

The Daily Review.

JOSH. T. JAMES, Ed. and Prop. WILMINGTON, N. C. MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 3, 1877.

NORTH CAROLINIANS AND PICKETT'S DIVISION AT GETTYSBURG.

On March the 3d, 1876, we published in the EVENING REVIEW of that date the following article, together with extracts taken from a letter of General Trimble's which appeared in the March number of Our Living and Our Dead.

There has been so much written and said by Virginia papers and orators about the famous charge of Pickett's Division at Gettysburg, and the failure of North Carolina troops to support Pickett on the occasion above referred to, that we are glad to see that that gallant old soldier, Maj. Gen. Trimble, of Maryland, who commanded a portion of Pender's Division after the brave North Carolinian had received his mortal wound, has come to the front in defence of his gallant Tar Heels and has written a communication to Our Living and Our Dead.

So far as relates to the good conduct of North Carolina troops from the beginning to the close of the war, I think their untiring courage in action, their patient submission to the privations of the camp and the march, their almost child-like docility and acceptance of discipline everywhere, and, when circumstances needed it, their daring valor, are now recognized and appreciated by all.

Both Northern and Southern descriptions of the battle of Gettysburg in the third day's contest have, without perhaps a single exception down to the present time, given not only most conspicuous prominence to Gen. Pickett's division, but generally, by the language used, have created the impression among those not personally acquainted with the events of the day, that Pickett's men did all the hard fighting, suffered the most severely, and fell in his charge because not only or rigorously supported by the troops on his right and left.

No one acquainted with the facts can, for a moment, doubt the intrepid bravery and splendid bearing of Pickett's men; they did all that any men could do under the circumstances, but others did as well, went as far, or further, fought longer and lost as heavily.

North Carolinians who participated in the battles that were fought by the army of Northern Virginia, do not need the testimony of any individual or individuals to prove their courage. Their own deeds are sufficient record of that fact, and the bones of our fallen heroes that lie mouldering in the dust in every valley and upon every hill-top in Virginia where hostile shots were exchanged, from Bethel to Appomattox Court House, will bear ample testimony as to how, and where North Carolinians were in the thickest of the fray.

It would be but just though, for those of our Virginia contemporaries who published Col. Taylor's report, to publish Majors Engelhard and Young's and Gen'l Lane's reports also, for they were not only eye witnesses, but were active participants in the charge. Col. Taylor was not a participant and only viewed the battle from afar, and his report is only made from the reports of others, and he does even the injustice to North Carolinians to copy some portions of Engelhard's and Young's and Lane's reports, so much as it suits his purpose and convenience, and entirely ignores that portion which testifies to the achievement of those North Carolina troops who had to advance nearly three times the distance which Pickett's men had to march, and then not only reached the works of the enemy, but were compelled to fall back on account of the troops on their right (being none other than the same Pickett's division) retreating.

There is a good deal of unwritten history in regard to the conduct of many Virginia troops during the late war, which might be given to the public. Conduct, too, which reflects no credit upon them, and which if our contemporaries of the Virginia press continue to defame North Carolina soldiers, will be published. It is time North Carolinians everywhere should begin to assert the truth. Virginia has claimed all the honors since the war, and even during the war Virginia papers did not hesitate to North Carolina troops.

Be it remembered this is not a quarrel of our own seeking, and if our friends of the Virginia press continue to publish these false reports, we will give them some very unpalatable truths concerning some of their crack Virginia troops, and we will substantiate and prove all that we say, too, and it will not be by those who viewed the battle from afar as Col. Taylor did at Gettysburg, but it will be by men who went with the line and participated in the charge. But we would rather that the quarrel should cease, and the only way to bring about an amicable and honorable settlement, is for the Virginia papers to publish the truth as it has been written by active participants, of the memorable charge on the 3d day of July at Gettysburg.

[COMMUNICATED.]

Transactions of the Twenty-Fourth Annual Meeting of the Medical Society of the State of North Carolina, held at Salem, N. C., May 22d, 1877. pp. 89. L. V. & E. T. Blinn, Printers, Salem, N. C.

We always welcome the annual transactions of the N. C. Medical Society to our table, but after examining its typography and paper and general appearance, hope that the next issue may be an improvement on its predecessor, a thing which we have not realized, however, in several years.

Among the many papers reported to the Society at Salem we are disappointed in not seeing several which were announced, room being given only to the "Notes on Epilepsy," by Dr. Grissom, Supt. Insane, "Sundry Cases" by Dr. Lane, of Wilmington, Valectory address of President Foote on "Hypodermic Injections," and by Dr. Satchwell, on "State Board of Health." This does not do justice to the profession, and should not be so; but the reason of the non-appearance of several papers is the fact well known to the several contributors, of the lack of funds in the treasury.

Dr. Joseph Graham's (of Charlotte) paper on Surgical Injury of the Uterus, was a resume of the literature of the subject which no doubt cost the author a great deal of study and painstaking, and this, in connection with his own wide experience made a paper of unusual importance. No entirely original paper upon the subject he treated could be complete, and could not possibly, therefore, be as instructive. It is to be regretted that Dr. Graham saw reason for withholding it from this issue of the transactions.

We have reason to complain too (of the Committee this time) in failing to publish Dr. Shaffner's able address on the History of Medicine, a neglect not to be understood, unless it was that Dr. Shaffner being the Chairman of the Committee on Publication, took this mistaken position.

Another we notice with regret is that so slight a notice should be taken of "A well-preserved specimen of 'Cerebellar Embolism' of the arteries of the right side, with remarks on the history of the case," by Dr. Chas. Duffy. We look upon Dr. Duffy's specimen as deserving of particular and especial notice. It was a case in which the patient had been under observation for some time by Dr. D., a diagnosis clearly made out, and the verity of the diagnosis established by post-mortem appearances, a fact so significant that every physician will understand its cleverness.

Another item: "Dr. Bahmson made some observations on fourteen cases of puerperal convulsions occurring in his practice." This is all said about the most important paper and the most important discussion which took place at this session. Dr. Bahmson's paper was well prepared; a subject which he had been digesting for several years, and it, together with the discussions thereon, could be taken fairly as criteria of the status of the profession in the State on this important subject. We express the opinion of many thoughtful physicians when we say that if all the rest of the time had been thrown away, the morning devoted to puerperal convulsions was worth all the expense of the visit. It was too important to be dismissed with a mere notice. Furthermore, we are assured that several other papers were not presented, because of the rush and desire to get back home within a certain time. It must be remembered that nearly all of these papers are voluntary and few men able to write a good paper are going to scramble to seek an audience. The Medical Society is evidently deficient in its means of developing the best literary culture of its members. It is not to be wondered at that the Secretary, with no previous experience, should not have had fuller notes of the transactions, and we hope next time that the Society will employ early in its first session a phonographer to aid the Secretary.

Of the papers printed, no adequate idea could be expressed in a non-medical journal. They will probably receive attention from the medical press. The Board of Health work inaugurated by the Society will no doubt overshadow all other things. Nothing has been done by the Legislature which will do more to stimulate medical research in North Carolina, but in saying this we in no way commit ourselves to saying that the Legislature treated it as a matter of any great importance; unwittingly, however, the medical profession has been started in a new field by the Legislature, and the good they do the State will depend upon the aid the State will give.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

WASHINGTON Sept. 1, 1877.

On Thursday next Mr. Hayes and several members of his Cabinet go to Ohio, to complete the work of that other office-holder, John Sherman, and bulldoze the voters of the State into the support of the Administration. They will not take with them, as Johnson did on his western trip, "the constitution and the flag," but will offer to the people policy of civil service reform, involving among other things the exclusion of the office holder from politics. It is a fact noted all over the world that this chief characteristic of American humor is its broadness. Nothing tickles a genuine Yankee unless it outdoes in burlesque all that has been done before. I much question if anything done, said or written, from the foundation of the Government to the time of Artemus Ward, will be looked upon hereafter as more amusing than this journey, by this Administration, just prior to an election. All that is wanted is for Schurz to go along with the rest, and charge forth his speeches. That would complete the farce.

In Sherman's speech, by the way, on his tramp in Ohio, he uttered a great deal of financial nonsense, but one thing he said was utterly false, yet so cunningly stated as to deceive those not familiar with the facts. He conveyed the impression that money was so plenty in the country that people were leaving sums in the Treasury until they could find profitable use for it outside. The general impression has been that the fact was the reverse of this, that people were trying to get money out of the Treasury. The Secretary says over sixty-four million of dollars are held by him as Secretary, awaiting the call of the owners. I will tell you how the sixty-four millions are made up, and you can understand the deception of the Secretary. If a contractor or other claimant against the Government is found to have any sum—say $1000—due him, a draft for the amount is made out, payable to him. If not called for in a certain length of time, by reason of the death, ignorance or carelessness of the owner, the sum goes to swell the Secretary's sixty-four millions. No effort is made to find the heirs, if the claimant is dead, or to get the money to him if he fails to call for it. Add to these sums the interest on a certain class of Government bonds, on which interest is only payable at the Treasury, and which is unclaimed for just the same reasons as are given above, and we account for nearly every dollar of the sixty-four millions attempted to be imposed on us as a voluntary deposit by the people. It is the custom of every other government to seek out such creditors and pay them.

Dispatches just received indicate an attempt on the part of Sitting Bull and Chief Success to unite their forces. Should they succeed in so doing they would command the largest hostile Indian force that has been in existence in many years past and they would no doubt attract to themselves many other Indians now at peace with the whites. Prompt action is demanded.

At the Cabinet meeting yesterday it was in effect decided it is said to remove Hon. A. B. Cornell, naval officer, New York, who has persisted in holding his office, and, at the same time, remaining a member of the National Republican Committee. He is the person holding high office who has not severed his connection with political bodies rather than be dismissed from place. It is said of him that no man has more efficiently performed the duties of his office. His supposed intimate relations with Senator Conkling make the decision of the Cabinet of considerable interest.

The letter of acceptance of Col. Holliday, Democratic candidate for Governor of Virginia, is published, and in it the coming Governor takes decided ground in favor of paying the State debt in full. E. L. Stanton, only son of E. M. Stanton, former Secretary of War, died here on Wednesday. He was a lawyer by profession, and had an extensive practice. He was respected by all members of the Washington bar, regardless of politics.

Health on a Sure Basis. In order to establish health on a sure basis the enfeebled system must acquire additional vigor. And yet, patent as this fact is, and widely known as it is, too many people neglect this vital point in the self-treatment of disease, and physicians are very often equally remiss, resorting to the use of palliatives which affect symptoms only, and fail to accomplish the chief end in view, which is, or should be, invigoration. The main reason why Hostetter's Stomach Bitters are so successful in overcoming disease is that they impart vitality where it is deficient, and thus build up a superstructure for exhausted nature to recuperate upon. The Bitters also improve the appetite, soothe the nervous system when overstrained, and are a general and agreeable tonic stimulant, with a basis of pure spirits holding in solution boric elements of the greatest efficacy.

PROSPECTUS OF THE MARYLAND MEDICAL JOURNAL, BALTIMORE, MD.

ON THE FIRST DAY OF MAY NEXT, the undersigned will issue, in the city of Baltimore, the first number of THE MARYLAND MEDICAL JOURNAL. It will be a monthly publication, devoted to the advancement of medicine in all its branches.

Each issue of the Journal will contain original articles, from representative men in the profession. Careful selections from foreign and home journals will be made with a special view to the requirements of the practitioner. Reports of the progress of Surgery and Medicine in their special, as well as general branches, including Diseases of the Eye and Ear, Diseases of the Nervous System, Diseases peculiar to Women, and Diseases of the Throat and Chest, will be regularly given by men eminent in these several branches. These reports will be in the form of abstracts of progress in each of these special departments during the year.

The proceedings of Medical Societies will be published as often and as fully as their importance justifies. Prominence will be given to rare and interesting cases in Hospital and Private Practice. New instruments and Appliances, New Remedies and improved methods of managing disease will be specially treated. New medical publications, as they appear, will be critically and impartially reviewed. No labor or expense will be spared to render the MARYLAND MEDICAL JOURNAL, a welcome addition to the progress of Medical Science as developed both abroad and at home. Contributions, on subjects of interest to the profession, respectfully invited. Each number will contain not less than forty pages, printed from new type, on heavy colored paper of the finest quality. The subscription price will be $3 per annum, invariably in advance, delivered free of postage. H. E. T. MANNING, M. D. T. A. ASHBY, M. D. march 26

APPLETON'S AMERICAN CYCLOPEDIA. NEW REVISED EDITION.

Entirely rewritten by the ablest writers on every subject. Printed from new type, and illustrated with several thousand Engravings and Maps.

The work originally published under the title of THE NEW AMERICAN CYCLOPEDIA was completed in 1873, since which time the wide circulation which it has attained in all parts of the United States and the signal developments which have taken place in every branch of science, literature, art, history and general information, have induced the publisher to submit it to an exact and thorough revision, and to issue a new edition entitled THE AMERICAN CYCLOPEDIA. Within a few years the progress of discovery in every department of knowledge has made a new work of reference an imperative want. The movement of political affairs have kept pace with the discoveries of science and their fruitful application to the industrial and useful arts and the convenience and refinement of social life. Great wars, and consequent revolutions have occurred, and important national changes of peculiar moment. The civil war of our country, which was at its height when the last volume of the old work appeared, has happily ended, and a new course of commercial and industrial activity has been commenced. Large accessions to our geographical knowledge have been made by the indefatigable explorer of Africa.

The great political revolutions of the last decade, with the natural result of the lapse of time, have brought into the world a multitude of new men, whose names are in every one's mouth, and of whose lives every one is curious to know the particulars. Great battles have been fought, and important sieges maintained; of which the details are as yet preserved only in the newspapers or in the transient publications of the day, and which ought now to take their place in permanent and authentic history. In preparing the present edition for the press, it has accordingly been the aim of the editor, and of the publishers, to secure the lowest possible rates, and to furnish an accurate account of the most recent discoveries in science, of every fresh production in literature, and of the important events in the practical arts, as well as to give a succinct and original record of the progress political and historical events.

The work has been begun after long and careful preliminary labor, and with the most ample resources for carrying it on to a successful termination. Some of the original stereotype plates have been used, but every page has been printed on new type, forming, in fact, a new Cyclopaedia, with the same plan and compass as its predecessor, but with a far greater pecuniary expenditure, and with such improvements in its composition as have been suggested by longer experience and enlarged knowledge. The illustrations which are introduced for the first time in the present edition have been added not for the sake of pictorial effect, but to give greater lucidity and force to the explanations in the text. They embrace all branches of science and natural history, and depict the most famous and remarkable features of scenery, architecture and art, as well as the various processes of mechanics and manufactures. Although intended for instruction rather than embellishment, no pains have been spared to insure their artistic excellence; the cost of their execution is enormous, and it is believed they will find a welcome reception as an embellishment of the Cyclopaedia, and worthy of its high character. This work is sold to subscribers only, payable on delivery of each volume, and is completed in sixteen large octavo volumes, each containing about 800 pages, fully illustrated with several thousand Wood Engravings, and with numerous colored Lithographic Maps.

Price and Style of Binding.

In extra Cloth, per vol. $5.00; In Library Leather, per vol. $6.00; In Half Turkey Morocco, per vol. $7.00; In Half Russia, per vol. $8.00; In Full Morocco, antique, gilt edges, per vol. $10.00; In Full Russia, per vol. $10.00. LIPPINCOTT'S MAGAZINE, AN ILLUSTRATED MONTHLY OF Popular Literature, Science and Art.

Announcement for 1877. The number for January begins the nineteenth volume of this Magazine, and while its past record will be its best guarantee of a future excellence, an effort will be spared to diversify its attractions and to provide an increased supply of POPULAR READING IN THE BEST AND MOST EMPHATIC SENSE.

The great object and constant aim of the conductors will be to furnish the public with Literary Entertainment of a refined and Varied Character, as well as to present in a graphic and striking manner the most recent information and soundest view on subjects of General Interest; in a word to render Lippincott's Magazine strikingly distinctive in THOSE FEATURES THAT ARE MOST ATTRACTIVE IN A MAGAZINE LITERATURE. The contributions now on hand, or specially engaged, embrace a highly attractive list of Tales, Short Stories, Descriptive Sketches, Narratives, Papers on Science and Art, Poems, Popular Essays, Literary Criticisms, Etc., Etc. BY TALENTED AND WELL KNOWN WRITERS. A large proportion of the articles, especially those descriptive of travel, will be PROFUSELY AND BEAUTIFULLY ILLUSTRATED. The pictorial embellishments of the Magazine constitute one of its attractive features. In addition to the General Attractions of Lippincott's Magazine, the Publishers would invite attention to the following SPECIAL FEATURES FOR 1877.

1. A new serial story, "The Marquis of Lossie," by George MacDonald, author of "Malcolm," "Alec Forbes," "Robert Falconer," etc. To these of our readers who are familiar with "Malcolm," this new story from the pen of this distinguished writer will be a recommendation, and his reputation is a guarantee to others of a deeply interesting and powerful story. It began in the November number, which issue, with the December part, will be furnished gratis to all new subscribers for 1877. 2. A profusely illustrated series of sketches of Swedish Scenery and Life, by Prof. Willard Friek, author of Cornell University, who is thoroughly familiar with Sweden and its people from personal observation. 3. A series of popular papers on Art and Art Matters, by Edward Strahan (Earl Shinn), author of "The New Hyperion," etc. 4. Illustrated Sketches of Travel, entitled Pictures from Spain, by Edward King, author of the "Great South," etc. 5. Mrs. Lucy H. Hooper's Interesting and Piquant Papers and Letters from Paris will be continued through the year. 6. The Beauties of the Rhine will be described in a richly illustrated series of papers. 7. During the year will appear a number of handsomely illustrated short articles, descriptive of Life, Travel, and Adventure in the United States, England, South America, Japan, Mongolia, and other countries.
