NO WHISKEY THAT DAY.

The Discontinuance of the Use of Whiskey at Barn Raisings

Christiana Dickson, the wife of one of the first settlers of Erie county, Pa., was a small, blue-eyed, low-voiced woman, extremely timid, but she had a horror of drunkenness, says an exchange.

She lived in the days when the use of liquor was universal. But when her sons were born, she resolved to put a stop to whiskey-drinking in her home. Her husband being absent, her brothers called for the help of the neighbors, according to custom, to put up a barn, needed on her farm. They all assembled and went to work, whilst she prepared a great dinner. After an hour or two, whiskey was asked for. She refused to provide it.

Her brothers, and, at last, an elder in the church, came to reason with her, to tell her that she would be accused of meanness. Without a word the little woman went to the barn, and baring her head, stepped upon a log and spoke to them:

"My neighbors," said she, "this is a strange thing. Three of you are my brothers, three of you are my friends. I have prepared for you the best dinner in my power. If you refuse to raise the barn without liquor, so be it. But I would rather see the timbers rotted where they lie than to give you whiskey."

The men angrily went home, the little woman returned to the house and for hours cried as though her heart would break. But the next day every man came back, went heartily to work, enjoyed her good dinner, and said not a word about whiskey.

This led to the discontinuance of the use of whiskey at barn-raising in the country. Her sons grew up strong, vigorous men, and did good work in helping to civilize and Christianize the world; their descendants are all of a high type of intellectual and moral men and women. If she had yielded this little point, they might have become, like many of their neighbors—drunkards.

REMARKABLE CASE of Mrs. HAM

Declares Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Saved Her Life and Sanity.

Shamrock, Mo.—"I feel it my duty to tell the public the condition of my health before using your medicine. I had falling, inflammation, female weakness, pains in both sides, backaches and bearing down pains, was short of memory, nervous, impatient, passed sleepless nights, and had neither strength nor energy. There was always a fear and dread in my mind, I had cold, nervous, weak spells, hot flashes over my body. I had a place in my right side that was so sore that I could hardly bear the weight of my clothes. I tried medicines and doctors, but they did me little good, and I never expected to get out again. I got Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Blood Purifier, and I certainly would have been in grave or in an asylum if your medicine had not saved me. But now I can work all day, sleep well at night, eat anything I want, have no hot flashes or weak, nervous spells. All pains, aches, fevers and dreads are gone, my house, children and husband are no longer neglected, as I am almost entirely free of the bad symptoms I had before taking your remedies, and all pleasure and happiness in my home."

Mrs. JOSIE HAM, R. F. D. 1, Box 22, Shamrock, Missouri.

GOOD-CHILDREN STREET.

There's a dear little home in Good-Children Street—
My heart turneth fondly today
Where tinkle of tongues and patter of feet
Make sweetest of music at play;
Where the sunshine of love illumines each face
And warms every heart in the old-fashioned place.

For dear little children go romping about
With dollies and tin tops and drums,
And, my! how they frolic and scamper and shout
Till bedtime too speedily comes!
Oh, days they are golden and days they are fleet
With little folks living in Good-Children Street.

But, when falleth night over river and town,
Those little folks vanish from sight,
And an angel all white from the sky cometh down
And guardeth the babes through the night,
And singeth her lullabies tender and sweet
To the dear little children in Good-Children Street.

Though elsewhere the world be o'erburdened with care,
Though poverty fail to my lot,
Though toil and vexation be always my share,
What care I—they trouble me not!
This thought maketh life ever joyous and sweet:
There's a dear little home in Good-Children Street.

OVER THE RIVER.

Over the river they beckon to me—
Loved ones who've crossed to the farther side;
The gleam of their snowy robes I see,
But their voices are drowned in the rushing tide.
There's one with ringlets of sunny gold,
And eyes, the reflection of heaven's own blue;
He crossed in the twilight, gray and cold,
And the pale mist hid him from mortal view.
We saw not the angels who met him there;
The gates of the city we could not see;
Over the river, over the river,
My brother stands waiting to welcome me!

Over the river, the boatman pale
Carried another—the household pet;
Her brown curls waved in the gentle gale—
Darling Minnie! I see her yet.
She crossed on her bosom her dimpled hands,
And fearlessly entered the phantom bark;
We watched it glide from the silver sands,
And all our sunshine grew strangely dark.
We know she is safe on the farther side,
Where all the ransomed angels be;
Over the river, the mystic river,
My childhood's idol is waiting for me.

For none return from those quiet shores,
Who cross with the boatman cold and pale;
We hear the dip of the golden oars,
And catch a gleam of the snowy sail—
And lo! they have passed from our yearning heart;
They cross the stream, and are gone for aye;
We may not sunder the veil apart,
That hides from our vision the gates of day.
We only know that their bark no more
May sail with us o'er life's stormy sea;
Yet somewhere, I know, on the unseen shore,
They watch, and beckon, and wait for me.

LITTLE BY LITTLE.

Little by little the time goes by—
Short, if you sing through it, long, if you sigh,
Little by little—an hour a day,
Gone with the years that have vanished away,
Little by little the race is run;
Trouble and waiting and toil are done!

Little by little the skies grow clear;
Little by little the sun comes near;
Little by little the days smile out,
Gladder and brighter on pain and doubt;
Little by little the seed we sow
Into a beautiful yield will grow.

Little by little the world grows strong,
Fighting the battle of Right and Wrong;
Little by little the Wrong gives way—
Little by little the Right has sway,
Little by little all longing souls
Struggle up near the shining goals.

Little by little the good in man
Blossoms to beauty, for human ken;
Little by little the angels see
Prophecies better of good to be;
Little by little the God of all
Lifts the world nearer the pleading call.

SALLOWNESS

MEN TO MARRY.

From "Training the Girl," by W. A. McKeever, (Macmillan).

As to age, the same theoretic rule obtains for him as for the woman, the maximum of physical and mental readiness probably being 10 years after the beginning of adolescence.

His common schooling should be about the same as that required for the young woman, and it would be well, in case of an actual mating, if they had both attended the same type of common school.

During all the years of his physical development the young man should have been constantly trained and disciplined in the performance of the maximum variety of such work as the ordinary home, shop and field provide for the growing boy.

Besides having had ample experience in the performance of a variety of a plain boy work, he should also be thoroughly trained and skilled in some bread winning occupation, with a thought of making it his life work.

He should have been kept clean and pure in his moral life and should have a very high respect for the inherent worth and the reasonably guarded virtue of ordinary womanhood.

His wealth may not necessarily consist of a considerable amount of money saved or in prospect of an inheritance; provided, that he be trained as sketched above, and that he have developed in his character a genuine money-earning capacity.

He should be well informed as to the nature and status of women of various classes and should especially know what traits of character in young woman constitute a guarantee of satisfactory wifehood and motherhood.

He should have the habit of being frank and honest and courageous in his business dealings and should possess a sense of his responsibility as a bread-winner for the family of which he expects to be the head.

He should possess a genuine interest in children, he should have considerable theoretical knowledge about their care and training, and should be conscious of a father's full duty in respect to all other family matters.

Some men regularly use kindness—if unable to find a club.

THE CHARMING MOTHER.

Don't Lose Sight of the Idea That Mother Can Make Herself the Best Friend of Her Children

One of our boy friends says his mother is the best friend he has besides his mother. "Dad's pretty clever," he says, "but mother's my chum." We often think how fortunate that boy is. His dearest friend is his mother, and no one has to guess that she is a woman of ideal type. "Me and maw's just like this," he said, closing both hands together. "She's always giving me what she knows I like to eat, and maw'n that we've got a date to go to the Bijou every Thursday night. Maw told me one of her secrets, and that is that she beats the grocery bill out of enough every week to take us kids to the movies. I've got a kid brother and a cute little sister, and maw's just as much their friend as she is mine, but so long's she does n't get too gay and honey those kids maw'n she does me, I'm gonna stand in with her."

There is a mother who has a line on the kids instead of a rod. She does not slip away from them and see the picture show by herself—that is on Thursday night. That is their night off, and each one of them knows three big men—President Wilson, Jim Howard, and Percy Wells.

That is a true bill. Don't lose sight of the idea that mother can make herself the best friend of her children. She can get their confidence as no one else can. Children who are scolded and sent to bed, so mother can have all the fun herself, grow up with the idea that the only time they will ever have is when they can get big enough to climb out the window so they can see what's going on down town. While dad's busy worrying about making the living, there is on mother's shoulders the tremendous responsibility of making herself the friend of the children so they won't place where the boys and girls are compelled to stay till they get to thinking home is some sort of horrid place.

It is a poor home from which a girl hopes to escape when some sort of beau takes a notion to claim her, or the boys long for the time when they can get out and be "a man among men." The chummy mother's worth her weight in gold, and when the declining years come apace, her children will be her companions in the day that solace is worth more to her than the gold reserve in the United States Treasury.—Washington Star.
