THE REIGN OF TERROR.

A Spectacular Conflict and an Appalling Spectacle.

OVER TWO HUNDRED LIVES LOST.

SOLDIERS DRIVEN BEFORE PITTSBURGH'S CROWDS.

Thirty-Five Hundred Cars Burned.

THE STRIKE EXTENDING.

[New York Sun.]

PITTSBURGH, July 22.—The sun dawned this morning on one of the most terrible scenes ever witnessed except in the carnage of war. The fire raged with unaltered fury, and the flames kept creeping steadily toward the depot. At 6 o'clock the large machine shops by the tracks between Twenty-sixth and Twenty-seventh streets caught fire, and burning cars were wheeled on to the Allegheny Valley railroad and sent down that track in the direction of the city. At 6:30 the fire broke out in the depot, and before 7 o'clock it had become evident that the Fire Department were powerless to save it, and streams were piled upon the neighboring private buildings. From the crest of the hill behind the depot a continuous line of fire, flame, mouldering ruins, and smoke extended along the tracks a distance of three miles. The mob was still triumphant, and not a drop of water has been allowed to be thrown upon the company's property. The scenes were terrific. Many of the stores burned near the depot contained grog and whiskey, from which barrels were taken, and from which gallons were distributed. The Atlantic and Pacific wires along the track have all been cut. The Adams Express Company have moved everything from their depot store house to offices on Fifth street. They have lost heavily during the morning. There was no wind in the early part of the day, but during the afternoon a southwest breeze started up, which has since freshened to a steady wind, and a pall of smoke overhangs the lower part of the city east of Smithfield street and reaching to the Monongahela. At 5 o'clock buildings on the side of the hill east, and on the opposite side of the tracks from the elevator, caught fire, and by 5:30 the fire had extended a block and a half up Washington street, from which street the fire spread both ways on Webster street. This is a district on the hill covered with low tenement houses, which are closely packed with workmen and their families. Consternation has taken possession of the property holders of the city. Their only thought is by some means to bring about a reconciliation, no matter on what terms, between the Pennsylvania Railroad and strikers. All who are in favor of quelling the riot were entreated to meet at the Mayor's office at 5:30. Carts and express wagons, with families of from four to ten children, with what little household furniture had been saved from the flames, are continually passing through the streets for Allegheny and Birmingham, across the Monongahela. 8:56 P. M.—Nothing has been more striking during the day than the apathy with which the tens of thousands that through the city have looked upon the riots, the bloodshed, and the burning of millions of property as they would look at a sensational drama. As evening approached they wended their way peacefully home, remarking carelessly that it was very terrible, and that the Pennsylvania Railroad had almost bankrupted the city and had only got what it deserved. As a result of the call to the Mayor's office 150 special constables were sworn in to protect the Baltimore and Ohio depot, and the large freight depots of the Pennsylvania Company at the foot of Liberty street, on the Monongahela quay. Volunteer vigilance committees were also formed, about 200 strong, and furnished with arms at Municipal Hall. Many of the vigilantes however, are in sympathy with the rioters. The 14th and 15th regiments of Pittsburgh disbanded. The 2,000 Philadelphia troops which left the East yesterday are stopped at Walls, twenty miles east, and nothing since has been heard from them. Mails from East are being bought from Latrobe, via the West Pennsylvania Railroad, twelve hours delayed. One of the strongest rallying cries of the rioters has been, "Let her burn, boys! It will give us work to do." 10:17 P. M.—Patron's apostrophe to Pittsburgh, at night as he stood on the heights of little Mount Washington—"It looks as though we were on the brink of hell and the lid was off" was never so true as to-night. There are fifty miles of hot rails, ten tracks side by side, with as many miles of ties turned into glowing coals, and tons on tons of iron car skeletons and wheels almost at white heat. Hundreds of coal and coke cars are still at full blast; two hotels, an elevator and many dwellings are burning furiously, and hundreds of smaller buildings along the line are still in a blaze, with the intermittent flashes of lurid light from the debris of the round house and machine shops. Away from the fire ring, the city at 8 o'clock was all in turmoil. A band of men set fire to the Port Wayne offices, a contents of the cars, or the ammunition of soldiers, is not known. At 4 o'clock the Rush House, opposite the depot, on Liberty street, caught fire. The Fire Department worked all the afternoon to keep the fire from catching the Rush House block, as it will burn very rapidly and is directly contiguous to the whole lower part of the city, while the depot is, or was, more by itself. Three thousand five hundred cars, all told, have been destroyed, the value of which, with their contents, is variously estimated from four to eight million of dollars. At 12 P. M. a mass meeting of citizens was called, and a committee of five consisting of Bishop Trugg, James D. Bennett, the Rev. Dr. Scoville, James P. Barr and Dr. Donnelly, appointed in accordance with the following resolutions: Resolved, That a committee be appointed to confer with the State, county and city authorities, and also the employees, workmen and the Pennsylvania Railroad officials, to secure the protection of property from wanton destruction, and an arrangement of the difficulty between the railroad company and the striking employees. Resolved, That in making this effort we pledge our faith to the workmen that we have no purpose to facilitate the introduction of an armed force, but look solely to the protection of the rights and interests of all by amicable means. At 4 the large grain elevator looking toward the city from the depot across an open square caught fire, and before 4 1/2 it became evident the Fire Department were powerless to save it, and streams were piled upon the neighboring private buildings. From the crest of the hill behind the depot a continuous line of fire, flame, mouldering ruins, and smoke extended along the tracks a distance of three miles. Away from the fire ring, the city at 8 o'clock was all in turmoil. A band of men set fire to the Port Wayne offices, a large five-story building at Tenth street and Pennsylvania avenue, but the attempt was discovered and little damage was done. In the sacking of Major Gen. A. L. Pearson's house, nothing was left whole from garret to cellar. His family, however, were not injured. Gen. Pearson himself is still believed to be dangerously wounded, if not killed. The officials of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company have kept themselves under very close cover, for fear of their lives. It is firmly believed that Tom Scott himself is here, but none but his closest friends know where he is. The troops at Wall did not come in, because no engineer would risk his life by bringing them here. It is understood that they have returned home.

NEWS SUMMARY.

An Adrianople despatch says that 18,000 of Suleiman Pasha's men have left for Jamboli, and the remainder with Suleiman himself will leave by next Thursday. The fortifications at Adrianople have been completed, and will be armed in the course of a week. Reuter's Ragusa despatch says the Montenegrin army, except six battalions that are guarding the Albanian frontier, arrived on Saturday near Niesies. The Prince of Montenegro is in command. It is said the bombardment of Niesies will be begun tomorrow. The Post's Berlin despatch says the Presse states that, in the event of disturbances in Constantinople, the German fleet in the Levant is instructed to act energetically for the protection of German interests in the East, and no less so for the interest of Russians remaining in Turkey under the protection of Germany. The Vienna correspondent of the Times sends the following: Mahmoud Damad Pasha has assumed the functions of War. It is said that Abdul Kerim and Redif Pashas are to be exiled to Broussa. Another telegram from Therapia says there are to be tried. The whaleboat New Bedford, that made the daring voyage across the Atlantic, arrived at Mount's Bay, Cornwall, on Saturday night. Capt. Crapo and his wife landed at Penzance Sunday morning. They encountered three gales, lost some of their clothing, and were obliged to lie to for 15 days. Capt. Crapo's left hand is nearly useless through constant steering. Despatches from Washington say that the day closes with travel and transportation utterly demoralized, except in the South, New England and west of the Mississippi. Elsewhere than in Ohio, other than railroad industry is not yet affected. Militia in New York, Pennsylvania and Ohio are starting from nearly everywhere, but they never arrive anywhere. The helplessness of the Federal and State authorities is pitiful. There is no safety outside of the forbearance of the strikers and the firmness of the municipal authorities.

Good material is always requisite to great results. You may have the best flour, eggs, milk, shortening however, and still have poor bread, cake, pastry, etc. Why? You didn't use DOOLEY YEAST POWDER. With this last magic element to give order, harmony, and union to the rest, the result is a mathematical certainty.

Charles (playfully)—"How much, really, did that cost, Jennie?" Jennie (archly)—"If you really want to inspect the bills of my dry goods, Charles, there is a way to do it." And what else could Charles do but propose on the spot?

Astronomers assert that the moon's speed is increasing. This will be joyful intelligence for the young man who takes his girl riding evenings. She never wants to go in till the moon does, and that team costs the young man one dollar an hour.

There was no City court to-day, and but one arrest last night, that of a sailor for drunkenness, who was released about 4 o'clock this morning upon application of the Captain of his vessel, who was about to spread his canvass for a voyage, and of course wanted all his Jack Tars with him. In consideration of the above mentioned fact the jolly son of Neptune was released.

A Bull Dog Shot.

Another child bitten by a dog on the street yesterday, and another bull dog slayed by the authorities yesterday. The owner of the dog above mentioned came forward and informed against his own dog, and delivered him up to the Chief of Police, who thereupon executed the law by executing the dog.

To Preserve Quinces.

Pick out the finest quinces, pare them and cut them in halves, or in rings; take the best of the parings and the seed, and boil them in water till they are very soft; strain the liquor, and have kettle cleaned again; wash and weigh the quinces, and give them their weight in sugar, put the sugar in the water the parings were boiled in; skim it, and put in the quinces; let them boil very slowly till clear; take them up on dishes; and boil the syrup awhile longer.

Railroad vs. Telegraph.

Under the present fast schedule between Wilmington and New York and other Northern cities the mail brings us daily our Northern exchanges with the fullest details of important events only a few hours old that are transpiring every day, both in this country and in Europe. By this arrangement we are enabled to lay before our readers matters of news frequently, that is not contained in the Associated Press dispatches to any paper south of Baltimore on the Atlantic coast. The foreign news that is sent south of Baltimore by the Associated Press is only what the New York papers contained the day before.

Consequently an afternoon paper in Wilmington, can lay before its readers a better and fuller account of foreign news, and frequently of current events in this country than is sent by the Associated Press dispatches for morning publication here.

The press dispatches that are received South and published in some instances, are so niggardly, that it is frequently the case that the arrival of the Northern mail has to be awaited to get at the full sense of the meaning of the unintelligible synopsis of the dispatches.

The Augusta Chronicle & Constitutionalist, the only daily paper published in Augusta, Ga., we believe, is an exception to this, and displays a good deal of liberality to its readers and devotes nearly one whole side of its immense sheet to the publication of all the press telegrams.

Somebody remarks that young ladies look upon a boy as a nuisance until he is past the age of 16, when he generally doubles in value each year until, like a colored meerschaum pipe, he is priceless.
