THE PARABLE OF THE CORN.

THE EVIDENCE OF GROWTH IN THE SOIL AS WE MAY SEE IT IN THE SEED.

There is life in the dry grain of corn as certainly as in the growing stalk. But in the former we see no life, not even the evidence of it. We may put it under the microscope, but we discover no life. We may shave it down, flake by flake, but we cannot see it nor tell where it has gone. But the life is there notwithstanding our failure. Only by adversity can it be made to reveal itself; and its highest manifestation can come only through death and dissolution. Heat and moisture will call forth the latent life, but not until that yellow tubercle is placed in the earth does the matured possibility of the seed manifest itself.

Have we not here a parable? Man has a soul, but who has seen it, or felt it, or touched it? Can we, by any known process, lay that soul bare to the world? Will our most powerful microscopes magnify it? Will our X-ray disclose it? You may take this body down, part by part. You may discover every member from its fellow. You may uncover every ligament and nerve and artery. Can the scalpel uncover the soul? Has the operator ever seen it as he laid open the body? Has the young physician in the dissecting room ever found it? But the soul is in the body as truly as life is in the grain of corn.

Both are invisible by any known device of man.

We may see the evidence of growth in the soul as we may see it in the seed. In both cases the life is revealed mainly by sacrifice and surrender. In both the fullest glory comes after death, and neither the seed nor the one hand nor the body on the other ever beholds the highest development of its own inherent life. That lies beyond the dissolution. And will not our postmortem life be as much greater and grander than this life as the maturing stalk with its green leaves, its pink plumes on the end of the ripening ears, and its bending tassels, is greater and grander than the little yellow crescent of corn which was dropped into the earth?

IF YOU WANT TO KNOW WHAT AILS YOU

the U. S. mail will bring you the best medical advice for only the cost of writing materials and stamps.

Many people are their present good health to the fact that they consulted Dr. Pierce by letter, giving him all possible information about their condition, symptoms, etc., and received in return good medical advice which cost them nothing. Write to Dr. W. W. Pierce, founder of the 'Javald's' Hotel and Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y. Dr. Pierce by no means confines himself to prescribing his well known medicines. He tells you in the most common-sense way what ails you, what you ought to do, and in your particular case, and if your case does not indicate the need for this proprietary medicine, he tells you plainly and frankly what you do need, and the best possible method of improving your health. Dr. Pierce treats many chronic cases at a distance, through the mail, and all you have to do is to write him your symptoms.

Mrs. John Burge, of Mohr, West Va., writes: "When I began taking your medicine I was suffering from female weakness which had run on for four years. Took three bottles of 'Favorite Prescription,' three of Golden Medical Discovery, and two vials of Dr. Pierce's Private Remedy, and have been entirely cured. Before I began taking your medicine it seemed to me I would never see another well day, but since then I have enjoyed the best of health and happiness. I feel better and more energetic than I have ever felt at such a time, and our baby is the healthiest one of them all. I think your medicine is the best in the world."

CHEER YOUR FELLOW-MAN.

BY JAMES WHITCOMB RILEY.

Father—What is Estella going to wear when she graduates? Mother—Oh, just a simple white gown.

"That's sensible. Women dress altogether too extravagantly, to my mind. I'd like to see a member of my family in something simple—for once. How much will Estella's gown cost?"

THE POOR, IDLE RICH.

THEY WANT EVERYTHING AND ENJOY EVERYTHING.

The idle millionaire, whether he has a title or not, must follow the fashion if he would keep in the swim; and to keep in the swim is the one objective point. For him the year is subdivided, laid out in regular parades, like an Italian garden, and he must even fulfill his destiny as a gentleman of wealth and leisure; the world to him has six seasons—Paris, London, Switzerland, the shooting box in Scotland, the country house in England, the South of France. He buys a palace, lives in it awhile and goes away. So awfully dreary, don't you know? He buys a yacht; tires of it, and buys another. Nothing like the water, don't you know. The automobile craze caught him where he was weakest—for fast, faster is the word—and he is now scolding and scorching over Continental ways, having found a new and costly toy—which perhaps accounts for some of the absentees from Nice. In a word, fortune's favorite is very happy except when he is giving proof that he can spend more money than a rival yet wretched when he finds how little it brings him either of distinction or diversion.

To tell the truth, the women get on much better than the men. They still love to dance. It shows their faces. It parades their gowns. The men despise dancing. "Too fatiguing, don't you know." It is so much easier to gamble and to flirt. Your professional beauty, on the other hand, has a deal to engage her—herself, to begin with; then clothes; then diamonds; ropes of pearls; and finally, the men. If hard put to it, she can amuse herself of a rainy afternoon before her looking-glass; selfish and vain; a philosopher. When the men are tired of one another or get broke they will come after her. She knows that, and she knows them—only too well. She has learned all their tricks and their manners, and can talk s'ang and scound with them; smoke and drink with them, and often beat them at bridge or baserat.

Far my part, I would embrace no man of his happiness; not even his money; though sometimes I want to take one of these youngsters of two and three or twenty, who fancies he knows the world and that outside the titles and the dollars there is nothing in it, and tell him what an ass he is, and put him in a Keeley cure for simptoms—Henry Watterson, in the Louisville Courier-Journal.

SAVED BY DYNAMITE. Sometimes, a flaming city is saved by dynamiting a space that the fire can't cross. Sometimes, a cough hangs on so long, you feel as if nothing but dynamite would cure it. Z. T. Gray, of Calhoun, Ga., writes: "My wife had a very aggravated cough, which kept her awake nights. Two physicians could not help her, so she took Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds, which eased her cough, gave her sleep, and finally cured her. Strictly scientific cure for bronchitis and La Grippa. At W. M. Cohen's drug store, price 50c and $1.00, guaranteed. Trial bottle free.

How easily gossip starts! Ever think how little pleasure you get out of a "story" you start and how much trouble you may be making others?—Athenian Globe.

TERRIFIC RACE WITH DEATH. "Death was fast approaching," writes Ralph F. Fernandez, of Tampa, Fla., describing his fearful race with death, "as a result of liver trouble and heart disease, which had robbed me of sleep and of all interest in life. I had tried many different doctors and several medicines, but got no benefit, until I began to use Electric Bitters. So wonderful was their effect, that in three days I felt like a new man, and to day I am cured of all my troubles." Guaranteed at W. M. Cohen's drug store; price 50c.

A family with an artistic temperament isn't really as much of an addition to the neighborhood as one owning a stepladder.

A CREEPING DEATH. Blood poison creeps up towards the heart, causing death. J. E. Stearns, Belle Plaine, Miss., writes that a friend dreadfully injured his hand, which swelled up like blood poisoning. Backlen's Arnica Salve drew out the poison, healed the wound, and saved his life. Best in the world for burns and sores. 25c. at W. M. Cohen's drug store.

DEACON JONES.

Dr. Smart, waiting on Deacon Jones and knowing the popularity of that revered gentleman, and desiring to build for himself a reputation, hit upon the idea of placing a bulletin on the parast, so the friends of the deacon might see the state of his health.

"9:20 a. m.—Deacon Jones very ill.

"10:00 a. m.—Family doctor.

"12:00 m.—Family arrived. Deacon better.

"2:25 p. m.—Physician consults Dr. Good and Flood.

"3:40 p. m.—All hope gone. The end must soon come.

"4:00 p. m.—Deacon expired and went to heaven.

A traveling (knight of the grip) man passes and reads the bulletin, and adds: "4:25 p. m.—Great consternation in heaven. Deacon Jones has not arrived."

THE PRAYER FOR OUR DAILY BREAD

Joachim Miller, the poet, is fond of children. In Los Angeles one day Mr. Miller said to the little girl on his knee: "I suppose you say your prayers regularly?" "Yes," said the little girl. "I say them every night and every morning. Then she wrinkled her brow in thought, and there was silence for a moment. Finally she said: "Why wouldn't it do to pray for our bread once a week, or once a month, or even once a year? Why is it that we must ask every day for our daily bread?" In order to have it fresh, you little goose," replied the poet.—Exchange.
