THE RURAL PRESS

The Largest Paper in Most Useful Agency on the Farm—The Press. Publishes and Secures a Thrift of Infants That Must Be Utilized in Building Agriculture.

By Peter Radford
Lecturer National Farmers Union

A broad campaign of publicity on the subject of rural life is needed in this state today to bring the problems of the farmers to the forefront. The city problems are blazoned upon the front page of the metropolitan dailies and echoed in the country press, but the troubles of the farmers are seldom told, except by those who seek to profit by the story, and the glitter of the package oftentimes obscures the substance. A searching investigation into the many inherent defects in our economic system that can be easily remedied when properly understood and illuminated by the power of the press.

The rural press, the paper of the school are a reality of powerful influence that the farmer must utilize to their fullest capacity before he can occupy a commanding position in public affairs. These gigantic agencies are organized in every rural community and only wait the patronage and cooperation of the farmers to fully develop their power and usefulness. They are loyal forces working for the best interests of their respective communities. Their work is to build and their object is to serve. They prosper only through the development and prosperity of the community.

Every farmer in this state should subscribe for the local paper as well as farm periodicals and such other publications as he may find profitable, but he should by all means subscribe for his local paper, and no home should be without it. The local paper is part of the community life and the editor understands the farmer's problems. It is the local press that will study the local problems and through its columns deal with subjects of most vital importance to local life of the community.

A Noble Task.

In the many instances the country papers blame the city press by giving prominence to criminal, accidents and political agitation. The new rural civilization has placed upon the rural press renewed responsibilities, and enlarged possibilities for usefulness. It cannot perform its mission to agriculture by recording the trials, the tribulations and the humiliations of humanity, or by filling its columns with the school of the struggle of their assets, but by maintaining news of the life which have our children from the farm.

It has a higher and nobler task. When the faces of the city dwellers smile with the stroke of midnight upon their pillow, and the farmer's eyes are closed in peaceful slumber, the rural press is at work, and its mission is to enlighten the public mind, to stimulate the public spirit, and to hold the standard of progress. The rural press can lead the farmer to the source of his progress, to the source of his progress, to the source of his progress. It has to deal with the fundamental problems of agriculture and the farmer's life. Its mission is to give growth, to give life, to give life to the farmer and to the farmer's life. It has to deal with the fundamental problems of agriculture and the farmer's life. Its mission is to give growth, to give life, to give life to the farmer and to the farmer's life.

STOMACH TROUBLE FOR FIVE YEARS

Majority of Friends Thought Mr. Hughes Would Die, But One Helped Him to Recovery.

Pomeroyton, Ky.—In interesting advice from this place, Mr. A. J. Hughes writes as follows: "I was down with stomach trouble for five (5) years, and would have sick headache so bad, at times, that I thought surely I would die. I tried different treatments, but they did not seem to do me any good. I got so bad, I could not eat or sleep, and all my friends, except one, thought I would die. He advised me to try Theodor's Black-Draught, and quit taking other medicines. I decided to take his advice, although I did not have any confidence in it.

I have now been taking Black-Draught for three months, and it has cured me—haven't had those awful sick headaches since I began using it.

I am so thankful for what Black-Draught has done for me." Theodor's Black-Draught has been found a very valuable medicine for derangements of the stomach and liver. It is composed of pure, vegetable herbs, contains no dangerous ingredients, and acts gently, yet surely. It can be freely used by young and old, and should be kept in every family chest.
