Whole World Headed to Marvelous Panama-Pacific International Exposition in San Francisco in 1915

Vast Exhibit Palaces Are Already Completed and Installation of World's Exhibits Begun

THIRTY-SIX GREAT FOREIGN POWERS TO DISPLAY THEIR PROGRESS IN CONCLAVE OF NATIONS UNRIVALED IN HISTORY—RAILROADS GRANT LOW ROUND TRIPS—PLAN TODAY TO VISIT HUGE EXPOSITION.

An education such as one could not receive in a lifetime will be afforded through the great Panama-Pacific International Exposition at San Francisco next year.

At this exposition the people of the United States, joined by the nations of the world, will celebrate the official opening of the Panama canal. Hundreds of years from now the world will recall the opening of the Panama canal as one of the greatest events in the history of the United States, and indeed of the whole world.

At the great exposition, which will exceed any universal exposition in the history of the world, thirty-six great nations will make elaborate government exhibits. A single South American country, the Argentine, is expending $1,500,000 on its display, which will be the most comprehensive ever made by a South American country outside its own borders. Italy will show the greatest works of art; Canada will display its vast progress and has already installed an elaborate exhibit in the huge Canadian Pavilion, built at a cost of $1,000,000.

The states of the Union will make wonderful displays and those who do not know the great country as well as they should know it will have the opportunity to learn more of its wealth and progress and great institutions under favoring conditions and circumstances that they could obtain in no other way.

Some of the marvels of the Panama-Pacific International Exposition are depicted upon this page. The exposition opens on February 20, 1915, and closes December 4, 1915, remaining open, therefore, almost ten months. The railroads will grant low round trips with extraordinary privileges of routing. Any railroad agent will furnish you the particulars as to the exposition. If you wish further information about the exposition, take advantage of the following offer:

ATTRACTIVE BOOK ON THE PANAMA-PACIFIC INTERNATIONAL EXPOSITION AND PANAMA CANAL MAILED FREE OF CHARGE.

A handsome book of sixty pages, profusely illustrated in colors and giving detailed descriptions of the Panama-Pacific International Exposition to be held in San Francisco from February 20 to December 4, 1915, and of the Panama canal and canal region, will be mailed by the Exposition free of charge to all inquirers. The booklet is intended as a general guide to prospective visitors and will also contain information concerning the great engineering feat which the exposition is to celebrate. Write to the Manager, Bureau of Publications, Panama-Pacific International Exposition, Exposition Building, San Francisco, for booklet.

ENTRANCE TO THE VAST EXHIBIT PALACE OF FOOD PRODUCTS.

This photograph shows the great western portal or entranceway of the huge Palace of Food Products. The half-dome is known as the Half-Dome of Vigor and is 112 feet in height. Brilliant, riotous colors are employed in the mosaic in the vault of the half-dome, which was designed by Mr. Jules Guerin, one of the most celebrated decorative artists in America. To the left are seen some of the ornamental shrubs that will be in bloom when the Panama-Pacific International Exposition opens at San Francisco in February, 1915.

PALACE OF EDUCATION AT AMERICA'S GREAT EXPOSITION, SAN FRANCISCO, 1915.

This palace occupies a site at the southeast corner of the main group of exhibit palaces. To the left is the Half-Dome of Thought, constituting the main western entrance to the palace. This is one of two half-domes constituting the principal architectural embellishment of the western facade of the main group, the other being the Half-Dome of Vigor, the principal eastern entrance to the Palace of Food Products. These domes are modeled after similar recesses in old Roman baths, or in buildings surrounding the Forum. Within the cool shade of these beautiful doorways, the leisurely gentlemen of old Rome were wont to gather for informal lectures and discussions. Within the shadow of the Dome of Thought will be a semi-circle of eight columns, surmounted by figures, by Ralph Stackpole, embodying ideas of intellectual development. Within the Dome of Vigor a similar colonnade will be surmounted by figures by Earl Cavanagh, representative of the ideals of physical development. In the center of both entrances will be a fountain. The portals in the southern facade are Italian renaissance. W. H. Faville is the architect. The Panama-Pacific International Exposition opens in San Francisco in February, 1915.

PAYING THE PRICE

By N. H. CROWELL.

A giant woman stood in the cabin doorway and peered anxiously down the narrow pathway leading into the depths below. At her knees along three row-locked children—beetle-choked, wild-eyed little girls—and the sound of half-stifled sobs told of grief rankling in their childish bosoms.

After a careful scrutiny of the timber far beneath, the woman turned and patted the girls' heads reassuringly.

"When are we again to eat, mam?" inquired the eldest, for perhaps the fourth time.

"When pap comes, child," came the weak response.

The woman's hollow cheeks flushed as she glanced swiftly toward the little cupboard in the corner—she knew its little secret. Jim, her husband, also knew it when he descended that narrow path early in the morning.

From the depths a whistle sounded up clear and keen, and the anxious face of the woman became glacial with some eager hope. Nearer came the sound, and presently the crackle of branches brushed aside could be heard.

"Lass!" 'Twas a man's voice—expectant—full of cheer.

"Jim!" That word spoke volumes. The children darted away, and somewhere in the dark a laughing, scuffling capture took place. The woman smiled slightly and turned quickly to her work—her preparations for a meal.

Voluntarily the four entered the cabin, the children leading a scowling pack of packages beneath the man's long arms. One stride took him to the table and he dropped his burden there, not hastily, as though afraid to have done with them.

"Parti late, Lass, by Jim!" he said. "Thought I never would get up them rocks beyond Cole's creek. I'm clean tuckered."

"Jim?" The word trembled pitifully. "Yuh had'nt got no credit down yonder, huss-yuh, Jim?"

"No, Lass, I had'nt."

"No money been account' in to yuh nowhere, Jim?"

"They railed 't wifout this situation, Jim!" he said, awkwardly.

"Who got tuck?" 'Twas a prompt, eager, ready query.

"Yuhk Sellers, I heard they kitched 'im."

"Share Jim?"

"Yes, Lass, I'm share."

She stopped and bustled herself at the stove—her eyes wide, like those of a hunted animal. A short time elapsed and the savory odor of frying meat dwelt fragrantly upon the air. The children circled ebulliently about the table, expectant.

"Set up, Jim," said the woman, presently.

He shook his head slowly. "I had'nt brought, Lass."

She did not argue the matter—her voice prevented it. The meal was nearly over when the man arose and stood before a cracked bit of looking glass that hung on the wall. Presently he turned and dropped a small packet into the woman's lap.

"Yuh might all yuh a better glass, Lass. Yuh will—won't yuh, all?" He spoke tenderly, yet harshly.

She dropped her fingers and they met the packet. The fingers instinctively closed over it. Her eyes studied the faded design in the cloth fixedly.

Upon a little shelf stood a battered clock. He checked it up and began winding it after which he shook it in his ear. Regulating it, he stretched himself lazily—then kissed the little girl, beginning at the eldest.

The woman's face was now buried in her apron. He put his broad hand upon her gray-flecked hair, bent low and whispered:

"Lass—woman—I'm goin'."

Silently he unpeeled the door and stepped out into the darkness. "Crack!" It came up clear and crisp—the sound of a rifle.

Shilless Jim had taken the price—and a law, as inevitable as fate, ordained that he should return to the lonely mountain home no more forever.
