The Senate has passed a joint resolution providing that the general and public laws be printed separately from the private laws. This will save the State some expense.

CHICAGO SCHEMES

FOR MAKING MONEY OUT OF THE UNWARY VISITORS TO THE WORLD'S FAIR.

Where the World's Fair visitor will suffer, in many instances, is through the medium of "club schemes" and hotel accommodation associations, which are springing up as thick as flies. Some of the advertisements sent out by these "fake" combinations are readily seen through by those who are in any way acquainted with this city, but there will be a good many people in Chicago this summer who know nothing whatever about the town.

Not long ago one of the numerous "hotel associations" sent out circulars giving a picture of the Chamber of Commerce as its abiding place, in which every patron could have an outside room with plenty of air and light. Another association printed a cut of Marshall Field's wholesale house, which, the circulars said, had just been erected for the accommodation of those of the association's patrons who wanted to visit the Fair; a third association sent out a picture of the poor, old, decrepit government building, that is rapidly falling to pieces, and so on. The pictures of big warehouses and business blocks are being used right along in these circulars, while in more than one instance locations are given where no buildings whatever exist.

This is not the worst of it, however. The promoters of many of these hotel schemes have gone to the trouble to write out recommendations for their hotels and sign the names of such distinguished personages as United States Senator Shelby M. Cullom, ex-Governor Joseph W. Fifer, and others, including leading railroad managers East and West. Some of those whose names were thus used have found out the "fake," and have written to Chicago denouncing such methods, while others are yet unconscious of it, and their names continue to appear as endorsing schemes of which they have absolutely no knowledge.

Another hotel scheme is one with "lots of money in it," and is easily worked. The plan is to charge each "subscriber," $5, in return for which he sent a statement or pamphlet showing him where to get a room and board while in Chicago and the price he will be compelled to pay for it. There are many hotel, boarding house and club associations here which are reputable enough, and which will be of great assistance to visitors in securing their cheap and good accommodations, and it is because these reputable associations have done so well that these "fake" schemes have come to the front. Of course these latter will do nothing after they get the $5 and the "subscriber" can whistle for all he gets out of it, for nine times out of ten the list of rooms and boarding places sent him is worthless.

Intending visitors to the Fair will have to look out for such things as these and fight shy of schemes of which they know nothing. As a rule, the man who sends money to Chicago to strangers will not see any of it again or get any good out of it.—Chicago Letter.

THE SPLEEN—not the ill humor you feel like venting upon some offender, but the spleen near the stomach, which supplies the proper amount of blood to the stomach during digestion. But both are affected by a torpid liver. A torpid liver excites the spleen (ill-humor) and destroys the bodily organ; but an active liver, promoted by Simmons' Liver Regulator, destroys the spleen (ill-humor) and excites to right action the digestive powers—then no more Dyspepsia, Constipation or Biliousness.

It is prophesied that the wearing of shawls is soon to be revived.

Florida has a woman tea raiser.

He pronounces it a wonderful remedy. Mr. P. T. Early, the postmaster of Manassas, N. C., writes: "I am glad to inform you that I have used Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup in my family with the best results. I never allow myself to be without it. It is a wonderful remedy."

NEGRO EDUCATION.

THE REV. THOMAS DIXON TELLS SOME PLAIN TRUTHS WHICH ARE EQUALLY APPLICABLE TO THE EDUCATION OF WHITE BOYS.

A recent article in the Herald by Rev. Thomas Dixon, Jr., on the subject of negro education is well worth reading. It will apply equally as well to the education of white children. He asks "Is the negro being truly educated in the South?" and then answered the question. He says it is a fact that to-day the South is making more sacrifices for the education of the negro than many Northern States including the wealthiest and most cultured, are making for their people. The article continues:

"I am sorry to say it, but I firmly believe it is a fact, that the education of the negro in the South to-day through our common schools is more or less of a failure and more or less of a curse. The accent is on the wrong syllable. It is the perpetuation of the old Southern ideal of the classical education rather than the meeting of the needs of the new century and the new life. As in the character of much of our education for the common people here the accent is exclusively on the head. Education is made the grinding of the intellectual axe with which we are to hew our way through life, scalping the weaker ones who stand in our way. The clothopper is taught to despise the plough, the smith his anvil, the carpenter his tools. The consequence is the South is not producing competent negro farmers, smiths and carpenters. The idea which the young student get into his head is that he has to "rise," to "get on," and to leave those behind who cannot get on. Now, the question is, Does not the age demand a system that shall better meet the requirement of the whole community?"

True education is the training of the whole man in such a way that the result is the consistent and harmonious expression of all his faculties, so that in him the whole community is blessed. Education, therefore, must be threefold—for the head, the hand and the heart. These three forces control civilization, and the well being of society depends on the proper balancing of these powers. They are not being symmetrically developed in the education of the negro. The accent is on the head—certainly the hardest part of his anatomy. The purely intellectual prevails; and yet it can be shown by a law of mathematics as certain as fate that nine hundred and ninety-nine children out of every thousand born into this world, white or black, must make their bread by the work of their hands.

WHAT THE SCHOOLS TEACH.

Are we not teaching these thousands of children all the same thing, in the same way, by the same teacher, and is not the thing the ideal of the one rather than the ideal of the nine hundred and ninety-nine? The vast majority of these children come out of these schools with a positive distaste for any kind of manual labor, though there is no part of the education of man that is more essential to the development of true manhood and the training of his body and of his life.

If we swell the army of the discontented, the misplaced and the mistimed by any process of education is it real education? The great mass of the children of the South must work with their hands or starve to death. The salvation of the South depends to-day upon the development of her industries. Are the children of the South being fitted for that work?

We are educating every year eight millions of men to be Presidents of the United States. We only need about two dozen Presidents in a hundred years. Is not this an awful waste of raw material? Should we seek to make Presidents of the United States, or would it be better to make Peter Coopers and Thomas A. Edisons? We do not need Presidents; we need mechanics, engineers, farmers, carpenters, masons—more men whose brain and personality add to the sum total of the wealth and progress of the world. We have to-day among sixty millions of people in this country at least one million men who would make as good a President of the United States as either Mr. Cleveland or Mr. Harrison. Why should we seek by a process of education to add more to this host who are already more than qualified for such a position, and who have no earthly chance of ever attaining it?

If all the world were educated to-day with the accent of education on the head only, I fear that anarchy would be the result. Certainly there would be a readjustment of some sort in the social world that would make the dry bones rattle. I am not saying that this would not be for the best. I am simply inquiring if the present method of head ideal only in education is not destroying the foundations of the present social regime. If so, those who love the present social order had better look to it. Education is put down as the great cure-all of the evils of the world is heir to. Education will do wonders; but we must understand what education is when we make these wide claims. If you were to transplant a million negroes from the industries of the South and turn them into classical scholars with a distaste for industrial work the result will be to plunge the South into a hell of anarchy. Take a million men in the North out of the industries of the nation and put them through the same process, turning them out with a distaste for work, and the results would be practically the same. In my humble judgment the accent of education in the South, even its primary branches, is lacking fundamentally in the industrial principle. True education is the education of the whole man, in such a way that the result is the consistent and harmonious expression of all his faculties, to the end that he may attain for himself the highest things, and that in him the whole community might be blessed. If the negro is given this education time will solve the rest.

CHOKES THE DEFENDANT INTO SUBMISSION AND IS APPLAUDED.

During the trial of the somewhat noted Sanders case in the district court at Wichita, Kan., recently Judge Reed quelled a small size riot by whipping the defendant, Oscar Sanders.

Mrs. Sanders had been granted a divorce from her husband, the manager of the Sanders Transfer company, after a long trial, and the court was hearing the argument of counsel on the disposition of the only child, a boy three years old. Worn out with long attendance upon court and the excitement of the date, Mrs. Sanders fainted. While she was being carried out of the crowded court room the husband seized the child and started for the door. He was intercepted by a brother of Mrs. Sanders, and the child not being present, Judge Reed ran down and grappled with the maddened father who fought vigorously, but he was no match for the doughty judge who choked him down into a chair, delivered the child to its grandmother and resumed his seat.

A ripple of applause ran over the court room, but the Judge rapped for order and postponed further consideration of the case until next day.

AN UNLUCKY EDITOR.

An Ohio editor a few days ago returned to General Passenger Agent Charles O. Seal, a Baltimore and Ohio passbook, which had been issued to him on account of transportation. The book was number 13, and the editor regarded the number as unlucky. A new book numbered 823 was issued to him. As the total of the figures of 8, 2 and 3 is 13, it is expected that he will return the second book if this fact is noticed.—Baltimore Sun
