 23,000,000 acres and more.

Oklahoma proper, however, the region of country on which boomers, so-called, are entitled to settle, contains less than 2,000,000 acres, as we have said, and is surrounded by the reservations of the Chickasaw, Choctaw, Creek, Cherokee and other Indians. The disappearance of these red men, it is hardly necessary to remark, will, in all probability, be dated from this very time of the settlement of Oklahoma.

The Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe Railroad passes through the territory from north to south and it is along this line that the chief towns of the new country—Guthrie, Oklahoma City, Walker and so on—are and will further be located. The region actually opened to settlement is quite an extensive one, but not nearly so large as it is made to appear in the popular mind and not large enough by many millions of acres for the throng that has hoped to find homes within it.

BE OF GOOD CHEER.

To the honest inquirer after truth, who, troubled with some contagious blood disease, seeks a remedy which will completely eradicate from his system every germ of blood poison, that the ones he loves—his wife and his children—may be saved, the experience of others comes as a mighty revelation. Common sense tells him actual results are the only sure proof of curative virtue. Read the following true testimony:

Twelve years ago I contracted a terrible case of blood poisoning. My affliction was truly horrible. I had no appetite, did not sleep well at night, my digestion was repaired, my throat was a full of ulcers, and in fact I was a total wreck. I had been under the treatment of several of the leading physicians of Atlanta; tried nearly every blood remedy advertised; went to Hot Springs, where I remained several months, receiving no benefit whatever—the medical disease still clung to me.

Three years ago I was laid up with rheumatism. My knees were drawn up in such a position that I could not leave my bed for months.

Last summer the disease seemed to re-new itself, and I was laid up with all the ravages of death. My life was a lingering torture, and I had despaired of ever getting on my feet, when a friend of mine recommended B. B. I began to use it at once, and had myself permanently cured. I refer to Rev. C. C. Davis, Dr. John G. Westmoreland, Dr. Knott, Garrett & Bro., and numerous others who know of my case. I cheerfully recommend B. B. For I really believe it is the best medicine for the blood in the world.

JAS. L. BOWWORTH, Atlanta, Ga.

During the month of February I bought one bottle of B. B. For my four-year-old boy, who had what doctors term hereditary blood poisoning, and to my utter astonishment one bottle cured him. In February my elder son, twelve years of age, was literally covered with ugly sores on his legs, and a terrible eruption on his head. He was cured with two bottles of B. B. A quick blood cleanser it has no equal.

JAMES H. H. Atlanta, Ga.

For several years I have been suffering from a constitutional blood disease, which has resisted the treatment of our best physicians, and the use of the most noted medicines.

I was covered with a copper-colored eruption all over my body and limbs, with loss of appetite, excruciating pains in my back, emaciation, falling out of my hair, sore throat and great nervousness. I became incredulous, but being told that B. B. was a sure enough blood purifier and that it did not require a patient to use a gross before he was cured, I commenced its use. Within two weeks time I felt improved. I have taken about ten bottles and feel as well and sprightly as any man. My appetite and strength have returned and my hair does not fall out. I do not hesitate to say that B. B. has cured me as a general blood purifier, and any one who will use only one bottle will be convinced that it has no equal in these parts. It will continue its use, as it is a splendid tonic and keeps my system in a fine condition. You have the liberty to direct any suturer to me in person.

K. P. B. JONES,
Atlanta, Ga.

I had 24 running ulcers on one leg, and 6 on the other, and felt greatly prostrated. I believe I actually swallowed a barrel of medicine in vain efforts to cure the disease. With little hope, I finally acted on the urgent advice of a friend, and got a bottle of B. B. I experienced a change and my condition somewhat improved. I kept using it until I had taken sixteen bottles, and all the ulcers, rheumatism, and other horrors of blood poison had disappeared, and at last I am sound and well again, after an experience of twenty years of torture.
