HE KNOWETH MY FRAME.

Despondent and lonely and weak, He comforts my soul with His presence, Gives joy that my lips cannot speak. He whispers of love everlasting, Of peace that shall ever endure, Of patience, of rest, strength and courage, Of hope that is steadfast and sure.

He knoweth my frame in temptation He knows that I cannot withstand The armics of sin that assail me, With fury on every hand. But Satan and all his battalions Fall back with no power to harm, And trusting the strength of His arm.

When tempests of sorrow break o'er me To rend and to shiver my soul, He knows all the wreck and the ruin, And tenderly maketh me whole-His arms are beneath and about me, And sweetly He teaches me trust, He knoweth my frame-for He made it-Remembers that I am but dust.

He knows it in life or in death; And I never need fear for a moment, For this is the word that He saith: My child, fear thou not, I am with thee My strength will uphold to the end; Yes, I am thy Rock and thy Refuge, Thy lover, Redcemer and friend.'

How blessed my life is with Jesus! I know I shall conquer at length; In Him all my faults shall be hidden, In Him all my weakness is strength How tenderly Jesus doth lead me! He knoweth my frame, and I must Love Him who forever remembers-

Remembers that I am but dust.

CHRONIC FAULT FINDERS

A Fearful Malady Racks Him and Paints Thistles where Roses Bloom.

Chronic rheumatism is bad, very bad; thronic dyspepsia opens the doors of the infernal while yet the spirit is the body pent-but not one nor both of these can compare with Chronic Fault Finding.

At home it is gall and vitriol combined in the vilest of miserable concoctions. If it is the housewife who is affected with the terrible malady, all the gentleness of womanhood is gone, and lickets, spasms and contortions make sad havoe where grace, elegance and beauty once charmed with their loveliness.

"If it is the "man of the house" who is the victim, only those who have seen can tell the height, length and breadth of the immensurable, fathomless and boundless woes of that household. The best coffee that ever blessed the palate of an epicure is to him "miscrable dish

The most savory steak that ever re joiced the appetite, and the most delicious bread that ever smoked in an oven "are not fit for a dog to cat."

No wonder the good woman who has done her hest, and done it well, feels in her heart that "it is no use trying!" An angel from beaven could not please such

But the chronic fault finder is atisfied with the ruin of his home. He wants a broader field, and town and country fall under his fearful maledie tions. Suggest a plan for improvement of your town and in he comes with his "It can't be done," and, strange as it may appear, the virus of his malady is communicated to others, and the whole ommunity suffers from his pols n.

ting all manner of disagreeable ness, he is never so much in his element as when his prophesies of evil reach fulfillment.

There is no country good enough for him. The very flowers that bloom in beauty and shed their fragrance on the air, are "noxious weeds" distilling poison. The wisest statesmen are "fools" and the laws "the iniquitous work of fools and demagogues.

What is to be done with such a man? Nothing. Think of him in charity and let him alone. Remember he is diseased. A fearful malady racks him; distorts his vision, and paints thistles where roses ed. ### NORTH CAROLINA.

What of the Future?--The State Just Entering Upon a Wonderful Career.

Extract from Vice-President Stevenson's Pourth of July Speech at the Guilford Battle Ground Celebration.

What shall be the future of this great commonwealth? The glorious achievements of her sous in the past are a part of common history. In her devotion to liberty, her struggles and sacrifices for independence, North Carolina stood in the forefront of the colonies. The heroism of her sons at Eutaw, at Guilford at Cowpens and King's Mountain turned the tide of war from the southern border and made possible the early termination of hostilities by the surrender of Cornwallis at Yorktown. Nor has she been less renowned for a firm attachment to the principles of religious teleration-for her efforts in behalf of a higher and grander civilization.

But what of the future? What will be the verdict of the future as to the achievements of the present generation. In all that makes a State truly great is North Carolina to lag behind, or to keep even pace with her sister commonwealths in the century upon which we are soon to enter?

With an area of more than fifty thousand square miles, stretching from the western border; with a breadth of two hundred miles from north to south; with a soil happily adapted to the supply of all material wants; with a climate; traversed from north to south, from pine forest to mountain fastness, by railroads -her mountains overflowing with every variety of mineral weath-in a word, so abundantly blessed with nature's choicest gifts-North Carolina, I am persuaded, Mr. President, is just entering upon a career of wonderful material prosperity. But this is not all. Let this common wealth be now viewed from a higher standpoint. In the struggle for material wealth, have the claims of education, of charity and religion been forgotten? To her honor be it said that in her hour of misfortune and peril, as well as of gladness and of peace, the humane spirit of her people has found expression in establishing and sacredly guarding the institutions which minister to human necessities and misfortunes. Your schools, your churches, your asylums, attest more elequently than can any poor words of mine, the generosity, nay, the lofty spirit of humanity which animates all your people.

A HOT WATER WELL.

IS NOW CAUSING EXCITEMENT IN SAL KEEP YOUR HANDS IN.

The people at the Vance Mills are talking about a well that is giving them hot water. This well was dug while the mill cold and pure. This year, up to about three weeks ago, when the city water was obtained, the well was used to sup ply water to the engine at the mill. Af ter commencing the use of the city water he cannot trust on earth. If such a hillside."—Chicago Record, the pipes were taken from the well. Saturday the mill operatives decided to use the well again for drinking purposes and sent a man there to clean it out. He up the golden pavements and stuffing found the water hot and after drawing them in his pockets. The blatant blathit all out the bottom of the well was so himself for one hundred dollars a night, uncomfortable that he could stay down paid from the pockets of the little fools Never satisfied with himself, living in there only a few minutes. Monday the who give fifty cents a piece to hear their an atmosphere of discontent and cultiva water was again drawn out and was father's God blasphemed, is more of found as hot as before. It was then filled to the top with city water and left and every Christian should be a secret until yesterday, when it was drawn off for the third time and thoroughly cleaned out. The man who went down in the well says the bottom was hot and the vien supplying it with water was so hot that he could harely put his foot in it. After about four feet of water had run into the well yesterday afternoon the water was again tested and was found hot still. The Herald's informant says he drow a bucket of water from the well for baling cotton. The other one of himself, and that it was too hot to keep these bales arrived in Galveston and as his hand in it comfortably.
