HAYES FOR PRESIDENT.

Our readers now full well we have selected no other result than that now before the counting in of Hayes as President, through the instrumentality of the returning board at Washington, eight members of which are as unfair as the high places as the four rogues and scoundrels in Louisiana who deliberately went out legal votes and substituted others for them, or the biggest rogue of all who offered to sell the vote of the first to one party and then to the other. We favored the act constructing the mission as did the Democratic press, general thing everywhere. We believe that the men who had been called members of such a high tribunal, drawn from the Congress of the United States and from the Supreme Bench of the land, would be found to show partisan feeling as to render indirectly in consonance with the interest of the case, but in this it seems we are disappointed. The result evidences foul trait of Radicalism as well in places as in low places. Let us be understood, it is not the act reached by the Commission which we complain, but the manner in which the verdict was arrived at. The exclusion of the evidence in the case of both Florida and Louisiana was sufficient to indicate the result and on the minds of all honest people a full suspicion that the verdict was reached upon long before the case was brought into court. To assume to try a case upon its merits and yet to exclude the important testimony offered in that case is a queer way to answer the ends of justice. As we have said, we have no fault to find with the verdict but with the more questionable means through which it was reached. When the case was brought to the Commission we prepared ourselves to accept just such a result as that which has been reached, but not through dishonorable means. Had the evidence from Louisiana and Florida been sifted and carefully sifted and the case argued on the strength of that evidence, we would have been prepared to tender to the Commission just as honest plaintiffs as if Tilden, instead of us, had been awarded the prize. It is we can but take this honest effort to our soul: We would rather have Hayes counted in by fraud than have awarded the Presidency by similar means. Such a victory would have been more than defeat and one which we would hardly have survived. The Democratic party may have lost by its fraudulent rendition of its rightfully elected candidate but they have gained in all else. They stand before the country to-day stronger, far stronger, than they have at any time since the war and withstand upon their escutcheon. Returning Board Hayes will assume the Presidency under such conditions, let us make it. If he is installed President of the United States the Democrats of the North will show their loyalty to the man, for they cannot but feel that he was placed there by the fraud of the North and that he was legally elected at the polls by a popular majority of a quarter of a million of free voters.

HON. CALVIN GRAVES.

Our distinguished gentlemen, and honorable North Carolinian, died at his residence in Caswell county on Sunday last. He passed his three score years and was born in the county of Caswell and was one of its most honored families. He completed his education at the University of North Carolina and studied law. He pursued his profession for many years only, when feeble health and ample patrimony induced him to retire from his county however. He was elected to the House of Commons in 1840. He was re-elected in 1842, 1844, 1846, and 1848. He was subsequently elected to the Senate in 1846, and in 1848. At this session he was elected to preside over that body, and while Speaker of the Senate. He is indebted for the long length of his life from Goldsboro to Charlotte. It was at this session that the bill constructing the North Carolina R. R. was introduced and after some most able debates the vote was taken and it was in favor of the Speaker and in favor of the bill. For this he incurred the wrath of his constituents, but his name will long be remembered and honored as that of one of the noblest sons of our State.

Dr. Pritchard, of Raleigh, will assist the Pastor. — The Observer says that not less than 20 fine residences, to cost from $2,500 to $6,000, will be erected in Charlotte this Summer, provided Tilden is declared elected. We are afraid that they won't be built. — The Tarboro Southerner says: The celebrated blooded racer, Jenifer, left here last Monday for Baltimore to go in training for the races that come off there in May. He will also visit Saratoga, Philadelphia and other places before his return. — The Wilson Express says: The crowd in attendance at Nash Court last Tuesday, wound up in a general row and free fight. The row commenced about 4 o'clock and lasted until six, during which time many became excited and took active parts. We have not been able to obtain the full particulars, but learn that one man was severely stabbed. — The Rocky Mount Mail says: Mr. Lawrence Boone on Tuesday morning just before day, got up and went to his stable with torch in hand to feed his horse. Shepherd is a mere youth, not yet fifteen years of age, and for that reason and the small amount of the stealing his pardon was granted. — The Greensboro Patriot says: An affray took place near Dr. Weatherly's yesterday afternoon. Two men named Rich and Reiley, it seems were at a frolic and after returning began teasing each other. Rich became provoked at something said by Reiley and taking a billet of wood, struck him on the head, crushing the skull in one or more places. Dr. Hall was sent for and pronounced the injuries fatal. Rich remained around for some time but has since disappeared. — The Newbern Nut Shell says: On Wednesday Judge Seymour, on the application of some of the stockholders of the Atlantic and North Carolina Railroad, issued an injunction restraining President Humphrey, his Board of Directors or the Secretary and Treasurer of the Company from paying the interest on the bonded debt of the road, now past due. This action, we understand, is based on the usury law of the State, and the case will likely go up to the Supreme Court, and the result will be looked for with great interest by the people of this section.

In Distress.

Legislative Locals.

The bill to organize a government for the city of Wilmington, was introduced into the Senate, on Thursday, by Mr. Short, and was referred to the committee on Judiciary.

In the House, Mr. Fennell introduced a resolution, which was placed on the calendar, of instruction to Judiciary committee in relation to the bill in regard to the New Hanover Criminal Court bill and Mr. Richardson, a bill to establish a Board of Audit and Finance, for the city of Wilmington.

Col. Burr's Essay.

By notice published in our advertising columns this evening it will be seen that the Essay recently read by Col. Jas. G. Burr before the Historical and Scientific Society, on the Early Settlement of the Cape Fear, is to be delivered in public at Masonic Hall next Tuesday evening, the proceeds to be applied to the benefit of the Ladies Benevolent Society.

All know, as well as we do, that this Essay will well repay all who may attend at its delivery, inasmuch as it abounds in interesting historical facts which have been gathered together after much labor and patient research and which should always prove an attractive subject to the denizens of the Cape Fear section. In addition to this fact, however, is that of the object for which it is delivered and which, as it is strong enough to induce Col. Burr to deliver it, should be strong enough to influence others to go to hear it. We hope that the Hall will be full on the occasion.

Similar Weather.

There has been a curious similarity in the January and February weather of the last three years. The greater part of January has been warm—too warm to be at all natural to the season, while about the middle of February bitter cold winds have set in. Last Monday night the change occurred, following so closely upon the beautiful spring weather of Sunday; but it is to be hoped that the parallel will not be followed out so consistently as appearances make probable. However some persons may like the bracing, still, cold days of winter, the bitter and piercing blasts from the North are detested alike by all, even by the big and corpulent fellows with cuirasses of fat; and they bring suffering to many ill-warmed and poverty-stricken homes, and make their work very hard to many toilers out of doors.

City Court.

The following cases were disposed of by the Mayor this morning: Henry Bryan, charged with the larceny of a rope, the property of Messrs. Wilder & Morton, was ordered to give bond in the sum of $100 for his appearance at next term of Superior Court, failing in which he was committed to jail. Betty Faison, for disorderly conduct, was fined $20 and costs or 30 days work on the streets. Charles Brown, disorderly, was fined $5 and costs. Christopher Huggins, charged with keeping a house of ill-fame, case dismissed. The same, arraigned for disorderly conduct, was found guilty but judgment was suspended on payment of costs.

In this age of education and general intelligence the household is hardly complete without a Cornish & Co. Piano or Organ. Read the advertisement in another column, and then send for illustrated catalogue and price list.

Miss Anderson as Juliet.

Considering the inclemency of the weather a very fine audience greeted Miss Mary Anderson, the young tragedienne, on the occasion of her appearance last night at the Opera House. Romeo and Juliet was the play and we imagine that it is Miss Anderson's best role. The lady is young, very young for one assuming such characters, yet her conception of Shakspeare's grand creation would do credit to some who have passed more years in the profession than Miss Anderson has lived altogether. She is not yet perfect, but gives a promise of such excellence in the near future as will place her highest on the ladder on the histrionic lists.

It is difficult to analyze briefly the acting of "Juliet." From first to last she was superb. Such complete identification with the character, such intensity of acting, such an observance of all the changes and strength of emotion, have perhaps never been seen on our stage. "Too early seen unknown, and known too late," she asks the nurse, "who is he that follows there, that would not dance?" Her reading of the part in the balcony scene is almost perfect, with its change of voice, now soft with love, now harsher in terror at the thought of his being slain should any of her kinsmen find him there. This part is full of these changes and alterations commencing with her passionate delivery, and then her start of surprise at the intruder in the garden, relenting again, with a heavenly smile of love at his name. It is almost impossible to convey to the reader an idea of her rendering of this.

Her manner of awakening in the tomb is admirable. Her rising dazed at the unremembered place, her faltering tongue and broken utterance, her seizing the poison glad discovery of the dagger, and crawling with her weakened strength to the body of "Romeo," upon whose breast she places her living form, and dies with a farewell kiss, of course, complete one of the grandest impersonations of the stage. Miss Anderson was only "tolerably" supported. Mr. Boniface, as Mercutio, was indeed excellent, rendering the character with much care and completeness and withal with much of originality, while it may be said that Mr. Pearson as Friar Lawrence and Miss Weidman as the nurse did well.

The Galaxy.

The Galaxy opens with a semi-historical article upon the English peerage, with sketches and anecdotes of the Howards, the Percys, and other families illustrious in the golden age of England. Titus Munson Corn contributes a very curious and interesting study of the poet Wordsworth. This article cannot be read too carefully by young writers. The most novel and original, and we may say daring article in the number is Mr. Hickox's plea for the revival of the whipping post, which he claims is the only means by which tramps and petty thieves and rogues may be effectually disposed of. Dr. A. H. Guernsey presents the political aspect of Europe to the reader spread out as it were on a map, and shows at a glance the objects and dangers with which Russia and England are concerning themselves, and other European nations are anxiously speculating. Mr. Whittaker discourses upon the construction of plays. Mr. David Ker, an English traveller, gives a sketch of a journey on the river Don, between Austria and lower Russia. Mr. Henry Selly emulates Bret Harte in a story of frontier life with a sentimental coloring. There is also a curious love story by Ivan Tourgneff. The number contains a striking poem by Sidney Lanier and poems by Kate Hillard and Mary L. Ritter, and closes with an interesting and valuable resume of the latest intelligence in the scientific, literary, and æsthetic world.

The Register of Deeds has issued marriage license this week to 1 white and 4 colored couples.
