THE FORTUNATE ISLES.

You sail and you seek for the Fortunate Isles.
The old Greek Isles of the yellow bird's song?
Then steer straight on through the watery miles,
Straight on, straight on, and you can't go wrong.
Nay, not to the left; nay, not to the right;
But on, straight on, and the Isles are in sight,
The Fortunate Isles, where the yellow birds sing
And life lies girt with a golden ring.

These Fortunate Isles, they are not far;
They lie within reach of the lowliest door;
You can see them gleam by the twilight star;
You can hear them sing by the moon's white shore.
Nay, never look back! Those leveled gravestones
They were landing steps; there were steps unto thrones
Of glory for souls that have sailed before
And have set white feet on the fortunate shore.

And what are the names of the Fortunate Isles?
Why, Duty and Love and a large Content.

Lo, these are the isles of the watery miles
That God let down from the firmament.
Lo! Duty and Love, and a true man's trust;
Your forehead to God and your feet in the dust!
Lo! Duty and Love, and a sweet babe's smiles,
And there, O friend, are the Fortunate Isles.

—Joaquin Miller.

JANETTE'S HAIR.

Oh, loosen the snood that you wear, Janette,
Let me tangle a hand in your hair, my pet,
For the world to me had no daintier sight
Than your brown hair veiling your shoulders white,
As I tangled a hand in your hair, my pet.

It was brown with a golden gloss, Janette,
It was finer than silk of the floss, my pet,
'Twas a beautiful mist falling down to your wrist,
'Twas a thing to be braided and jeweled and kissed—
'Twas the loveliest hair in the world, my pet.

My arm was the arm of a clown, Janette,
It was sinewy, bristled, and brown, my pet.
But warmly and softly it loved to caress—
Your round white neck and your wealth of tress—
Your beautiful plenty of hair, my pet.

Your eyes had a swimming glory, Janette,
Revealing the old, dear story, my pet—
They were gray, with that chastened tinge of the sky,
When the trout leaps quickest to snap the fly,
And they marched with your golden hair, my pet.

Your lips—but I have no words, Janette—
They were fresh as the twitter of birds, my pet,
When the Spring is young, and the roses are wet
With the dewdrops in each red bosom set,
And they suited your gold-brown hair, my pet.

Oh, you tangled my life in your hair, Janette,
'Twas a silken and golden snare, my pet;
But, so gentle the bondage, my soul did implore,
The right to continue your slave evermore,
With my fingers enmeshed in your hair, my pet.

Thus ever I dream what you were, Janette,
With your lips, and your eyes, and your hair, my pet;
In the darkness of desolate years I moan,
And my tears fall bitterly over the stone
That covers your golden hair, my pet.

LEST WE FORGET.

Where Much is Given Much Will Be Required.

In the midst of a tumult of prosperity it is highly fitting that a people should now and again stop, look and listen. The sheen of the golden calf often lures the individual and likewise whole people away from the "God of our fathers" to the worship of strange and enervating gods.

It may be for a time a comforting thought for this great and watchful nation to say "soul take thy ease," but where much is given it is an immutable law that great will be the requirement. While other peoples are buried in sorrow and a deluge of unspeakable cruelties we stand in the enthralling sweetness of concord and peace. The gift is great. The responsibility is correspondingly so. There is none so craven who would wish to avoid it. Just now it would be well for all Americans to read Kipling's words:

"Judge of the Nations, Spare us yet,
Lest we forget. Lest we forget—

If drunk with sight of power, we loose
Wild tongues that have not Thee in awe,
Such boasting as the Gentiles use
Or lesser breeds without the law;
Lord God of Hosts, be with us yet,
Lest we forget. Lest we forget—

For heathen heart that puts her trust
In reeking tube and iron shard,
All valiant dust that builds on dust,
And guarding, calls not Thee to guard;

For frantic boast and foolish word—
The mercy on Thy people, Lord."

HOW TO BE SUCCESSFUL.

Boy Who Does His Duty and a Little More is the One Who Gains Success.

What are the things that lead to success? Here are a few of them: One should rely on himself. Self-reliance is the noblest expression of manhood.

Make yourself indispensable. Don't look at the clock.

Win the confidence of your employer. Work for him as if you were working for yourself. You will then be appreciated and promoted.

Be sure of your facts. Otherwise you will lose the esteem of your superior.

Marry early. Have a home of your own.

A man who is not susceptible to encouragement will never succeed. A college education is not necessary for a business man. What is necessary is to start at the bottom of the ladder and work up.

Every man should read and study in his spare hours.

No success is built on influence. You must win your position for yourself.

Then there is another big thing that is essential—you must do what you are employed to do a little better than anybody else does it. Everybody is expected to do his duty, but the boy who does his duty and a little more than his duty is the boy who is going to succeed in this world.

You must take an interest in what you are doing and it must be a genuine interest.

Only a man's fool friends will refuse to allow him to use his own judgment as to whether he wants a drink or not.
