Let Us Be True to Ourselves, Study our Own Interests, and Aim to be Women who Live for Some Noble Cause

So greatly is this world changing that it is to be recognized more and more that girls as well as boys may and should be self-supporting. The girl who sits around idle all the busy day, reads a few French novels, does a little fancy work, gossips idly with others who have nothing in particular to do, tangles and unrangles silks and worsteds ad infinitum, and then waits for some silly young man (for no young man of good, common sense would want such a girl for his wife) to come along and take her off her own hands, has gone out of fashion

The girl of the twentieth century if she should be popular, must have a business as well as a boy-a vocation of some kind. That it is useful and needful to all is true. "What," says some fair, sweetfaced girl, "surely I don't need it, 1 am only a child. My father is rich. In our home of wealth there is nothing lacking of comfort and happiness, of beauty and grandeur." Ah, yes! but riches often take to themselves wings, and fly away, and a turn of fortune's wheel hurls wealthy people down to poverty every day. Your hope paints your future in azure and gold. God grant that your dreams may be realized, but there is so great a danger that they may fail that it is wise to prepare for a failure; and if in your pathway the flowers bloom brightly and over your head shines. DON'T WHINE. The Money You Earn Yourself is Much Brighter Than Any You fiet Out of Dead Men's Bags.

Don't be whining about having a fair chance. Throw a sensible man out of the window; and he'll fall on his feet and ask the nearest way to his work. The more you have to begin with the less you will have the in end. Money you earn yourself is much brighter than any you get out of dead men's bags. Great Reductions

Come listen to me and I'll sing you a song Concerning the times, and it shall not be long. How everybody is trying to buy And cheating each other, I cannot tell why, And it's hard, hard times.

From father to mother, from sister to brother. From cousin to cousin, are cheating each other, Since cheating has become so much of a fashion, I'm afraid to my soul it'll spread o'er the nation, And it's hard, hard times.

And here is the baker; by baking he cats ; And so does the butcher by killing his means. They'll kick up the steel yard and make them weigh down, And yow it's all right if it lacks twenty pounds, And it's hard, hard times.

And here is the lawyer, as you plainly see, He'll plead you a case for a very large fee, He'll plead you a case and tell you you're right. And when court's over you're not right by a sight. And it's hard, hard times.

And here is the doctor; I liked to have forgot, I think to my soul he's the worst of the flock. They'll tell you they'll cure you for half you possess. And when you are dead, they'll take all the rest, And it's hard, hard times.

And here are the old maids who ought to get clear, For the boys won't have them, I think it's for fear, For after they're married if they should do wrong, They're sure to have heads cracked with tongs, And it's hard, hard times.

And here is the bachelor, who's every man's scorn. He's like an old garment, all tattered and torn, The girls and the widows all unite To toss him sky-high, and think it's quite right. And it's hard, hard itmes.

And here is the widow who ought to be clear, But to finish my song she must be mentioned here. She is so well up with catching the beau. That she'll snatch in a feller before he knows, And it's hard, hard times

And here are the young ladies, I liked to have missed, I think in my heart they like to be kissed. They act like the coquette when they get the chance. And tell you to call on them some time hence, And it's hard, hard times.

And here are the young men, the worst of the whole: They'll tell you they love you to their very soul, They'll tell you they love you when you're sitting by, And when they are gone they'll swear it is a lie. And it's hard, hard times.
