THE ELECTION YESTERDAY.

Yesterday's election gives the Demorats of the city entire control of its affairs for the next two years, provided the new Aldermen all remain true to the faith, and we canot doubt that they will. The result in the Fourth Ward is a surpise and a mortification to us, and the strange spectacle is presented there of two Democrats, who opposed the regular nominces of the party, elected to office by Republican votes. The triumph of this faction of the Democratic party is not so much the defeat of their opponents as it is their own shame.

It is not our desire in th's art c'e to question the political integrity of either of those gentlemen who were elected from troops. the Fourth Ward, but we do desire to place upon record, our protest against the means by which their election was secured Such, if persisted in, will kill any party ja the world, and the party that would continue to permit such schemes to triumph would descree to die. Even now the boast it made, an idle boast, let us hopes that the Republicans have triumphed, and their cheers over the ease with which they have managed to split the the result.

But the election has been held and the result has been declared. We, as a good citizen aud a good Democrat, will not be the last to submit to that which is inevitable. We accept the result in the Fourth ward in good faith but under pretest, not as regards the fact, but as to the manner in which if was accomplished.

NEW ORLEANS, March 21, 1877.—The political situation has to-day grown more complicated, and possibly more threatening. The people have had such implicit confidence in Mr. Hayes' recent promises to immediately withdraw the troops that the news of the Cabinet's adverse decision to-day is received with consternation. An unpleasant conviction is growing in the community that the so-called 'Southern policy" announced by the administration was a delusion and a snare concocted by Morton and others to trick them out of what they esteem the legitimate results of the election.

The proposed visiting commission is viewed with general disfavor as an effort to compromise where no basis for any compromise exists, and the old manifest determination to resist a longer imposition Packard and carpet-bag rule to the last extremity is being rekindled in all its
