THE BOYS.
Don't Complain of Them, But Be Patient With Him, for He is a Most Important Factor in a Country Where the boys Eventually Become The Rulers.
Boys are heretofore, complained of, untrouled over; and yet what would we do without them? Why, bless you, the world would be a stagnating place without the boys, who run errands for us and give us useful neighborhood news far better than the local newspaper does. The boy runs after fires, wagons, street rows, processions, and anything else that has noise and confusion in it. The boy is noisy, confusing, mischievous, and yet the boy is useful. He can tell you where the minister, the doctor, the grocer, and especially the baker, can be found. Are some of the family worrying to you, with their poor appetites and their dissatisfaction with the food placed upon the table? Let the boy sit down, and the bread and butter will be splendid, and the other food too good for anything. No poor appetite with him. He knows nothing of such matters as that. Is your little daughter becoming vain of her appearance and her dress? Not so the boy; he dons his new suit with some evidences of pleasure, but it is soon forgotten. He has his hat and ball-balls and his kite, and his contrives to take his mind from such trifles. Is he a fine looking little fellow, with his ruddy cheeks, his sparkling eyes, his boyish brow and his merry face, with the rings of gold brown hair all about it? If so, he is wholly oblivious to that fact, and has very little personal vanity. Does he climb a tall tree to get a squirrel or bird, and make a great rent in his jacket sleeve or a wrinkle-hawk in his trousers? We own it is provoking; but his complacency over the matter is because he counts trifling things of little moment when some great end is in view. The boy has pockets crammed with strings, ginger nuts, and taffy, and is always ready to divide with a comrade. Don't complain of him, but be patient with him, for he is a most important factor in a country where the boys eventually become the rulers. Let him shout, laugh, sing, and be merry; for all too soon the marks of care will come to his face, and he, no longer a boy, will be bearing the burdens of life.—A. D. Walker, in Christian Intelligence.

HURRY UP!
Everywhere one hears that expression "hurry up!" It is a genuine Americanism expressive of the mind with which we live. Nothing is swift enough for us. We race against steam and lightning and find them slow. We grudge the time given to eating and rushing through meals as though life depended upon our haste. Life does depend on our haste, but not in that sense. Look at the obituary columns of the papers and see how many prominent men are carried away by "stomach trouble," "acute indigestion" and other related diseases. Their lives have in general been sacrificed to the haste and rush of business which overlooked the fact that food can only nourish the body when digested and assimilated and that the digestive and assimilative processes are the hurried. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, cures diseases of the stomach and the associated organs of digestion and nutrition. The source of all physical strength is food, properly digested and perfectly assimilated. By enabling the perfect digestion and assimilation of food "Golden Medical Discovery" increases and enriches the blood supply and sends new strength to every organ of the body.
"I was at one time as I thought almost at death's door," writes Mr. J. H. Bell, of Lenoir, Va. "I was confined to my house and part of the time to my bed. I had taken quantities of medicines but they only seemed to feed the disease. But I found that Golden Medical Discovery has cured me and today I am stronger than I have been for twenty years. I am now forty-three years old."
P. S. Dr. Pierce's Medical Advertiser sends free to you on receipt of stamps to pay expense of mailing only. Send thirty-one one-cent stamps for cloth bound book or twenty-one stamps for paper covers to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

SHERIDAN'S MEETING WITH OLD MAMMY.
Virginia Darcy Granted Complete Victory Over the Enemy.
The following story from Virginia concerning General Phil Sheridan is said to be both new and true:
General Phil Sheridan was resting from a raid during the war in camp near a fine old mansion in Virginia. The former master of the mansion had been killed in the battle of Manassas. "Mammy," who had been the mistress' chief comforter when this event occurred, had practically taken charge of the plantation and had run things pretty much to suit herself. Sheridan's soldiers had taken every sound horse on the place, including two carriage horses. After the raid was over "Mammy" entered the house to find her mistress and the two children weeping bitterly. "Mammy asked: "Child, what in de worl' is dematter?" The lady replied between sobs: "Mammy, they've taken the carriage horses, and an officer tells me we'll never get them again unless I take de oath." "Den, chile, take de oath. Tain't no bery bad, is it? You tuk lie widout puckerin' yo' mouf when yo' was a dese, and now you brace up and take de oath." "Oh, Mammy," the lady wailed, "I can't do it. I don't think Jack would like it." "Can't see, honey, what Massa Jack's got to do wif it. He's dead and buried. But if you can't take de oath, I'll go see if I can't do it fer you. Anyhow, I see gwine to investigate Marsa Phil Sheridan and git them carriage horses back" if I has to pretend to take pizen to do it. "Mammy" put on her brightest bandanna handkerchief, a clean white apron, and started for the camp, which was about a mile distant. In about an hour "Mammy" walked back into the large yard in front of the house, leading a carriage horse by each hand, each one wearing a brand-new halter around his neck. The mistress saw her coming and met her at the front gate. "How on earth did you get them, "Mammy?" inquired the lady. "Mammy's black face was damp with perspiration and her fat chest fairly panted for breath. She said: "Lem me set down on de grass, honey, and catch my bery. Set down by me as I'll tell you all about it. I got to de camp and I asked two or three men in uniforms with muskets in dey han's to tell me whar I could find Marsa Phil Sheridan. "What do you want wif him?" "Dat's my business," says I. After skirminshin' round I foun' de general's tent. I walks in and draps my best courtesy. "Sarvent, Marsa General," I says. "What kin I do for you, madam?" he says. "I ain't no madam, Marsa General; I see plain ole black mammy. I seed a twinkle in his eye, and he says: "Well, Mammy, what kin I do for you?" "An' bless yo' soul, honey, he said dat 'mammy' jest as natural as if he had been a born gentleman. Den I spainced dat his soldiers had stole my mista's carriage horses, as well as ev'ry other good horse on de place. I tol' him he might keep the other horses if I couldn't git 'em out of him, but dat I must have the carriage horses, for my mistis was a lady and her foot wau't 'quiesced wid de grass." "But your mistis is a rebel," said Marsa General. "Den I says: 'I don't know nothin', 'bout no rebel, Marsa General. I jes knows dat my mistis' foot ain't 'quiesced wid de grass, and I'e bound' to hab dese carriage horses back.' "Wid dat Marsa General laugh and hollered to a man not very far off, all dressed up in blue clothes and brass, and says: "Come here major, here's something fer yo' to hear." "But when Marsa General said dat I seed a twinkle in his eye, and I knowed something I'd said hit him in de right place. De major erms, an' I tole 'em bofe de same tale. As I got through the major and the general laughed, and de general says: "Well, Mammy, if you recognise the carriage horses you shall have 'em." "And they ris up, bofe of 'em, to go wid me to de pre whar the soldiers had put the horses dey stole. As we went 'long I says: "Marsa General of cose I knows my own horses, but den hoses gwine to recognise me de minute dey slap dere eyes on me." "And 'fo' God, de minute dey saw me comin' twixt dem two fine white men dey pricks up dey ears an' trotted up to me jes as natural as if dey had been circus horses. And, mistis, de general tole one of de soldiers to put brand-new halters on dese horses' necks and hab 'em over to Mammy, and here dey is, and I ain't took no oath nor nothin' else."

THE BATCHELOR.
Behold the bachelor! His hair That once was brown is gray; No laughing loved ones claim his care Nor charm his woes away. He has himself alone to please, No other's fingers search The pockets in his clothes, and he's Ne'er dragged away to church. "Ah, poor old man!" I hear you say; "Somewhere the grass grows o'er Some one to whom his heart today Turns sadly as of yore. He merely lingers here as one Who is a transient guest; His joys are fled, his work is done, He longs to be at rest— He longs to bid the world adieu. To cross the river where He is to meet the loved one who Is waiting for him there." Ah, well! Perhaps 'tis so; He may have loved and lost; His breast may be the haunt of woe, His soul be tempest tossed; But though his heart is buried deep Below some slanting stone, Where some one long has lain asleep, If he could be alone For just about an hour or two With just the one, I'll bet He'd fire up and learn to do Some fancy stepping yet.

A FEW PLAIN TRUTHS.
As an ear trumpet the average woman is not a success. When a girl is up in arms the young man in the case seems to enjoy it. Happy are they who look before they marry, and overlook afterward. Nothing so enhances the value of a thing as the difficulty in obtaining it. Some men stand on principle and some others probably would if they had it to stand on. Every woman knows that she talks too much, but what she doesn't know is a remedy for it. Sharper than the tooth of a serpent is the sarcasm of one who has no sympathy with human vanity. When a man is under a cloud of debt it's rather difficult for his creditors to see the silver lining. The clock generally strikes the half hour when you wake up in the night and want to know what time it is. Life is full of ups and downs at a boarding house; you have to put up with what they give you and come down for it in advance. When you want a physic that is mild and gentle, easy to take and pleasant in effect use Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. Price 25c. Samples free. Every box guaranteed. For sale by W. M. Cohen, druggist.

MR. WHEELER GOT RID OF HIS RHEUMATISM.
"During the winter of 1898 I was so lame in my joints, in fact all over my body, that I could hardly hobble around, when I bought a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm. From the first application I began to get well, and was cured and have worked steadily all the year.—R. Wheeler, Norwood, N. Y. For sale by W. M. Cohen.
No man is ever perfectly sure of a girl's love until she declares she hates him.

DON'T LOOK FOR FLAWS.
Don't look for flaws as you go through life; And even when you find them It is wise and kind to be somewhat blind, And look for the virtue behind them. For the cloudiest night has a hint of the light Somewhere in its shadows hiding; It is better by far to hunt for a star Than the spots on the sun abiding.
The current of life runs ever away To the bosom of God's great ocean; Don't set your face 'gainst the river's course And think to alter its motion. Don't waste a curse on the universe— Remember it lived before you. Don't butt at the storm with your puny form, But bend and let it fly o'er you.
The world will never adjust itself To suit your whim to the letter; Some things must go wrong your whole life long, And the sooner you know it the better. It is folly to fight with the Infinite And go under at last in the wrestle.

CASTORIA.
The Kind You Have Always Bought Bears the Signature of Dr. J. C. Fletcher
Some young women have soul yearnings worse than the stomach ache.
The man who kicks himself for having made a fool of himself adds injury to insult.
Rheumatic pains are the cries of protest and distress from tortured muscles, aching joints and excited nerves. The blood has been poisoned by the accumulation of waste matter in the system, and can no longer supply the pure and health sustaining food they require. The whole system feels the effect of this acid poison; and until the blood has been purified and brought back to a healthy condition will the aches and pains cease.
Mrs. James Bell, of 707 Ninth street, N. E. Washington, D. C., writes as follows: "A few months ago I had an attack of Sciatic Rheumatism in its worst form. For three weeks I was unable to move. I was attended by one of the most able doctors in Washington, who is also a member of the faculty of a leading medical college here. He told me to continue his prescriptions and I would get well. After having it filled twelve times without receiving the slightest benefit, I declined to continue his treatment any longer. Having heard of Dr. J. C. Fletcher's Specific for Rheumatism, I decided, almost in despair, to give the medicine a trial, and after I had taken a few bottles I was able to hobble around on crutches, and very soon thereafter had no use for them at all. I have never again been troubled. All the distressing pains have left me, my appetite has returned, and I am happy to be again restored to perfect health. The great vegetable purifier and tonic, is the ideal remedy in all rheumatic troubles. There are no opiates or minerals in it to disturb the digestion and lead to enfeebled habits. We have prepared a special book on Rheumatism which every sufferer from this painful disease should read. It is the most complete and interesting book of the kind in existence. It will be sent free to any one desiring it. Write our physicians fully and freely about your case. We make no charge for medical advice. THE SWIFT SPECIFIC CO., ATLANTA, GA.

CONSTIPATION
"I have gone 14 days at a time without a movement of the bowels, not being able to move them except by using hot water injections. Chronic constipation has seven years placed me in this terrible condition; during that time I did everything I heard of but never found any relief; until one day I used Chamberlain's Cathartic, now have from one to three passages a day; and if I don't I would give $100 for each movement. It is such a relief."

SOUTHERN GIRL OF YESTERDAY.
There Was Fine Stuff in Her—She Was Noble And Constant.
Of that Southern girl of long ago I write in reverence. Her beauty, her virtue, her tenderness, her repose, her loyalty to her own, are heritages of every man who knew her in the flesh, or knows her by tradition. There was fine, strong stuff in her. She was nobly constant. I am not old, yet I remember "the fierce South cheering on her sons" and the women at home, bearing the most savage of the brute, steady, industrious, uncomplaining, grieved for the bright blood that was spilt, yet locking their lips upon fear and longing, and bidding father, husband, son or lover to the fray. I remember coffee made from bits of sweet potato dried in the sun; sassafras root dug by negro boys as a substitute for tea; a hundred simple herbs which took the place of compound medicines, and bread made from Indian corn, sometimes salter, and many, many pitiful expedients to fill the mouths of hungry children. I remember these things, but I do not remember that any woman of them ever repined. Whatever may be said for or against the men of the South, the women did not falter. This woman, who picked lint to be sent to the front, "ran the plantation" while its owner was facing Grant, taught the little negroes their alphabet, and had prayers each evening in the big sitting-room, is the grandmother of the girl of today. I talked to one not long ago—white-haired, blue eyed, serene, with the presence of a duchess and the heart of a child, a widow since Chancellorsville. While we talked the laughing of grandchildren sounded from the "front yard" and "Aunt Prissy," black, bent, and as old as her mistress, brought in some yellow puffs-balls of chickens in a basket and showed them with immense pride. I said, "You must have found it hard to take up the work at the close of the war, Mrs. Blank, and manage the place with almost every condition changed?" The old lady said simply, "Why shouldn't I? I never put a skirt over my head with my own hands until 1864. But I did it."—H. S. Canfield in the October Woman's Home Companion.
W. M. Cohen, the druggist, will refund you your money if you are not satisfied after using Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. They cure disorders of the stomach, biliousness, constipation and headache. Price 25 cents. Samples free.
