HISTORIC SCENES IN OLD NEW ENGLAND

OLD HADLEY where a regicide of Charles I appeared "from nowhere" and saved the panic stricken settlers

Old Hadley, a beautiful New England town, situated upon the east bank of the Connecticut River some twenty miles north of Springfield, Mass., was a center of great activity during the stirring days of King Philip's Indian wars. On Sept. 1, 1675, while at worship in the village meeting house, the inhabitants of Old Hadley were surprised by an attack upon their settlement by a horde of Indians.

Abandoning worship, they seized their arms and rushed out to defend their homes, but the suddenness of the attack found them utterly demoralized. When the confusion was at its height there suddenly appeared in their midst an unknown man of grave and elderly bearing, who at once took command of the situation, issued orders, rallied the defenders and in short order routed the redskins from the town. Then, as suddenly as he had appeared, did the stranger effect his removal from the scene, and his identity for many years remained a comparative mystery.

It was later established that the deliverer of Hadley was General William Goffe, one of the three living regicides of Charles I. and for whose head a liberal bounty was offered. After years of pursuit from place to place he found safe hiding under the hospitable roof of Pastor John Russel of the Old Hadley congregation. It is believed that after his spectacular deliverance of the Hadley settlers he remained still undiscovered in the Russel household until his death some five years later.

A beautiful state road winding up the Connecticut valley takes thousands of autoists each year directly by the spot where General Goffe rallied the inhabitants of Old Hadley to the defense of their homes.

SOMETHING DONE HAPPEN.

A negro giving before a coroner's jury to give an account of the death of a friend, who had been run over by a railroad train, gave his evidence somewhat as follows: "Me and Bill was walking down the railroad track when he said to me that he was going to stop a little while and tie his shoe and he would catch up with me. I walked on and after a while the express train came flying by. Then I waited a little while for Bill and he didn't come and I walked back up the track and saw on one side of the track Bill's hat; I walked a little further up the track and saw one of Bill's legs; I walked a little further up the track and I saw one of his arms; I walked a little further and I saw Bill's head, and then I stopped and said to myself, 'Something show has done happened to Bill.'"

A MUTUAL WISH.

"I wish I were an ostrich," said Hicks angrily as he tried to eat one of his wife's biscuits, but could not.

"I wish you were," returned Mrs. Hicks. "I'd get a few feathers for my hat."—Philadelphia Ledger.

A SONG OF LIVING.

Because I have loved life, I shall have no sorrow to die.
I have sent up my gladness on wings to be lost in the blue of the sky.
I have run and leapt with the rain, I have taken the wind to my breast.
My cheek like a drowsy child to the face of the earth I have prest.
Because I have loved life, I shall have no sorrow to die.
I have kissed young Love on the lips, I have heard his song to the end.
I have struck my hand like a seal in the loyal hand of a friend.
I have known the peace of heaven, the comfort of work done well.
I have longed for death in the darkness and risen alive out of hell.
Because I have loved life, I shall have no sorrow to die.
I give a share of my soul to the world where my course is run.
I know that another shall finish the task I must leave undone.
I know that no flower, no flint was in vain on the path I trod.
As one looks on a face through the window, through life I have looked on God.
Because I have loved life, I shall have no sorrow to die.
—Amelia Josephine Burr.

ANGER.

Ever Stop to Think How Foolish Is Anger—How Useless?

Not only this, but anger weakens and unnerves and renders us unfit for battle, be that battle of the brain or brawn.

Ever watch two professionals spar? See the clean-cut exhibition of skill and science as each receives and returns blow for blow. But wait until one becomes angry. Gone is all that fine science and in its place is the brute lust of battle. Now see how terribly unprepared is the angry man to stand before his smiling adversary. Passion driven and furious, he is an easy mark, and his defeat is foretold from the beginning. Again and again the scientific blows of his cool and quiet opponent beat down his guard and are driven to vital parts of his person, and blind with passion he is powerless for defense, to say nothing of offense.

And as in the sparring ring, so in the larger circles of life. The man who can with a smiling face and stout heart meet the blows of life, is armed for the fray, and victory is his. The shafts of opposition, of envy, of malice, of hatred, roll from him as water from the back of a duck. He is impervious to attack. He is unconquerable.

Does your temper give way under the annoyances and vexations of life? Then stop—back up—get a fresh grip on yourself. Remember, anger never conquers any but the heart that harbors it. Smile.

HUMOR OF A VANISHING RACE.

Religion Ain't Free.

A colored preacher once preached on the theme "Salvation am free." And, after delivering a powerful sermon, he began to take up a collection for his own salary. One of the deacons got up and protested and reminded the preacher that he had just said that religion was free and now that he was trying to make them pay for it. The old preacher replied "I'm sorry you makes it incumbent on me to 'spose your ignorance before this 'er congregation; my brother, religion am free just like water in the river am free. You can go down and drink yourself full and it don't cost you a cent, but if you has ther same water piped into your house, you has to pay for it. It's the same way with religion—you can go out doors and drink in all the religion you want, but when you comes in dis church and has me pipe it into you, you has to pay for it. Put something in the basket, brother; put something in the basket."

DRINK BADLY NEEDED.

A train showed up at a busy country station and a man was seen to put his head excitedly out of the window of one of the cars. "There's a woman in here fainted!" he cried. "Has any one got any brandy or whiskey? Quick!"

Some one in the crowd on the platform handed him a bottle. He uncorked it frantically, put it to his lips and took a noble pull. "Ah!" he sighed, "that's better. It always did upset me to see a woman faint."

PERSUASIVE.

Uncle Tobey was a hospitable soul. He wanted no guest in his house to be stinted. "Have some, have some," he invited cordially at the supper table, sending around the platter for the third time. "We're going to give it to the pigs any way"—Judge.

RASMUS AIN'T HERE.

In passing Uncle Rasmus' cabin one night a young man overheard him praying, and walking up to the door began to listen. The prayer ran something like this: "Oh, Lord, Rasmus is tired of de troubles of dis life, send thy angel down to take uncle Rasmus home." Just then the young man knocked on the door, and the startled darkey said, "Who's dat?" The answer came back, "This is an angel to take uncle Rasmus home." "Rasmus ain't here," replied the frightened old darkey.

PEANUT BAGS.

For the good of the Peanut Industry, it has been determined by the members of this association, that it will be necessary to request the farmers to pack their peanuts in new 68 inch and 70 inch 8 ounce burlap bags, and when peanuts are packed in bags different from the above, a deduction will be made on the following basis:

Cotton bags, a deduction will be made 10c each.
Second hand bags a deduction will be made 10c each
New 7 1-2 ounce bags 68 or 70 inches a deduction will be made of 5c each

In view of the fact that some dealers in the past have delivered 7 1-2 ounce bags on contracts for 8 ounce bags, we would advise you to see that each bale of 500-68 inch 8 ounce bags you receive weigh 472 1-2 pounds, and each bale of 500-70 inch 8 ounce bags weigh 486 1-2 pounds, exclusive of the wrapping and cordage. If they run short of the above weight, you are receiving 7 1-2 ounce bags instead of 8 ounce bags.
