The following interesting and somewhat Clark will appear in next week's Bulletin. An analysis of it, which appeared

"The common field pea-whether the furnish more forage than clover and will North the pea is coming into wider use growing a growing market for our peas great drawback in the raising of peas for seed is the great cost for harvesting and which announced : beating them out. At the North, where beans are largely raised, they have satis factory bean harvesters and threshers. Southern inventive genius has always been equal to the demands upon it. If some one will invent a satisfactory pea harvester and a good pea thresher he will not only make a fortune for himself, but he will bring back fertility to the South. It will increase ten fold the growing of field-peas, begides making a new crop for to sneak away somewhere and begin life us to ship to the North. These inventions will stimulate the growing of field peas, just as the invention of the cotton gin stimulated the increased crop of cot-

The price of cotton does not bid fair to go up. The new area added every year in Texas will continually overbal ange the world's increased consumption. There is the stendily increasing produc tion in India, Egypt and Brazil. In Mexico the cotton plant lives eight years and produces two crops a year. Production has been heretofore small, owing to lack of railroads and reliable labor. This is being remedied. To compete with a country which can produce sixteen crops of cotton from one planting is like using a muzzle loader against a sixteen shooter. Besides, all countries south of us, irrespective of fertility, and no matter how rich we shall make our lands, have the advantage of usin the length of the sea son. We cannot overcome the disadvantage of our short seasons. Cotton in North Carolina is doomed, sooner or later, to disappear as a market crop. We You're can substitute many things. Grass is very profitable if the land is made rich enough because it takes so little labor. Two weeks out of the fifty two- one week in June to mow and one week later to bale up-is enough, while cotton or tobacco requires the year round. The field pen offer the advantage of abundant forage, a steady improver of our lands, a good fattener for cattle and hogs, and a cro; to ship North. The drawback in the great expense of harvesting and preparing for market should be overcome. Th South will reward with wealth and hono the man who will furnish the harvester and thresher that will enable us to in

IN HALIFAX COUNTY.

RESIDENT OF GREENSBORO VISITS THE COUNTY AND SENDS IN AN INTER-ESTING BATCH OF ITEMS CONCERN. ING FAMILIAR SCENES AND MEN OF OTHER DAYS.

Mit. Eptron:-I have felt for some time that I would like to write something for your good paper, provided I could find leisure and find something worth your attention. A little leisure has come, but as to the other part of the condition I must take the risk. My first acquaintance with your county was when I was a laugh, even the idea which gave rise to boy—not a "mere" boy, but a boy sure enough. At the time of which I speak there was a regular shad fishery at Halifax town, just above the ferry and not far from where the Confederate was A. far from where the Confederate ram, Albemarie," received her armament. I had as raising of the eyebrows, and this, algone down from one of the upper counties though not the least apropos to the words to procure shad, which were plentiful in Roanoke at that time, and a heavy twohorse load was obtained without much a like movement on the faces before me waiting. After an interval of some years | The response was quite involuntary and I made my home in your county, and formed an extensive acquaintance about Enfield, Brinkleyville and Ringwood, but for twenty years past I have been a visi-tor in the county, except that I spent the greater part of 1881 in and about En-field. In August of the present year, acting, and not a mouth in the company however, I resolved upon a some-what protracted visit to the old county, and never could I have gone at a Have not we all noticed that a man etter time in which to see the most magnificent crops abounding everywhere. One important conclusion I reached, was, that every farmer in that section who had raised his Has it occurred to many careful parown supplies at home had done well, while scarcely a single man, probably not one, who had adopted the other plan, was in a prosperous condition. F. H. Whitaker, near Enfield, Ed. Wills, near Brinkleyville, and Carey Williams, at Ringwood, had crops of unsurpassed laxuriance, but going over the border into Nash, you will find T. V. FACIAL RESEMBLANCES.

Why People Living Long To gether Resemble Each Other.

The fact that two people who live long together tend to look alike is accounted fer by unconscious mimiery reacting upon the muscles of expression in the same way that a ruling passion does. The tendency, says a writer in Blackwood's Magazine, to facial imitation is very general, -in fact, almost universal-and may be so marked as to be easily noticed; so that when two people are engaged in animated conversation, the expression of the listen or may often be seen to echo that of the speaker.
