USING THE SUN AS A STOVE.

DEVICE INVENTED BY AMERICAN SCIENTIST IS ACKNOWLEDGED VALUABLE FUEL SAVER.

Baking bread and roasting meat on the summit of a mountain without fuel is possible by the use of a device invented by a scientist of the Smithsonian Institution, Washington, D. C. The intensity of the sun's rays is harnessed, the unusual energy is capitalized, and food can be cooked beyond the line of perpetual snows.

An astronomical mirror at the Smithsonian Institution is capable of receiving and measuring the energy of the sun rays, calculating that in summer the solar luminary transmits upon each acre of land equivalent to 7,500 horse-power.

The so-called "solar cooker" consists of a half-cylinder of iron lined with mirror glass, which catches the rays of the sun and concentrates them upon a metal tube that is the half-cylinder's axis. The tube contains oil, which expands and becomes lighter, by the heat as it passes through the tube. The latter is continued to form a loop outside the half-cylinder, thus making a sort of endless chain.

Passing through the loop, the oil cools. However, the sun's heat forcing the oil through the portion of the tube inside the half-cylinder, compels the cooled oil to follow it, otherwise there would be a vacuum. So while the sun shines there is a continuous circulation of oil. The "loop" passes through a box which contains an oven. Heat from the oil warms the oven and does the desired cooking.

A WISH.

What would I ask for thee, wish for the sweet?
Skies that are peaceful and calm?
Seas that are stormless and winds that are soft
As the low breath of a psalm?
No, as I love thee, I ask not that life
Be from all bitterness free;
Something of sunshine and something of strife
Dear one, is better for thee.

Yet would I ask for thee out of my love
More of its sunshine than storm.
With just enough of life's shadow and strife
To keep the heart tender and warm,
Faith to look upward in gladness and gloom.
Hope 'mid the direst defeat;
Strength in all sorrow, and patience in pain,
These would I ask of thee, sweet.

These and yet more would I ask for thee, sweet;
Grace to be faithful and strong;
Meekness to bear all thy crosses and care.
Courage to battle with wrong.
May the good angels who watch o'er the good
Guide thy dear feet as they roam
And in the land that is better than this
Give thee forever a home!

EVER BILIOUS?

Charleston, Miss.—Mrs. R. V. Heins, of this place, says: "I have never had to use very much medicine, because if I felt headache, dizziness, or colds, bad taste in the mouth, which comes from torpid liver, I would take a dose or more of Black-Draught, and it would straighten me out and make me feel as good as new. We have used it in our family for years and it certainly is the best liver medicine I ever saw. It has not only saved me money, it has helped keep my system in shape, and has never weakened me as so many physics do. I recommend it to my friends and am glad to do so." Black-Draught is the old, reliable liver medicine which you have doubtless heard much about. When you feel badly all over, stomach not right, bad taste in your mouth, bilious, or have a headache, try Theford's Black-Draught. At all Druggists.

THEDFORD'S

BLACK-DRAUGHT

CHARACTER.

"TRUTH IS THE SUMMIT OF BEING; JUSTICE IS THE APPLICATION OF IT TO AFFAIRS."

Character is gauged by the modicum of Truth possessed. Toward it all good militates, and even evil acknowledges obedience. The person of real character is the composite of what is best in mankind, for "all things exist in the man tinged with the manners of his soul." This quality he exhales upon those about him, like a fragrant flower in the midst of noxious environment. Through time he excites the emulation of his fellows, and his precepts and example are the blessed heritage of posterity.

"Men of character are the conscience of the society to which they belong."
Impurity is inefficient and destined to eventual failure. It is necessarily narrow in vision, seeing only immediate effects, and content with sensuous or brief achievement generally attained by questionable methods.

Character is courageous, though often beaten down by circumstances beyond its control, it never, to itself, acknowledges defeat, but with inherent strength, arises to the battle with new weapons of experience gained in each conflict.

While circumstances constantly change, these alone can never repair defects of character. Wrong doing, if deliberate and with malice-afore-thought, leaves an indelible blot on the escutcheon. The wound may heal, but the scar remains despite the balm of time.

Those capable of fear are always finding terrors. To such, mole-hills assume the proportions of mountains, pygmies become giants, the cry of Victory does not ring out, they bear naught but the wail of defeat. They become sycophants at the feet of Success.

Character does not always wear a chaplet of palms, but frequently bleeds beneath a crown of thorns. It always carries its cross bravely, and reviles not its pigny detractors, but rather pines them and says, "Father forgive them for they know what they do."

Character "is never less alone, then when alone," for it makes its own environment, sustained by an exaltation that is the consummation of the ages, a transport that is a sparkling stream ever fed by eternal springs of Truth.

Character is always Positive, and in almost constant warfare with all forces of negation. Love is its strongest weapon. A word, warm from the heart, will often disarm the selfish foe, and cause him to surrender at discretion.

Contrast the deathlike cold of atheistic philosophy, with the glowing fire of life diffused by character, whose component elements Divine in their attributes.

"Character is Nature in the highest form."

The perfect man, since Christ, is yet to be; but let us strive to live so that those we leave behind may think of us as benefactors to the race, and may our monument consist of a halo of stars of thought and deeds, that shall forever shine in the firmament of recollection.

HIS HOUSING PROBLEM.

A Missouri farmer who called his newly employed hired man out of bed at four o'clock in the morning was surprised a few moments later to see the man walking off down the road.

"Say! Come back an eat breakfast 'fore you go to work!"
"I ain't going to work," the man called back, "I'm goin' to hunt somewhere to stay all night."

How To Be Healthy.

If you would enjoy good health keep your bowels regular and your stomach and liver in good working order. This is easily done by taking Chamberlain's Tablets. These tablets strengthen the stomach and regulate the stomach and bowels. They are easy to take and mild and gentle in effect. They only cost a quarter.

Many a man wishes his running expenses would slow down to a walk.
