A well bred man puts his hand over is month when he yawns, but not one well bred man in 10,000 knows why. The result is this, Science Siftings says: "Four or five hundred years ago there was superstition common in Europe that the devil was always lying in waiting to enter a man's body and take possession of him. Satan generally west in by the nouth, but when he had waited a reaonable time and the person did not open his mouth the devil made him yawn. and when his mouth was open jumped down his throat. So many of this kind occurred that the people learned to make the sign of the cross over their mouths when ever they yawned, in order to search away the devil. The peasantry in Italy and Spain still adhere to this method, but most people have dispensed with the cross sign, and keep out the devil by simply placing the hand before MILLINERY, the lips. It is a most singular survival of a practice after the significance has perished."-New York Times.
