INTERVIEWING HILL.

Bachelor Statesman Talks of Domestic Life.

"I was in Hill's room at the Kansas City national convention of 1900," said a member of the group, "when there came a quiet little knock on the door. 'Come in,' said the Senator, in expectation of seeing a delegation from Texas or a political leader from Alaska, offering him the Presidential nomination on a golden platter—Bryan's friends having gobbled the silver one.

"But in place of these free-handed gentlemen, there stood a demure little woman of about 30, with notebook and pencil in hand. 'I have been sent, Senator Hill,' she said, in a voice in which there was a little hint of fear, 'by the Kansas City—' to write you, personally, and tell about your looks, and your domestic and home life. Now, won't you be good, and tell me all you know?'"

"I never saw Hill so used up as he was at that moment. 'I am afraid you will have to excuse me, madam, or rather miss,' he said. 'There is nothing to be said about me. You will have to consult my photographs for my looks—I have no habits; I am not what you would call a domestic man—in short, suppose you go out and ask some of my friends? There is not a thing I can tell about myself.'"

"Then the young woman looked up and said: 'I suppose Mr. Croker could tell all about you?'"

"'Oh, yes,' said Hill, 'he's just the man; if you can get him to let himself loose, he'll tell you more about me in a minute than I could in a week.'"

"But let me ask you one question, Senator. Did Mrs. Hill come with you?'"

"'No, miss,' responded Hill, without a hint of a smile; 'Mrs. Hill did not accompany me on this trip. She don't take any interest in politics.'"

"I am sorry that I did not secure the story that girl wrote. It must have been interesting."—Cleveland Plain Dealer

THE OLD FASHIONED BIBLE.

How painfully pleasing the fond recollection Of youthful connections and innocent joy; When bless'd with parental advice and affections, Surrounded with mercies—with peace from on high! I still view the chairs of my father and mother, The seats of their offspring as ranged on each hand; And the richest of books which excelled every other, The family Bible that lay on the stand. The old-fashioned Bible; the dear, blessed Bible; The family Bible that lay on the stand.

That Bible, the volume of God's inspiration, At morn and at ev'ning could yield us delight; And the prayer of our sire was a sweet invocation For mercy by day and for safety thro' night; Our hymn of thanksgiving with harmony swelling, Has raised us from earth to that rapturous dwelling Described in the Bible that lay on the stand. The old-fashioned Bible, the dear blessed Bible; The family Bible that lay on the stand.

Ye scenes of tranquility, long have we parted; My hopes almost gone, and my parents no more; In sorrow and sadness I live, broken-hearted, And wander unknown on a far distant shore; Yet how can I doubt a dear Saviour's protection, Forgetful of gifts from his bountiful hand! O let me with patience receive his correction, And think of the Bible that lay on the stand. The old-fashioned Bible, the dear blessed Bible; The family Bible that lay on the stand.

AN OLD, YOUNG FELLOW.

F. L. STANTON.

No doubtin' of the sayin'—though it comes from fur away—
A fellow never older than what he feels today!
Do you think I clean forgot
My youth an' dreams of it?
You jest tune up that fiddle, an' you'll find me dancin' yit!

You reckon I've forgotten her—the sweetheart of the past—
An' how I held the hand o' her, an' whispered, "Love 'll last!"
You give me, now, the chance,
What these young 'uns romp an' prance,
An' I'll take her sweet gran'children, an' I'll swing 'em in the dance!

No use in givin' over—Though my young days are gone,
Praise God, I'm in the ring yit, an' still a-holdin' on!
Do you think I clean forgot?
That I've lost my will an' wit?
You jest tune up that fiddle, an' you'll find me dancin' yit!

A REMARKABLE RECORD.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has a remarkable record. It has been in use for over thirty years, during which time many million bottles have been sold and used. It has long been the standard and main reliance in the treatment of croup in thousands of homes, yet during all this time no case has ever been reported to the manufacturers in which it failed to effect a cure. When given as soon as the child becomes hoarse or even as soon as the croupy cough appears, it will prevent the attack. It is pleasant to take, many children like it. It contains no opium or other harmful substance and may be given as confidently to a baby as to an adult.

A NEW WAY.

How New York Women Are Holding Their Skirts.

New York women are holding their skirts in a new way, and wearing dainty little ties with high heels, and showing a gleam of one ankle—very discreetly. It does look Parisian, and it's a very fascinating sight to catch these shy little displays—two or three to a block—whenver you are out.

"You want to know how it is done, so that the effect is just the same with all the women?"

"Well, first, there is the way the skirts are made, which is new. Instead of anybody wearing a lined skirt, everybody now wears underneath the skirt of the gown a drop skirt of silk. This drop skirt generally has three flounces, accordion-plated and of chiffon.

"On the bottom of each flounce is a chiffon ruching to make it stand out still more.

"Then, to get the best effect of all this flare out and to show the dream of a drop skirt, we have to hold up a corner in the Paris fashion. To do that just right and not a quarter of an inch too much is a woman's triumph.

"If the lifting was an inch indiscreet she would see women staring at her instead of giving her a glance of approval.

"The way we do it, of course, before the long mirror before we go out. With my left hand I catch the outer skirt, lift it a couple of inches, then grab through at the drop skirt and carry that up till—it is just right.

"What do I do if I have to let go? Well, I try not to let go. But if I do I have my instinct, and there are the deep pliate windows that are every woman's mirror.

"And if I can't get a glance in at one of those I know just how much of my shoe ought to show as I look down—that measures the height of the lift. With me—see—looking straight down, all I can see of my left foot is up to the buckle.

"Then the stockings, too, are part of the effect which you remember from Paris—invariably open work. Only here in New York you don't see a correctly dressed woman wearing any but a black stocking.

"Besides we don't wear shoes of the big walking last any more, except in the country. The little shoe, with the high heels, is essential to the pretty effect. It isn't every woman who can venture to do this; she who can—well, she doesn't have to study hard how to hold her skirts.

"As to all that cloud of lingerie that the Parisienne knows how to flash so dexterously, you will never see that in Fifth avenue. The self-consciousness of that is too obvious to commend the trick to an American woman's taste. The American woman cares too much to preserve her mystery."

"Yes, I know about that," the man put in, "refinement differentiates all of you from the Paris woman. But, nevertheless, you certainly show a vivacity on the street this fall which I never saw before here."

"But it is a better vivacity than you ever saw in Paris, for it's the real thing. When you see a New York woman walking down here all a-tingle with life and working hard to keep her face impassive do you know what makes it? It isn't drugs—it isn't any stimulant she has taken—it is a message.

"That's so cheap now that every woman can have it at home. Some have it every day. I have it three times a week.

"A message woman comes and rubs every muscle and every joint in my body. When I get up and go out on the street I feel as if I wanted to leap and run. Every drop of blood is thrilling.

"No champagne ever gave such a glorious feeling as the sensation of coming from the treatment into the living air. To have out-of-door life all summer and this exquisite physical toning all the rest of the year, as well as physical culture to give suppleness of movement—is it a wonder, sir, that you think that women have a new kind of liveliness, especially the women you meet along this avenue?"

"See that girl coming now, quick. See how she holds her skirts; that trick came from Paris. So did the buckles on those miles of shoes. But she wears a Cuban heel, which enables her to walk freely, though it is as high as a French heel.

"Did you notice how gorgeously she carried herself? That wasn't French and it wasn't English. That's what makes her the envy of Paris and London both. She didn't copy it in either place.

"She suggests this fall a little more of Paris than of London; but both would copy her if they could. She has as much art as a woman can stand, and she has a physical glory that she knows how to temper down till the balance is perfect.

"American women have been a long time getting to this point, and we're going further. It won't be a mere fashion we will set, but Paris and London will come here to get the classic type of modern style. It is already beginning to be acknowledged over there. Any woman will tell you that who has been over this season."—New York Sun.

HE HAD A BIG HEART.

An Old Miner Who Was Mark Twain's Ideal Gentleman.

"The finest gentleman I ever knew," said Mark Twain in a chat with a reporter one day, "was an old California miner who could barely write his own name. He was a forty-niner, and he and his partner had struck it rich in the early days. The old man had neither chick nor child, and he had worked hard all his life, and when he did get his money he hardly knew what to do with it.

"He did not try to jump into society or to push his way with the 'big fellows' there. He continued to live with the people whom he had associated with all his life, and many an act of kindness was done, many a wandering son and father saved, many a sorrowing woman's burden lightened and her home brightened by an unknown donor whose identity with the old man was only known to a few.

"It was different with the partner. He had a wife and two daughters with social aspirations, and after a whole lot of pushing and hauling and shoving they landed in society. The expense was too much of a drain on the husband's purse, and he speculated, with the inevitable outcome. He lost his entire fortune and then shot himself. Then it was that the true gentleness of the old man showed itself. The widow and her daughters had no one to turn to but him, and he did not disappoint them. He saved their home for them when everything else went under the hammer, and he maintained them in all the regal style to which they were accustomed, although he still lived in his old lodgings. He lived long enough to see both of the girls well married and the mother carefully settled for life. Then he died in a charity hospital in San Francisco. He had spent every penny he owned on the family of his partner."—St. Louis Republic.

JERUSALEM IN MINIATURE.

Proposed Model of the Holy City for the World's Fair, to Be held at St. Louis.

The Rev. E. Morris Ferguson, general secretary of the New Jersey Sunday School Association writes as follows to the World's Fair authorities concerning the proposed model of Jerusalem for the Exposition of 1904.

"Singularly enough, the Sunday school forces recently in convention at Denver, have resolved and the resolution will probably prevail, to hold the next World's Sunday School Convention in the actual city of Jerusalem, probably in May 1904. The advertising of this occasion will reach several million scholars and teachers in the United States and Canada, to say nothing of the rest of the world. Of the great number who will hear of this gathering and long to attend, not more than six or eight hundred, at the outside, will be actually able to go; and at least a hundred thousand Bible students, whose wish in this respect cannot be gratified, will learn with enthusiasm that a miniature Jerusalem, a faithful likeness of the real, awaits them at St. Louis as one of the reasons for attending your Exposition. To thousands this will be a determining point.

"I know the Sunday School world well, both in my own field of New Jersey and throughout the international field. I am sure that you will make no mistake in counting on the living interest of Sunday School workers, provided the exposition of Jerusalem is large enough and complete enough to be a worthy substitute for an actual visit to the Holy City. Give them, twenty acres, if it can possibly be done."

to most women is a term of anxiety, serious thought and sweet anticipation.

With the cessation of pain necessary to childbirth, there comes calm nerves, sleep and recuperation.

MOTHER'S FRIEND

does diminish the pain accompanying maternity. With its aid mothers can do and bring healthy, sweet disposition and ideal babies into the world.

Among the manifold aids to childbirth Mother's Friend has grown in popularity and gained a prestige among rich women as well as poor; it is found and welcomed in the mansion as well as in the cabin.

By lessening the mother's agony of mind and diminishing pain a healthy influence is wrought upon the child, and instead of peevish, ill-tempered and sickly forms you have healthy, laughing humanity, remaining a blessing ever to you and her country.

CONSTIPATION

"I have gone 14 days at a time without a movement of the bowels, not being able to move them except by using hot water injections. Chronic constipation for seven years almost made me ill. I tried every medicine, but nothing did me any good. I now have from one to three passages a day, and I feel rich! I would give $1000 for the medicine. It is such a relief."
