RUN DOWN WITH DYSPEPSIA STOMACH LIVER AND HEART AFFECTED.

Almost in Despair
But Finally CURED
By Taking
AYER'S PILLS

For fifteen years, I was a great sufferer from indigestion in its worst forms. I tested the skill of many doctors, but grew worse and worse, until I became so weak I could not walk fifty yards without having to sit down and rest. My stomach, liver, and heart became affected, and I thought I would surely die. I tried Ayer's Pills and they helped me right away. I continued their use and am now entirely well. I don't know of anything that will so quickly relieve and cure the terrible suffering of dyspepsia as Ayer's Pills. —JAMES C. PATTERSON, Brodie, Warren Co., N. C.

THE POPULAR WOMAN.

The popular woman need not care whether she is pretty or ugly. She need not query whether she is brilliant or stupid, but simply revel in the fact that everybody likes her whether she likes them or not. And that is the secret of this extraordinary popularity. She does not try for it, for if she did the effort would be discovered and her object at once shattered into the smallest of atoms.

No, the popular woman is so because she cannot help it. Nature has endowed her with an amount of personal magnetism that attracts people to her without the slightest volition of her own, and once thus attracted they swear by her come what will, whether she be kind to them or inclined to show the cloven foot in the genteel feminine style known to the willful woman.

From observations one would say that the popular woman is the one who smiles as pleasantly upon the owner of the building in which the elevator is run. The smiles are not studied, they come spontaneously. It is just as easy for the popular woman to be kind as to be cross, therefore, some one will say it is not to her credit to be popular, and no more it is. Nature has made her so. Her own sweet sunny temperament attracts friends as certainly as molasses attracts flies.

It is all nonsense to give a woman advice how to be popular. Unless her own inner nature is such that it calls all the world friends there is no earthly use in endeavoring to smooth off the rough edges and acquire the manners that mean so much to the woman that possesses it. Popularity is a gift, a rare one, it is true, and one that once owned cannot, like osh or treasures, be lost, for owing it honestly it follows the possessor as persistently as a bad reputation, and we all know that that cannot be lost, try however hard we may.—Philadelphia Times.

She Saw Him Home.

DESPITE HIS MISFORTUNE, HE WAS POLITE, AND SHE REPAID HIM.

It was on a Washington avenue car. The time, just before 6 o'clock, when the maddening throng commences to rush westward for home, supper and rest.

He is one of the most widely known men about town in the city, one whose intellectual brightness is frequently the theme for many tongues, but to offset his many good qualities he has one bad, and that, too, a very bad one, the habit of imbibing too freely of those liquid refreshments which frequently results in one's legs having a falling out with each other.

The car was crowded and several women were standing clingingly, almost toppling over every time the car started or stopped. One of these was a winsome little beauty, and the wonder only was that one of the brutes sitting down had not offered her his place, but he hasn't.

She was standing directly in front of him, and as she noted him and saw his condition, which was very "jagged," a look of recognition and embarrassment spread over her flowerlike face.

He didn't see her or any one else for a few moments, but presently looked up and saw the woman standing. He appreciated full the fact that he should offer his place to one of the number, but even more fully that if he tried to stand up he would fall down. He was in a most uncomfortable predicament.

Presently an inspiration came to him, and his face brightened like a glorious sunset, and he at once proceeded to carry out his idea.

Touching lightly upon the arm to attract her attention, he lifted his hat, and with a Chesterfieldian bow and smile said:

"Miss, I am really too drunk to stand while I know I should offer you my place, but I can do the next best thing. You may sit in my lap."

There was a spasm of mirth in the car for a few moments, during which the young lady leaned over and said:

"Cousin, I thank you for your good intentions and courtesy, but I believe you have as much as you can carry now."

At the word cousin he looked somewhat startled, and when his wits were somewhat collected perceived that in reality it was his own fair coz.

She was true blue, too, for when they arrived at his getting off place, she also got off and saw him safely home.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

THE NEW WOMAN'S THUMB.

The thumb is now regarded by the thoughtful student of palustrity as the little bird that whispers secrets about character. The new woman's thumb stands at right angles to her hands every time. If a man wants a submissive wife let him see to it that he weds a woman whose thumbs lie flat or droop a little. The weak man's thumb is weak and pendant; the strong man's thumb is strong and erect. This same little bird can be relied on to whisper into a maiden's ear secrets she will like to know about the man in whom she is interested. You can tell at a glance at a man's thumb whether he is an aimless thinker or a man who carries his ideas or some one else's into execution.

HER AGE.

"And what is your age, madam?" was the attorney's question.

"My own," she answered promptly.

"I mean how old are you?"

"I am not old, sir," with indignation.

"I beg your pardon, madam. I mean how many years have you passed?"

"None. The years have passed me."

"How many of them have passed you?"

"All. I never heard of them stopping."

"Madam, you must answer my question. I want to know your age."

"I don't know that the acquaintance is desired by the other side."

"I don't see why you insist upon refusing to answer my question," said the attorney. "I'm sure I would tell how old I was if I were asked."

"But nobody would ask you, for every body knows you are old enough to know better than to be asking a woman her age. So there?"

And the attorney passed on to the next question.—Detroit Free Press.

While in Tokyo last March, F. T. Barker, a prominent newspaper man of La Crosse, Kan., was taken with cholera morbus very severely. The night clerk at the hotel where he was stopping happened to have a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and gave him three doses which relieved him and he thinks saved his life. Every family should keep this remedy at all times. No one can tell how soon it may be needed. It costs but little and may be the means of saving much suffering and perhaps the life of some member of family. 25 and 50 cent bottles.

For sale by J. N. Brown, Halifax, Dr. A. S. Harrison, Enfield.

She—Tell me, when you were in the army, were you cool in the hour of danger? He—Cool? I actually shivered.

Can The Heart Break?

PHYSICIANS SAY NOT, YET IMAGINATION PLAYS SAD FEATS.

Grief does not kill, and it is indeed very seldom that heavy sorrow causes death to anyone when in healthy condition. It is, however, either by bringing disease to a climax, or by rendering the sufferer more liable to its attack. If a man is convinced that his grief is more than he can bear, those who have studied the matter agree that, through the force of his own imagination, the man will actually die from a "broken heart."

The great Napoleon was killed by an internal disease, but it is supposed that he would not have been fatal had not his spirits been so depressed through exile and defeat. William Pitt, the orator, is said to have died from a "broken heart," caused by his great grief at the failure of his cherished hopes and plans. And there have been many other such instances in the history of this country. When plagues are raging in a town, statistics show that as many die from fright and imaginary causes as from the real epidemic, so great a hold has the fear of death on some people.

If a man is condemned to be shot, it has often occurred that on the word "fire" he has dropped lifeless, although, through accident or design, no bullet has in reality left the gun.

There is a queer case on record concerning the daughter of a celebrated French novelist, who was deeply interested in one of her father's stories. It appeared in installments, and the heroine was suffering from consumption. As the girl brooded over the sad fate of the heroine, she, too, suddenly manifested the same symptoms. A physician recommended her father to restore the heroine to health, which he did a few chapters on, and at the same time as the girl in the novel recovered, so also did his too sentimental daughter.—Philadelphia Times.

WHAT CAUSED THE HARD TIMES.

JUDGE HUBBARD, of Iowa, says it is the existence of our operations.

George Gauld says it is the hostility to corporations.

The farmer says it is the low price in wheat.

The silver man says it is the action of Wall street.

The Wall street man says it is the action of the silver man.

The manufacturer says it is the fear of free trade.

The consumer says it is the tariff.

The debtor says it is the creditor.

The creditor says it is the debtor.

The Democrats say it is the Republicans.

The Republicans say it is the Democrats.

The Populists say it is both.

The Prohibitionists say it is whiskey.

The preachers say it is the devil.

Now, what is your idea?

TAKE TIME.

Let us take time for the good bye kiss. We shall go to the day's work with a sweet spirit for it. Let us take time to speak kind words to those we love. By and by, when they can no longer hear us, our foolishness will seem more wise than our best wisdom. Let us take time to be pleasant. The small courtesies which we often omit because they are small will some day look larger to us than the wealth which we have coveted or the fame for which we have struggled. Let us take time to get acquainted with our families. The wealth you are accumulating may be a doubtful blessing to the son who is a stranger to you. Your beautifully kept house, busy mother, can never be a home to the daughter who you have no time to care.—Christian Herald.

ANSWERED.

"Johnny, dear," said his mother, who was trying to inculcate a lesson in industry, "what do you suppose mama would do for you if you suppose come to her some day and tell her that you loved your studies?"

"I ask me for telling a falsehood," said dear little Johnny, with sweet frankness of youth.

SO LIVE.

God asks us to live but one day at a time. We know not what a day may bring forth, but we can trust all with Him. Come sunshine or storm, adversity or prosperity, come what will, let us listen for the gentle voice saying: "It is I, be not afraid." A Christian, living thus every day, will have such rest and comfort that no sorrow or disappointment can disturb.

THE WAY IT GOES.

"What's Dick doin' in college?"

"Preachin' in Greek."

"An' his daddy?"

"Plowin' in grass."

"I guess," said the sharp-nosed girl, "that I will take the wind out of her sails."

"Why," asked the fluffy girl, "don't you be up to date and say take the wind out of her tires?"

The tourist—"You seem to be proud of your family title." The New York Millionaire Abroad (proudly)—"Of course I am. I paid for it in good hard dollars."

A FEMINE REASON.

"Honor bright, now, Nellie, why did you marry Mr. Jones?"

EVIL ENOUGH.

"There is evil enough in man, God knows! But it is not the mission of every young man and woman to detail and report it all. Keep the atmosphere as pure as possible and fragrant with gentleness and charity." Dr. Hall.

SHE'D GO FARTHER.

Miss Youngun—"The regents of the state university have abolished the degree of bachelor of letters."

Miss Oldun—"I am so pleased to hear it; if I had my way I would abolish bachelors entirely."

"Honor bright, now, Nellie, why did you marry Mr. Jones?"

"Well—he's a good fellow. I rather liked him, and he has plenty of money, and—dear, the way that Simpson girl let everybody see she was just dying to have him was just shameful. Now, I couldn't let her have him, could I?"

THE SUMATRA RHINOCEROS IN THE LEIPZIG ZOOLOGICAL GARDEN.

The accompanying engraving is from a drawing made directly from the specimen of the Rhinoceros kept in the zoological garden at Leipzig. This and another specimen in the zoological garden at Budapest—were carried to Leipzig from Penang, a small island on the eastern coast of Malacca. This species was first found in Sumatra about one hundred years ago. The engraving shows clearly the coat of stiff hair, so unusual in a rhinoceros, which sits as marked in the Indian rhinoceros, are modified in this species, making it a connecting link between the former and the African rhinoceros. It differs from both of these species also in regard to the number and development of its horns, for although it has two horns they are not nearly so much developed as those of the two-horned African rhinoceros. Its height at the shoulder is about 4 feet 4 inches and its color is dark brown. Specimens of this species are very rare, though more of them may be seen hereafter, for civilization, which is killing off animals of many kinds, is also bringing to light many others.—Scientific American.

NOT AN AUTHOR.

"Do you mean to tell me you write for the newspapers?"

"What's to prevent me as long as I enclose the subscription prices?"

WHEAT.

How subtly does the skill of Art Combine with Nature's power, When man compels a sack of wheat To blossom into flour.

CAUSE OF THE TROUBLE.

The Physician—Great Scott! young lady, you say you had eleven dishes of ice cream, four soda waters and a ham sandwich. Can you wonder why you're sick?

The Young Lady (foolish)—It must have been the ham sandwich. I suppose

ONE OF THE MODERNS.

They had been discussing the woman question.

"Are you," he inquired, "a new woman?"

"Well," she answered sharply, "I don't think you or anybody else had better call me an old woman."

WEEDING.

The "ups and downs" of gardening—Golden Days.

"I guess," said the sharp-nosed girl, "that I will take the wind out of her sails."

"Why," asked the fluffy girl, "don't you be up to date and say take the wind out of her tires?"

The tourist—"You seem to be proud of your family title." The New York Millionaire Abroad (proudly)—"Of course I am. I paid for it in good hard dollars."
