GONE WEST.

By Lieutenant-Governor O. Max Gardner.

Among the loyal and friendly souls who have passed through the Valley of the Shadow into the perfect light of a new day, preeminently stand out those brave and true defenders of a Christlike cause who have heroically fallen at the battle front or died while in the service of their Motherland, those superb young men who offered their bodies as a living sacrifice that the sacred ideals of their forefathers should live forever. They have "Gone West." Aye! Gone West! "Out of the din and clamor; out of the bitterness and strife; out of the fierce passion of combat, into the dreamlike silence whose shadows mark the pathway to the stars. Our quaking summit of Calvary into the realm of glory where God's banners of the agony of Gethsemane, over the never-furl, where victory is sure! So these stainless knights of a stainless cause move down the West, where earth's last glimmer fades and dies, and into God's spreading dawn, whose light is eternal, whose glory never fades."

What words more fitting could those soldiers overseas have coined for that gallant setting forth on the Great Adventure toward that "bourne from whence no traveler returns?" Filled with the high hope of life's morning, its jest and songs still faintly echoing these fearless champions of the highest and holiest vision ever fought for since life's sunset, and behind the sunset are the hills of God where surely all things glorious await these victors of justice, of mercy and of truth. Any tribute that my lips may frame seems all too inadequate to express the reverence, the awe, the sacred pride that fills our lives today as we speak of those golden-hearted, white souled patriots who died that liberty might not perish from the earth, that our shores should be free from the oppressor's heel, that our homes might not be desecrated, our America torn with woes unutterable.

I stand with uncovered head in the presence of their sainted memory, humbled before the greatness of the supreme sacrifice that they so freely paid, proud beyond words of those noble sons of North Carolina, who have held aloft the honored traditions of their native State and added new luster to her crown of glory. The proudest page of our Carolina's history will bear the names of those great souled heroes who laid their lives, rich with promise and bright with hope, upon the altar of civilization.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy

Before using this preparation for a cough or cold you may wish to know what it has done for others. Mrs. O. Cook, Macon, Ill., writes: "I have found it gives the quickest relief of any cough remedy I have ever used." Mrs. Jas. A. Knott, Chillum, Mo., says: "Chamberlain's Cough Remedy cannot be beat for coughs and colds." H. J. Moore, Oval, Pa., says: "I have used Chamberlain's Cough Remedy on several occasions when I was suffering with a settled cold upon the chest and it has always brought about a cure."

Christopher, Ill.—"For four years I suffered from irritability, weakness, nervousness, and was in a run down condition. Two of our best doctors failed to do me any good. I heard so much about what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had done for others, I tried it and was cured. I am no longer nervous, an regular, and in excellent health. I believe the Compound will cure any female trouble."—Mrs. ALICE HELLER, Christopher, Ill.

Nervousness is often a symptom of weakness or some functional derangement, which may be overcome by this famous root and herb remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, as thousands of women have found by experience. If complications exist, write Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass., for suggestions in regard to your ailment. HAPPINESS.

Though it is raining I care not for raining or for blowing; I know behind the clouds somewhere the sun is glowing, glowing. And yellow golden days await beyond the pitter-patter Of the cold rain; so what do all the clouds and rain drops matter? The limbs of the pecans are bare, the leaves are slowly falling, But from a sheltered nook somewhere a mocking bird is calling; And though the pink rose petals fall, I know the rose is living; And there is shelter for my loves, and life is all thanksgiving.

The violet holds a green leaf above its heads for shelter, And children who came out to play dash indoors helter-skelter, And tonight they'll peep from the door, and I will dare the weather— And what are we low-hung clouds to use when we are all together? And when we're playing hide and seek, what though rain drops falling? We can not hear their pitter for the laughter and the calling. Though the leaves are brown and falling down we know the trees are living, And love stands with her arms outstretched, and love is all thanksgiving.

J. M. Lewis, in Houston Post.

THE WAR BRIDE.

It isn't enough to love him in his manhood's beauty rare, It isn't enough to give him your girl-life, sweet and fair, It isn't enough to break your heart when the last good-bye is said, It isn't enough to feel life's done, when you know that he is dead.

But tell me this little girl bride, can you look at the future true? Can you thank the venomous war gods if they bring him back to you? Bring him, not as they took him, a beautiful straight young god, But a figure broken and shattered, can you smile and kiss the rod?

If he's given his eyes for his country and must walk in the dark through life, Can you give him yours unregreting, with the courage of a soldier's wife?

If his youth and brightness have left him, and the face that you love is scared, Can you meet him with arms wide open, not knowing his beauty is marred?

Can you be to him sensitive fingers, a crutch, without hurrying his pride? Can you face each day with rejoicing, not feeling there's something to hide?

Can you live without malice or hatred for a world that has taken so much? If you can, you're the mate for a soldier; you are hallowed by war's cleansing touch.

GETTING A SECOND WIFE.

"Woman Rules Here."

Some time ago The Companion, under the title A Cautious Lover, told the story of how the eccentric traveling evangelist, Lorenzo Dow, courted his first wife, Peggy. A subscriber who read the little article with interest has written us an entertaining account of his second matrimonial venture—in which he was less cautious and, justly enough, less fortunate.

Some months after the death of Peggy, writes our contributor, Mr. Dow preached under a giant elm at Bean Hill, Norwich, Connecticut. At the close of the sermon he told of the death of his beloved Peggy and aroused the sympathy of all his hearers. He paused a few moments for the display of emotion to subside, then said he was ready to marry again, and asked that if any one in the audience would consent to be his wife she would signify it by rising.

Miss Lucy Dolbear, tall and stately, rose, and with much dignity expressed herself as willing to accept him as her husband.

"The Lord's will be done," said Lorenzo. Evidently, Miss Lucy somewhat regretted her hasty decision, for it was not until some time later that she came with him to the house of the minister in Salem, Connecticut to be married.

The couple arrived at midnight in the dark and rain and, quite like more romantic couples, roused the minister by throwing gravel on his window. He drowsily put his nights capped head out of the window and inquired, "Who's there?" "It's Lorenzo Dow, and she says she is willing," was the reply that came from the darkness.

The minister knowing the fickleness of the lady, who had almost consented at other times, did not waste time in dressing, but at once began the marriage ceremony.

When he reached that part of the service where he asked Miss Lucy, "Wilt thou have this man to thy wedded husband? Wilt thou obey him, and serve him, love, honor and keep him in sickness and in health," she said "No! I will be a thorn in his flesh, a messenger from Satan to buffet him as long as I live."

The ceremony was concluded hastily. How well she kept her word is shown by the fact that when Lorenzo built a house in Montville he asked of her the privilege of having one room for himself. In it he had a huge fireplace built. The fireboard was painted blue, and on this suggestive background was painted a very bedraggled rooster minus most of his tail feathers, and underneath the motto, "Woman rules here."—Youth's Companion.

THEIR PEACE TALK.

Magistrate—Great Scott, officer, how did these men come to be so badly bruised and battered up?

Officer—Please, Your Honor, they were discussing the peace settlement.

Children Cry FOR FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

A LONG WAIT.

This story is well-known in the camps, but somehow the soldiers have managed to keep it to themselves. On a certain part of the British line—so the story runs—information was leaking out and a reward was offered for the capture of the spy. The soldiers took up the hunt keenly, and one night while a member of a patrol was out in No Man's Land he entered a shell-shattered ruin and discovered a wrinkled old man whose clothing was all rags and tatters. "Got you at last!" said the soldier. "Come out of it, you old blighter; you're the man that's been spying on us for Jerry, are you?" The old man vigorously protested that he was a patriotic Frenchman. "I've been here since 1870," he said, "and I haven't been relieved yet."

Chamberlain's Tablets.

When you are troubled with indigestion or constipation take Chamberlain's Tablets. They strengthen the stomach and enable it to perform its functions naturally. Indigestion is usually accompanied by constipation and is aggravated by it. Chamberlain's Tablets cause a gentle movement of the bowels relieving the constipated condition.

WE DON'T DOUBT IT.

An Irishman suffered from a stomach ailment. The doctor was called in, and on his second visit questioned his patient.

"Have you been drinking hot water an hour before each meal, as I directed. If so, how do you feel now?"

"Doc," said Pat, "I tried hard to do it, but I had to quit. I drank for thirty-five minutes, and feel like a balloon."

KEEPING THE SECRET.

Stella—"Molly told me you told her that secret I told you not to tell her."

Bella—"It's beastly of her to have told you that! Why, I told her not to!"

Stella—"Well, I told her I would not tell you she told me. So don't tell her I did."—Tri Bits.

Weekly Health Talks

A WORD ABOUT THE KIDNEYS BY DOCTOR WATSON.

People are easily frightened when they think something is the matter with their lungs or heart, and well they may be; but few people understand the dangers of diseased kidneys. These organs have a duty of vital importance to perform, and if they are diseased, there is no telling how or where the symptoms may appear. The kidneys are filters, and when they are healthy they remove the poisons from the blood and purify it. When the kidneys are diseased, the poisons are spread everywhere, and one of these poisons is uric acid. The uric acid is carried all through the system and deposited in various places, in the form of urate salts—in the feet, ankles, wrists and back—often forming bags under the eyes. Sometimes the resulting trouble is called rheumatism, lumbago, sciatica and backache. Finally, come stone in the bladder, diabetes and Bright's disease.

Dr. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., in recent years, discovered that a certain combination of remedies would dissolve uric acid (urate salts) in the system. He found this combination to be harmless, so that he made it up in tablets, of double strength, and called them Anurie Tablets. They dissolve uric acid in the human system as hot coffee dissolves sugar. If you have uric acid troubles, don't delay in taking Anurie Tablets, which can be secured in the drug stores. You can write Dr. Pierce, too, and he will tell you what to eat and how to live so that more uric acid will not form in your system. Dr. Pierce will not charge for this advice.
