WAS FOND OF LATIN.

HE NEVER MISSED AN OPPORTUNITY TO IMPRESS HIS HEARERS THAT HE WAS A GREAT LATIN SCHOLAR.

"Mose, a Florida negro, adds to his income as guide to sportsmen by ministering to the spiritual needs of a colored congregation of Baptists. He prides himself on his education and on his eloquent oratorical powers, and he never misses an opportunity of impressing his hearers into believing that he is a great Latin scholar. One evening at a fisherman's camp, he listened intently to some sportsmen who were discussing the proper pronunciation of certain Latin words and phrases.

"Pleaso, sub," he finally ventured to ask, "what am de propah meaning ob dat w'd 'aqua'?"

"'Aqua' means water," he was answered.

"An' what am foris?"

"'Foris' means strong."

"Yes, sub. Thank yo', sub," he replied, edging away after making a polite bow to his informant and then to the camp in general.

"The following Sunday Mose presided at a baptizing, and, as usual, electrified his auditors by a rousing, eloquent sermon, freely interspersed with Latin (?) words. At last, with a dramatic sweep of his arms toward the river, where a few believers were soon to be immersed, he cried out in venerational tones:

"Quo vadis, mah bredero and sistahs! I say onto yo' unless yo' be marged in de aquis fortis ob baptism yo' shall be lost ad infonitum for ebah."—Catholic Standard.

LOVEMAKING OF BIRD AND MAN.

WITH THE FORMER THE MALE WEARS THE GAY CLOTHES, WHILE—WELL!

Courtship exists among birds as well as among human beings, and in both cases forms one of the most serious and necessary business of life; but there is at least one remarkable difference. While among human beings women sport the gay and more gorgeous costume in order to attract the other sex, among birds that rule is reversed, and it is the males who are arrayed in the brighter and gayer plumage, and who take every opportunity of showing off to the best advantage before the birds they wish to mate with.

In the case of the bluejay, for instance, the male lover will perch a few inches away from his enlaver, and attempt to bewitch her with the sweetness of his song. His low, soft warble is a clever piece of love-pleading, which ought to soften the most obdurate heart, but the female is coy and flouts him. Coming nearer, and slightly elevating and quivering his wings, he bows in front of her, all the while pleading in an impassioned manner, and then raising himself puffs out his breast and stalks in front of her. His song then takes a more virile strain, and he boasts of his prowess in the fields. Anon he turns his back and calls her attention to his beautiful blue coat, and this invariably proves effective, and the fair one is won.

The courting of the peacock is not so pleasing in voice, but he proceeds much in the same way in the plumage argument. He spreads out his majestic tail to its greatest extent, and holding his head far back, struts round in a circle so as best to display its beauties from all points of view.

A CONFIDENTIAL CHAT.

"It's perfect nonsense, dearie, for you to talk of being laid on the shelf. Why, it all depends on yourself. Forget your worries, your aches and ailments; do as I did, take plenty of out-of-door air, cultivate happiness by not allowing your mind to dwell on the trifles and the worries of life. I sent thirty-one cents in stamps to Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., for his 'Common Sense Medical Adviser,' and found it contained much useful information about the care of one's health, about obnoxious medicine, and everything a woman should know. I then decided to write Dr. Pierce and tell him all about my ailments. I received such a nice, carefully considered and confidential letter, in reply, giving me advice about my diet, exercise and all. This advice is free to everyone and I wonder you don't write him at once. It didn't take me many months to regain my good looks. Ever since I was fifteen I have suffered untold agonies periodically but now I am free from pain, worry and bad temper. Occasionally I took Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets—for the complexion, and to stimulate the liver. Then I took Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription three times a day for those womanly weaknesses I told you about. That's my secret of beauty. It's the easiest thing in the world to be happy and keep one's good looks. Look at the thousands of women who have been made well by Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription; look how they keep their good looks. Dr. Pierce offers $50 reward for any case of Leucorrhoea, Female Weakness, Protrusion, or Falling of Womb which he cannot cure. All he asks is a fair and reasonable trial of his means of cure."

"THE DEAR OLD DAYS."

BY FRANK L. STANTON.

Give me back the dear old days—all the boys in line—
"Boy stood on the burnin' deck," an' "Bingen on the Rhine!"
"Twas midnight, in his guarded tent"—we spoke it high and low,
While Mary trotted out that lamb—"whose fleece was white as snow!"

Give me back the dear old days that Mem'ry loves to keep,
With "Pilot," 'tis a fearful night—there's danger on the deep!"
The old-time, awkward gestures—the jerk, meant for a bow—
We said that "Curfew should not ring," but, Lord! it's ringin' now!

Give me back the dear old days—the pathway through the dells
To the schoolhouse in the blossoms, the sound of far-off bells
Tinklin' 'eross the meadows; the song of the bird an' brook;
The old-time dictionary, an' the blue-back spellin' book!

Gone, like a dream, forever—A city's bid the place
Where stood the old log schoolhouse; an' 'no familiar face
Is smilin' there in welcome beneath a mornin' sky—
There's a bridge across the river; an' we've crossed, an' said "Goodby!"

THINKING IT OVER.

The trusts have got me worried, I am willin' to confess,
I'm tempted not to go to work, so great is my distress;
For the trusts keep gatherin' mooney, winter, summer, spring and fall,
And it simply stands to reason that some day they'll have it all.
I see misfortune comin', an' so mightily is my grief
That I'll have to go ahead and get industrious, for relief;
They tell me things are goin' wrong, no matter what you do,
But I guess I'll plant potatoes an' I'll raise a pig or two.

I know them trusts are prominent in runnin' things today,
But the sun will shine again, in spite of what they do or say;
An' the April rains is fallin' in a rhythm sweet an' low,
An' pigs—well, if you feed 'em they are pretty sure to grow.
With pork an' potatoes, though they aren't such a treat,
There ain't no use in sittin' down your troubles to review;
I guess I'll plant potatoes an' I'll raise a pig or two.

MY HEART HATH A SONG.

My heart hath a song, and the night wind roiceth it;
It beats at your easement and bears my refrain.
My heart hath a song that hath lulled and rejoiceth it,
Hath roused it to rapture and pierced it with pain.

My heart hath a song that was born at your glancing,
That leapt into life at the touch of your hand,
That sets the mad blood in my glad veins a-dancing,
That is meek with surrender, yet fierce with demand.

My heart hath a song; 'tis "I love you! I love you!"
'Tis borne on the night wind that beats at your pane.
Ah! dear love, throw open the casement above you
And shelter my song from the wind and the rain

LET CHILDREN GO BAREFOOTED.

The Greenboro Record is exactly sane in its opposition to the stilted pride and the folly-born notions of "style" which keep little children, boys and girls alike, cramped in shoes and stockings all summer. To deny their little feet this annual escape from poison, to deny them the freedom of the summer's air and earth, and the strengthening growth which nature gains for foot and ankle and leg and the whole body by reason of the romping freedom which the barefoot child enjoys, is a wrong against the children, a sin against the next generation. Boys who have been pampered and petted will become the sickly dandies of the next generation and the little girls, if they live, will grow into women as weak in mind as in body, who will walk with a hobbling, wooden-leg gait, instead of the graceful, rhythmic movement which nature loves to give to them when let alone. The human body cries out for freedom from these artificial hamperings of fashion and folly. Away with the shoes and stockings and let Dame Nature have a chance. She has more sense than anybody about raising healthy children—Gaston Gazette.

WHEN THE HONEYMOON IS OVER

The fact may be known by these signs:
When she finds herself saying uncomplimentary things to him.
The first time he criticizes her frocks.
When she discovers she is jealous.
When he grows economical with his kisses.
When she begins to nag.
When he becomes sarcastic about the food.
When she does not mind coming to breakfast in curl papers.
When he tells her how pretty some other woman looks.
When he begins to eulogize his mother.
When a meal becomes so quiet that she can plan a whole flock between the courses.
When he begins to go to his club.
When she begins to hunt up her old friends and enjoy calling on them.
When he comes in late for his dinner.

NOT MUCH TO IT.

No, said the doctor, I can't make anything out of his case at all. It bothers me why, replied his wife, I thought it was only a simple cold.
Exactly. That's why I can't make anything out of it.

DAY SIX MONTHS LONG

GREENLAND'S ICE MOUNTAINS GRAND-EST SCENERY IN THE WORLD.

Greenland's west coast is considered to have the grandest scenery of any coast in the world by Roger Pollock, who writes of a journey thither as follows: "The sunny arctic day, which lasts for months, a sky all flaming glory, the frosted peaks of the Alps flanked with stupendous cliffs and based on the restful levels of the sea, cities of crowded houses composed of dazzling light and radiant color—such scenery as that blots out one's former memories."

Our first port of call was Jakobshavn, at the head of Disco strait, biggest of the northern villages, a metropolis of nine white people and 400 natives. Beside a pocket harbor, perched on rounded shoulders of the naked granite, are the buildings, all tarred black of the Royal Trade Company for a background to the dismal scenery rise higher rocks, littered with garbage and turf but, the homes of the natives. At least the place is gay, for our soldiers went ashore every night to dance with the Eskimo girls, while the officers of the ship and colony swapped dinner parties, breakfasts and luncheons all through a nice day's festival.

"Men and women alike," the writer continues, "were linguists, well read, accomplished, a little too polite for comfort, living a metropolitan life on one batch of letters a year in an arctic outpost. Expecting the pathos of banishment, I found the gaiety in perfect content. The Dances of all the settlements were alike in social charm, gentle and polished—arrant gossip, too; and the indoor life had little to remind one of the outdoor wilderness. The Innuit servants—maids wore the furry breeches, boots to the hip, and curious topknot of their national dress—one had to fall promiscuously in love with all of them."

"Even the Danish men wore native dress, but there was one important distinction—they washed! The food, apart from Danish groceries, was seal meat, fish, reindeer, venison, shellfish, ptarmigan, sea birds and their eggs, which, as served in Greenland, are always pronounced in flavor."

THE REVIVAL IN WALES.

According to all accounts, one of the most remarkable religious revivals of modern times is sweeping over the mining districts of South Wales. Thousands of workmen have professed a change of heart, and many who were formerly profane, intemperate and licentious have suddenly become quiet, modest, and reverent in their demeanor, models of sobriety and right living. So radical has been the transformation among multitudes of miners that the whole atmosphere of that industry, it is said, appears to have been changed. The movement, which seems to have been of spontaneous character and without organization thus far, is so deep and widespread and is attended with such remarkable results; that competent observers are predicting its spread over all the British Isles.

NO SECRET ABOUT IT.

It is no secret, that for Cuts, Burns, Ulcers, Fever Sores, Sore Eyes, Boils, etc., nothing is so effective as Bucklen's Arnica Salve. "It didn't take long to cure a bad sore I had, and it is all O. K. for sore eyes," writes D. L. Gregory, of Hope, Tex. 25c. at all druggists' drug stores.
