—BY—
THE USE OF
Ayer's Sarsaparilla

For fully two years, I suffered from rheumatism, and was frequently in such a condition that I could hardly walk. I spent some time in Hot Springs, Ark., and the treatment helped me for the time being, but soon the complaint returned and I was as badly afflicted as ever. Ayer's Sarsaparilla being recommended, I resolved to try it, and, after using six bottles, I was completely cured.—P. H. FORD, Quachita City, La.

Letters By Telegraph.

A SYSTEM BY WHICH IT IS SAID, TWO HUNDRED WORDS ARE PRINTED A MINUTE.

After laboring for fifteen years on the problem of rapid telegraphy by means of the typewriter, a St. Louis inventor claims to have solved it. The system is said to print telegraphic messages at the rate of 200 words a minute.

The message is dictated straight to the typewriter operator. By a device attached to the typewriter a paper ribbon, about an inch wide, is perforated by a series of holes varying in position and number according to the character represented. The actual perforation of the tape is not done directly by the operator. If the right letter is struck on the keyboard the machine automatically does the rest. When the message is finished the ribbon is fed into another machine. In its passage over a roller small metallic fingers press upon it, and as different holes come under the fingers electrical connection is made with the metal roller beneath, which produces the necessary letters.

This machine is in synchronism with another machine at the other end of the line, and whatever letters are produced on one machine, say in New York, are instantly reproduced on the other machine, say in Washington. The invention can be applied to any standard typewriter. In the case of large business firms, newspaper correspondents or others using the telegraph extensively, punchers and ribbons would be attached to the typewriters in their offices, and the messages would be delivered to the telegraph office on spools ready for instant dispatch. By the new method all possibility of tapping or rubbing the message is obviated. The system is ten times swifter than the Morse, and has the additional advantage of turning out the message on page form ready for delivery. The cost of transmission is brought very low, and the possibilities of the system are suggested by the fact that business men, instead of sending their letters by mail, can have them sent by wire at the same cost as special delivery.

Where Vanderbilt Got His Idea.

BILTMORE TO BE THE RESORT OF PEOPLE WITH SCIENTIFIC HOBBIES.

In the great outlay which George Vanderbilt is making at Biltmore, in North Carolina, the young millionaire has entertained a more serious purpose than is generally known. A great deal has been written about the enormous house, with its library, chapel, scores of bed-rooms, and the army of servants which will be required to keep it up, but not every one knows that Mr. Vanderbilt intends to make his estate a Mecca for all those who are seriously interested in the study of forestry, scientific farming and horticulture. He has land enough to carry out any scheme of this sort, so matter how big it may be, as he can go forty miles in a direct line from his own door without passing the confines of his domain. He proposes, therefore, to create a neighborhood of his own on this vast property, which includes, among other cultivated and uncultivated tracts, one forest alone of more than 100,000 acres. He will build a village containing houses, stores, and a picturesque inn, and apartments will be rented to all properly accredited students who desire to avail themselves of the facilities offered there for the study of the sciences which are his hobby. The farm will be conducted after the most approved scientific fashion and forestry, which is almost unknown in America, and will become in a few years a science of the greatest importance to us, will be carried on experimentally and practically to an extent never before attempted in this country. Mr. Vanderbilt has just returned to New York from Biltmore, where he has been spending the summer in a completed wing of his great mansion. He expects to have the house finished in time for a Christmas house warming, the guests at which will be chiefly members of his own family. Edgar Poe wrote a story once about a man whose income was so large that landscape gardening was the only hobby that could make any serious inroads on it and it may be that it was this story that gave Mr. Vanderbilt his idea.

The Supremacy Of Law.

"THY WILL BE DONE, O GOD! THOU KNOWEST BEST!"

New York Paper: A little child lay dying in a room in a crowded tenement house. By the side of the poor bed sat a pale-faced woman. It was Sunday, but the poor woman's fingers were busy with her needle. So long as there was daylight, seven days in the week, she must sew constantly on the garments which later would be sold by greedy merchants at so-called "bargain sales." The merchant would make his goodly profit, for the "bargains" were made possible by the miserable wages paid the woman and her tired sisters who stitched in other tenements.

The little figure on the bed stirred, and a thin little hand was stretched out toward the woman.

"Mamma!"

"What is it, darling? work the woman, as she put aside her eed for a moment and bent over her child.

"I am so hot, mamma; my head is burning up; give me some water, mamma."

"Yes, darling."

The mother rose wearily and went out into the hall to fill a pitcher at the sink there. As she entered the room again she looked out of the window into the crowded street below. Many children were clustered around the back end of an ice-wagon. The woman's eyes brightened. She went over to the bed, and, bending over the tiny figure there, said:

"Mamma will get you some ice, dear, and that will make your throat cool. Lie still, and I will come right back."

Then, with the nickel which had cost her two hours' labor clutched in her hand, she ran down the narrow stairs and into the street.

"Give me five cents' worth," she said to the ice man.

He weighed a piece of ice and was handing it to her, when a policeman suddenly appeared and laid his hand upon the man's shoulder.

"I arrest you," said the policeman. "It's after ten o'clock, and it's against the law to sell ice on Sunday at this hour. You will have to come to the police court with me; and you must come too," he added to the woman.

"My little girl is very sick; I mustn't leave her," cried the poor woman, in great distress.

"That don't go," said the officer; "come along."

And she had to go. At the police court the ice man was held for violating the Sunday law. The woman was questioned and told to come back in the morning as a witness. Then she was allowed to go. She hurried back to the tenement where she lived, and ran up stairs to her room.

"I was kept away and couldn't get back any sooner, darling," she said. "I couldn't get the ice, because—"

Suddenly the words died on her lips. She knelt by the bed and took a little wasted hand in hers. Then raising her face, she gazed up with her dry eyes that yet saw nothing and whispered:

"Thy will be done, O God! Thou knowest best!"

Her darling was dead.

Sambo's Narrow Escape.

THE ENUMERATION WAS NOT COMPLETE ENOUGH TO CONVICT HIM.

It is not strange that the southern colored man has vague and mistaken notions about property rights. He and his ancestors were for ages enslaved and had no rights whatever, even to their own persons. Therefore all they could gain was through treachery and deceit, and it is only natural that these traits bred by slavery remain as inherited characteristics now that the negro enjoys the blessings of freedom. It may take several generations before their habit of stealing will be unlearned, for even when the colored man becomes religious his easily besetting sin will be most often found in his not respecting the property rights of others. And thereby hangs a tale.

It was a Tennessee Methodist class leader who had before a him six months' probationer whom he was questioning for admission to all the privileges of the church.

"Well, Sambo," said the class leader, "I hope you are prepared to live a Christian life in accordance with your profession. Have you stolen any chickens during the last six months?"

"No, sah! I done stole no chicken."

"Have you stolen any turkeys or pigs?"

Sambo looked grieved. "No, sah!"

"I am very glad to hear this good report," continued the class leader, "and I trust you will continue to live an honest Christian life."

After church Sambo hurried home with his wife, who had overheard the catechizing. When they were fairly out of everybody's hearing, he drew a long breath of relief and turned a self approving glance to his better half. "Golly," he said in a half cautious whisper, "ef he'd er said ducks I'd ben a lost niggab, sah!"—Boston Budget.

Living Peacefully.

RELIGION FAVORS NO CLASS BUT GIVES ABUNDANTLY TO THE UNLETTERED AS TO THE LEARNED.

(New York Herald.)

Let not your heart be troubled, neither let it be afraid.—St. John, xiv. 27.

Religion is not so much a theory of salvation, as a means of reaching the other world in safety, as it is a constant source of comfort during the hardships and perplexities of the present time.

The future we may regard as assured and leave it to take care of itself.

The dear Lord, who watches the sparrow's flight and fall, and who has given us some faint glimpses of what is to be, will keep the wonderful promise, "I go to prepare a place for you," and we need have no disturbing thoughts, but, on the contrary, perfect confidence.

Our chief concern should be how to make the best and the most of this life, for if we are in the right now we surely cannot go wrong hereafter. God has hidden certain benefits in the experiences through which we are called to pass, and it is important that as we go through the experiences we find a way to gather the benefits. I am convinced that no event in our lives is without its purpose, and if our minds and hearts are properly developed we shall not only discover what that purpose is, but have cause for gratitude and increased faith even amid sorrows and tears and bereavements.

It should be our aim, therefore, to live as peacefully as possible—that is to say, we should reduce the friction of life to its minimum, and nothing will serve this end except a brainfelt and heartfelt religion. Peacefulness depends on interior qualities more than environment and external circumstance. It is possible to have everything and at the same time to practically have nothing. It is also possible to travel a rugged and wearying path with a light heart. It does not follow that you are well off because you are rich, but you may, if you will, be well off in spite of carking cares and strange uncertainties.

Everything depends on your outlook toward God and your outlook at yourself. If you can see a dim something beyond the stars when you look forth, and something worth your attention when you examine your own soul, you have the foundations on which to build a grand and glorious life. The riches disclosed by these two vision are beyond computation. In the consciousness that your destiny outreaches the limits of time, that you are capable of appreciating the spirit of the Christ and approximating it in the economy of life, as He desired you to do, you become to a large extent independent of what is called good or ill fortune. You have a priceless comfort in your heart which nothing can purchase and of which no cunning theft can depossit you, for the most secure of all your possessions is the ideal which you hope to attain. While it might be rash to assert that you can become wholly indifferent to circumstances, it is safe to declare that if you have a comforting faith you can be infinitely happier as a poor man than you could be with all the wealth of the world at command if you had no faith at all. It is not the soft bed which gives refreshment sleep, but a quiet conscience and a serene trust. We know this to our sorrow. It is what you have in your heart not what you have in your pocket, that makes you enviable. A large bank account has a certain magic in it, but if you hope to find therein the means of happiness you will be disappointed. The uncertainty of life has its source in heart beats.

You wrong yourself and waste both time and energy in accumulation as the sole aim of life. It is impossible that God can have so arranged the world that money will buy what the poor need as the rich. The most desirable things must be within reach of the multitude, and I am sure that though you toil from day to day and bend your shoulders to the burden of hardship you ought to have and you can have, great comforts and great joys. True religion is truly democratic. It favors no class, but gives as plentifully to the unlettered as to the learned.

The picture of an ideal life which Christ offers us is wholly enticing and alluring—a Father who listens to every cry of your heart, an Elder Brother who trod the path of anguish and sorrow, and who tells us how we may possess our souls in peace; a heaven in which there will be no more partings; for in its wide territory there is no graveyard; a host of angels with whom we may communicate and whose influence is around about us from day to day. Can any soul ask for more? What is there else that you can desire? With these faiths you are armed and equipped for whatever exigency may occur. I do not say that life will not still be a very serious business taxing their resources at times to their utmost; but I venture to assure you that you will have many comforts which can be earned, but not bought, and a certain quietness of soul which his alone can give.

What's the Use?

Don't coddle up a woe. Don't think about your foe.

What's the use? It only makes you worry, and keeps you in a hurry.

What's the use? There's no excuse.

Don't talk about your wrong; it makes it last too long.

What's the use? It only keeps you weeping, and hinders you from sleeping.

What's the use? There's no excuse.

Don't talk of your mishap, it's only one more rap.

What's the use? It only can annoy, and your peace of mind destroy.

What's the use? There's no excuse.

Don't talk of your affliction, it only causes friction.

What's the use? It opens an old sore, and worries you the more.

What's the use. There's no excuse.

Don't talk about your sorrow, trouble you only borrow.

What's the use? It only makes you sad, and sour and glum and mad.

What's the use? There's no excuse.

Raved About Her.

A YOUNG LOVER WHO WAS CONTINUALLY SOLILOQUIZING.

He is like all lovers and can talk of nothing besides the young woman to whom he is devoted. He sat in the club window smoking and thinking of her, then suddenly he blurted out, directing his remarks to the man who was deep in the news of an evening paper.

"Lovely girl!"

"Who?" asked the man with the paper.

The lover looked so indignant at this that the other hastened to rectify his mistake.

"Oh, yes," he exclaimed, "I forgot you were engaged!"

The lover was appalled.

Wonderful girl!" he said. "I find more to admire in her every day. She is not only beautiful, but she is courageous and has nerves of steel."

"Ah, yes," said the man with the paper, absentmindedly.

It's in her beauty, however, that she excels," went on the lover. "Her neck and throat are like chiseled marble."

"Ah, yes," said the man with the paper again.

"And then think of her golden hair."

"I do," said the man with the paper in an offhand way.

"And her silvery voice."

"I've noticed it."

"And her ruby lips."

"Quite so."

"And her pearly teeth."

"You've spoken of them before."

"These hot eyes are like diamonds, too, and her conversation is full of sparkling gems."

The man who had been trying to read threw down his paper.

"Why not start up business with her?"

"What are you talking about?" asked the lover.

"Business, plain business," returned the other. "I always have an eye to business. That's what made me what I am, and from your description I can't help thinking that in that girl you've got enough to stock a jewelry store. Why not try it?"

Since then they have not spoken.—Chicago Post.

Irving W. Larimore, physician director of Y. M. C. A., Des Moines, Iowa, says he can conscientiously recommend Chamberlain's Pain Balm to athletes, gymnasts, bicyclists, football ball players and the profession in general for bruises, sprains and dislocations; also for soreness and stiffness of the muscles. When applied before the parts become swollen it will effect a cure in one half the time usually required.

Husband—"Yes, certainly, take this fifty and keep the change for pin money."

—New York Times.

John G. Manzer, Editor of the Sunbeam, Seligman, Mo., who named Grover Cleveland for the Presidency in Nov., 1882, while he was Mayor of Buffalo, N. Y., is enthusiastic in his praise of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. He says: "I have used it for the past five years and consider it the best preparation of the kind in the market. It is a staple as sugar and coffee in this section. It is an article of merit and should be used in every household."

A Singular Feud.

BROTHER WHO FELL OUT ABOUT A MATRIMONIAL ARRANGEMENT.

"The queerest feud I ever heard of," said M. C. Allen, the well-known sportsman, "is one that I encountered while hunting in southern Humboldt county. I noticed our guide carried a repeating rifle, a big revolver and a knife half as long as his leg. He proceeded with the greatest caution, and appeared to be on guard continually. I knew there were no hostile Indians in that country, and my curiosity was aroused. Finally I asked him what the trouble was.

"Oh, I goot look out for some fellow," he replied, in his Swedish dialect.

"What's the trouble, anyway," I inquired.

"Oh, outtie much. Maybe a pig man mit a goon watch me pretty close, too."

"Who is he?"

"Oh! he is my brudder. Las' time I fix him plenty, you bet. He come back, now, and maybe he fix me."

"Inquiry developed the fact that the brothers had settled in Humboldt some years ago, and our guide, who was married, had left a pretty sister-in-law in Sweden. The brothers talked the matter over, and finally agreed that the married one should send for the girl, and when she reached this country he would give his old wife to his brother and take his sister-in-law.

"The girl arrived in due time, but she was so much prettier than the unmarried brother had expected that he was loath to accept his brother's cast-off wife. Finally, he married the girl, and then refused to compromise the breach of contract by paying what his brother had expected to get her to this coast. A quarrel followed, and the guide pinked his brother in the shoulder with a rifle ball and landed him in the hospital for three months. The other vowed vengeance and they do little now but watch the mountain trails, fully prepared to renew hostilities at a second's notice."—San Francisco Post.

A. M. Bailey, a well known citizen of Eugene, Oregon, says his wife has for years been troubled with chronic diarrhoea and used many remedies with little relief until she tried Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, which has cured her sound and well. Give it a trial and you will be surprised at the prompt relief it affords. 25 and 50 cent bottles.
