OU can't help the baby, parson, But still I want ye to go Down an' look in upon her, An' read an' pray, you know. Only last week she was skippin' round A pullin' my whiskers and hair, A climbin' to the table Into her little high chair.

"The first night that she took it, When her little cheeks grew red, When she kissed good night to papa, And went away to bed— Sez she, 'It headache, papa, Be better in mornin'—by; An' somethin' in how she said it Just made me want to cry.

"But the mornin' brought the fever, And her little hands were hot, An' the pretty red of her little cheeks Grew into a crimson spot. But she laid there jest ez patient Ez ever a woman could, Takin' whatever we give her

"The days are terrible long an' slow, An' she's growin' wus in each; An' now she's jest a slippin' Clear away out ov our reach.
Every night when I kiss her,
Tryin' hard not to cry,
She says in a voice that kills me— 'Be better in the mornin'-bye!"

"She can't get through the night, parson, So I want ye to come an' pray, And talk with mother a little-You'll know jest what tu say. Not that the baby needs it, Nor that we make any complaint That God seems to think He's needin' The smile of a little saint.'

I walked along with the corporal, To the door of his humble home, To which the silent messenger Before had already come; And if he had been a titled prince, I would not have been honored more, Than I was with his heartfelt welcome To his lowly cottage door.

Night falls again in the cottage; They move in silence and dread Around the room where the baby Lies panting upon her bed. 'Does baby know papa, darling?"
And she moves her little face, With answer that she knows him; But scarcely a visible trace.

All her wonderful infantile beauty Remained as it was before The unseen, silent messenger Had waited at the door. "Papa-kiss-baby-I's-so-tired."
The man bows low his face, And two swollen hands are lifted In baby's last embrace.

And into her father's grizzled beard And into her father's grizzled beard
The little red fingers cling!
While her husky whispered tenderness
Tears from a rock would wring.
"Baby—is—so—sick—papa—
But—don't—you—to—cry!"
The little hands fall on the coverlet, 'Be-better-in-mornin'-bye!

And night around baby is falling, Settling down dark and dense; Does God need their darling in Heaven That He must carry her hence? I prayed with tears in my voice, As the corporal solemnly knelt, With such grief as never before His great warm heart had felt.

Oh! frivolous men and women! Do you know that around you, and nigh— Alike from the humble and haughty Alike from the humble and mangary
Goeth up evermore the cry;
"My child, my precious, my darling,
How can I let you die?"
Oh! hear ye the white lips whisper—
, "Be—better—in—mornin'—bye!"

THE UNSPOKEN WORD.

We Take For Granted Too Many Things.

It was the hour when the street was full of weary workers returning from the day's labor says the Christian Work. A face. Somebody was coming surely, and word at the right time. How much a stantly the little girl came to his side and and how little it costs us to give it ! looked up into his face with a loving deatly too timid to speak if the father there is no special occasion? did not. The person who had been interested in this meeting followed on and be many times when thoughtless words to the father, "Why don't you speak to of others. And there are also many the little girl and tell her you are glad little occasions when the word of cheer is she came to meet you, and take her hand?" "Oh, she knows it without saying it," he replied in a gruff voice. Yes, that is the way so much cheer that would make life so much happier and easier for others is lost; the words are not spoken. We take it for granted our dear ones know the unspoken words we ought to speak. We do not say them when we should. In our homes with our loved ones how often we forget to say the word of commendation that is made in our behalf!

How many there are in the world who have unselfishly tried to do their best for us, to whom no words of commendation have been given!

A TIMELY SUGGESTION.

This is the season of the year when the prudent and careful housewife replenishes her supply of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It is certain to be needed before the winter is over, and results are much more prompt and and satisfactory when it is kept at hand and given as soon as the cold is contracted and before it has become settled in the system. In almost every instance a severe cold may be warded off by taking this remedy freely as soon as the first indication of the cold appears. There is no danger in giving it to children for it contains no harmful substance. It is pleasant to take-both adults and children like it. Buy it and you will get the best. It always cures. DOUBT AND DEVOTION.

Thomas has many followers in his doubts; how few in his devotion! saw through a glass darkly, but he felt with his heart the heart of God, and, doubting, he went in the way of Christ. Our double we cannot control, but our love may be freely given, and he who So many little hurts we get loves and follows in life and service is the From corners here and there true disciple and will find the way of But one sad truth if life I've found God leading through unknown dangers to the Cavalry of suffering and finally to The only folks who really wound the Olivet of ascension into the presence of God.

HOW TO PREVENT CROUP. It will be good news to the mothers of small children to learn that croup can be prevented. The first sign of croup is hourseness. A day or two before the attack the child becomes hourse. This is soon followed by a peculiar rough cough. Give Chamberlain's Cough Love does not grow on every tree Remedy freely as soon as the child becomes boarse, or even after the rough cough appears, and it will dispel all symptoms of croup. In this way all danger and anxiety may be avoided. This remedy is used by many thousands The only ones who gives us pain of mothers and has never been known to fail. It is, in fact, the only remedy that can always be depended upon and that is pleasant and safe to take. For sale at W. M. Coben's drug store, Weldon, N. C.

A SURETY.

"Somehow," said the girl in blue, an't belp wishing I hed socepted him." "Why dear?" asked the girl in gray. "Why, he swore that he'd never be sappy sgain, and I'm afraid he is."

"Ah, yes," commented the girl in gray reflectively. "As matters are now you can't be sure that he isn't, but if you'd married him you could make sure of it." -Chicago Post.

There are lives of wearisome monoto ny which a word of kindness can relieve. There is suffering which words of sym pathy can make more endurable. And often, even in the midst of wealth and luxury, there are those who listen and long in vain for some expression of disinterested kindness. Speak to those while they can hear and be helped by you, for the day may come when all our expressions of love due them for kindness and self sacrifice and appreciation will be unheard. Imagine yourself standing beside their last resting place. Think of the things you could have said of them while they were yet living. Then go and tell them now.
