

My Hair Ran Away

Don't have a falling out with your hair. It might leave you! Then what? That would mean thin, scraggly, uneven, rough hair. Keep your hair at home! Fasten it tightly to your scalp! You can easily do it with Ayer's Hair Vigor. It is something more than a simple hair dressing. It is a hair medicine, a hair tonic, a hair food.

The best kind of a treatment—

A Yale Japanese professor has married a Connecticut woman.

These steamship races are keeping the old Atlantic all churned up.

All the same, if they live up to their name, those "devil expellers" are needed in Chicago.

MR. CARNEGIE is howling about the taxes being high in spite of the alleged wish to die poor.

WHETHER he is elected or not, Mr. Taft is managing to have a good time as a candidate.

JUDGE GARY, of the steel trust, is progressing. He has got to the point of noticing the public.

It would be just like Jerome to leave that ice-cream testimony lying around until it melts away.

THE report that Chauncey M. Depew returned from Europe with a new story is important, if true.

SOME day they ought to hold in Kentucky, a convention of all the men who killed Governor Gooch.

MAYBE Uncle Sam will continue to hold the Philippines in order to make Admiral Dewey feel unhappy.

EVEN if they are British allies, the Canadians don't mind hitting the Japanese on the head every time they hob.

CONTRACTS for five torpedo boat destroyers awarded. The influence of the Peace Conference goes steadily on!

NOBODY will blame H. H. Rogers for finding Mark Twain better company than people who want to ask questions about finance.

SEVENTY-FIVE days for Carrie Nation in Washington? And a week in Washington has driven many office-seeking politicians insane!

HETTY GREEN says: "Wall Street is going to the devil." For the first time we understand "The Sorrows of Satan."—Philadelphia Press.

WE all know what General Sherman said of ordinary war. Doubtless, he would think the social war at the Jamestown Exposition even more so.

A New Jersey horse has taken to getting drunk. The attacks upon the New Jersey trusts seem to have demoralized everything in the State.

OKLAHOMA has gone both Prohibition and Democratic, but they may be the kind of Democrats they raise nowadays. Georgia did the same thing.

A crink at Oyster Bay wanted President Roosevelt to collect $10,000,000 for him from Standard Oil. He may be crazy, but he knew where to go.

DESPITE his precautions to prevent advance publication, the President should be pleased and encouraged by the early interest taken in his speeches.

THE Louisville couple married under water, the other day, will find it no picnic keeping their heads above it after they settle down to housekeeping.

THE new plan to make Governor Hoke Smith, of Georgia, a U. S. Senator will work out more easily than the other plan to make him President of the United States.—Philadelphia Press.

A New Jersey judge has granted a man a divorce because his wife refused to accompany him to Philadelphia. Perhaps, however, the judge has never been to Philadelphia.

Roosevelt, Bryan, Hearst, Hoke Smith, Chandler, if one advances the continuation of each in turn, one may claim large influence when one of them is nominated.

MR. BRYAN should be pleased to see the Democratic party sitting up and taking notice of presidential possibilities, especially as choice in the end is pretty certain to settle out this.

WHEN the mechanical cotton picker goes to work, it will be hard for the negro to make a living between the going out of the water-melons and the coming in of the blackberries.

"MONTHS with 'R' in them are these months, but now, how about Oyster Bay months?" asks the Florida Times-Union. Why they have an "R" in them during July and August.

"THE old winds of November and March cannot dull the summer in the south," says the Baltimore American. Possibly not; but December, January and February will take a fall out of you.

A California man has just been released after having served thirteen years for a crime he had never committed. Possibly his disposition has not been soured by the experience, but, at any rate, he should not be expected to regard it as a joke.

"WHAT is a home?" inquires Joel Chandler Harris in Uncle Remus's Magazine. Well, nowadays, Uncle Remus, it is most likely to be three rooms and bathette, an unreciprocated bill and an installment plan photograph, remarks the Times-Dispatch. All of which goes to show that Richmond people will have warmth and music in the home, regardless of installment collectors.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT, in his address at St. Louis, argued for a broad and liberal construction of the constitution to fit the modern idea that the government must exercise efficient control of interstate railroads and individual corporations. He discussed the Panama canal in relation to the commerce of the country and the restoring of the Mississippi river to its former importance.

THE jury acquitted the Rowlands on trial in Raleigh for the murder by poison of Engineer Charles R. Strange. Yet there was the strong circumstantial evidence of their guilt, and we should think Raleigh would not be a good place for them in future. They may have been not guilty, as the jury said, but all the same their actions before the death of the engineer, the hasty marriage of Dr. Rowland to the dead engineer's wife, their clandestine meetings and the statement "they are new ones on me," all pointed to something radically wrong somewhere, and, to say the least of it, their "offense is rank, it smells to heaven."

ONE of the greatest religious denominations in America, the Protestant Episcopal Church, met in tricennial convention in the historic city of Richmond, Va., last week. Through somewhat dramatic coincidence the representatives of this ancient faith met for deliberation at a time when the nation is celebrating, through the Jamestown Exposition, the founding of the first English colony on the mainland of the new world, almost simultaneously with the founding of the first Episcopal Church—the little parish of Bruton, at Williamsburg.

So many traditions cluster around Bruton, and so closely interwoven is the American history of the Episcopal Church with the inauguration of permanent settlement in this country, that the two events could not have happened in more appropriate juxtaposition. A high British prelate, the Lord Bishop of London, comes to America bearing a handsome Bible for the new lectern at Bruton, the first gift of King Edward, and the latter that of President Roosevelt. The Bible is inscribed with sentiments that pay to the historic importance of Bruton, and that refer to the oneness between the two nations—a unity which the adherents of the Episcopal faith like to believe has been promoted by a religion shared partially in common, no less than by similarity of language, customs and ideals.—Atlanta Constitution.

The pain in Ma's head has gone. She's as happy as can be. Her health is right, her temper bright. Since Taking Hollister's Rocky Mountain Tea at night.

BISHOP INGRAM'S MESSAGE.
The Bishop of London has brought us a most impressive message. Perhaps some expected that he would deliver an episcopal oration, or a critical lecture on theology, or that he would speak in a strange tongue and tell them something new and startling. Perhaps there were those who expected an eloquent panegyric on the glory and grandeur of the Protestant Episcopal Church.

If so, they were one and all disappointed. Instead, he held the old, old story in all its simplicity. He preached the gospel of love, "the far-reaching, energizing and active love of God to every child that He made." He preached free salvation: "that the eternal Son of God came into this world and gave Himself for His brothers, that the Christian religion does not consist in a belief of a good man named Jesus Christ dying on the cross, but consists in a belief in the sacrifice of God Himself." He warned his hearers against the "new theologies," and especially did he warn the church against worldliness and "business methods"—against dependence for its success upon cleverness and management rather than upon the grace and power of God, against lowering the teaching of the church and its moral standard to suit a self-indulgent people. To run a church after this order, said he, is to spell ruin.

The Bishop of London comes to us declaring the doctrine of love, the doctrine of cleanliness, the doctrine of personal purity, the doctrine of holy living, which is the simple doctrine of the Bible. His sermon should give an impetus to true religion throughout the land.

The suit instituted against Vade Mecum Springs, by Miss Fannie Cozart, of Durham, has been compromised and the plaintiff accepted $2,000. Sometime past Miss Cozart was visiting at the latter place, when it is alleged the company furnished her an old dilapidated buggy and a rather wild horse. As a result the horse ran away and threw her from the vehicle, breaking one of her limbs and otherwise injuring her, and causing her much suffering. It was several months before she could leave home. She asked for ten thousand dollars damages, but accepted $2,000 as a compromise.

If taken patiently and persistently will relieve the most obstinate cases of indigestion, constipation, bad blood, bad liver no matter how long standing. That's what Hollister's Rocky Mountain Tea will do. 35 cents, Tea or Tablets.
