Views and Reviews.

The Sheriff of Morocco is a lineal descendant of Mohammed, and as such, he is the head of the Church in Morocco. He is nevertheless educating his children as Christians.

Governor John Lee Carroll of Maryland has three Lees on his staff—Dr. Lee, surgeon general; Otto S. Lee of Hartford, and I. Fenner Lee of Carroll, neither of whom are related.

Ex-Governor Tilden is now in Kent visiting the home of his ancestors. He returns to London in a few days, and will then go to Paris. Governor Tilden declines all public duties, courtesies, and has refused a special train to Dover, and a free passage on the steamer to Calais.

Minister James Russell Lowell gets a very courteous welcome to Europe from the Daily News, which says: "In sending Mr. Lowell to Madrid the government of the United States has gone back to that better spirit which preferred to put men like Washington Irving and Mr. Bancroft and the late Mr. Motley into responsible diplomatic positions, than to reward the trading politicians by the gift of high and dignified offices."

Comptroller Warner, of Pittsburg, has been signing up the incidental or indirect losses sustained by the county in consequence of the late riots. The calculation is as follows: Coroner's department, for cost of inquests on twenty-two persons killed, $386.26; magistrates' department, for 171 commitments to the workhouse and jail, $212.32; for advertising notices, 202.80; expenses in securing lost property, $1,452.08—making a total of $2,254.44. This will be largely increased by the cost of keeping open the Courts for the trial of cases against the county, as the jury fees form a very heavy item of expense.

It is estimated that the coast at the mouth of the Suez Canal, at Port Said, is advancing outward at the rapid rate of about fifty yards per annum, and that the necessity for extensive dredging will be greater year by year. Not less than 937,000 cubic yards of deposit had to be removed in 1875, while the dredging of 162,000 cubic yards sufficed in 1871. The British Government has ordered a new survey of the coast between Port Said and the Damietta mouth of the Nile, in order to ascertain the actual condition and the rate of increase of the sandbanks, and to see if any plan besides dredging can be adopted to check the growth of the obstructions.

A New York letter says: It is worth noting as a sign of the times that several of the down town restaurants, within the few days past, have made further important reductions in their charges, and this, too, without advertising it or making any ado about it, not as if it were a merit, but simply an act of justice to their patrons. One of these establishments, which probably feeds fifteen hundred persons daily, has put down roast beef to twelve cents, tea and coffee four cents each, pies five cents, and everything else in the same proportion. If this cuts down their profits, it makes more business and the calculation is that that will make the profits, in the long run, come up to their former mark. Servants' wages, it ought to be added, have come down a peg, and that enables them all the easier to reduce the price of food.

A correspondent of the Richmond Enquirer writes from the White Sulphur Springs about General M. W. Gary, as follows; Here you have what the Yankees would term a "Fire-Eater." Bald-head, sharp eyes, close cut moustache, and a voice that cuts the air with its explosions, the mercurial South Carolinian will attract attention anywhere in any country. I should not seek a personal quarrel with General Gary, for if I thought I had offended him I should make my will at once. He has fought the carpet-baggers of the South with the same virility that he exhibited in waging war under Jefferson Davis. He has taken special delight to make it hot for Governor Chamberlain in South Carolina. To hear him tell some of his experiences in the electioneering of last Fall is to become familiar with some of the most exciting passages in a campaign unequalled for bitterness. One day at Edgfield Gary took the stump at the conclusion of Chamberlain's harangue and replied so ably to the sophistry of the pretender that he carried blacks and whites with him. Then General Gary took up the case personally against Chamberlain. Gary says that in the delivery of that speech he was three times interrupted by white radicals. The first man wore one revolver. "I paid no attention to him," said the General. "The second man had two revolvers. I considered him beneath notice. The third man wore three revolvers and a bowie-knife, and I heard him politely, for I knew he must be a perfect gentleman."

GETTING LICKED.

Our friends, the Russians, don't seem to stand up to the rack quite as well as they were expected to do nor quite as well, perhaps, as they might do. They have been all but dislodged from the Shipka Pass while the Turks are pressing them hard at every point. If they are driven thence they lose the Balkans and may not expect to recover them this year. That they will eventually succeed we do not doubt but at the present time they are certainly hard pressed. Suleiman Pasha is the hero of the hour.

THEORY AND PRACTICE.

The Petersburg Index-Appel thus comments on the strictures made in some of the newspapers in this State on Col. Taylor's article relative to the battle of Gettysburg as published in the Philadelphia Times:

Col. Taylor's account of the battle of Gettysburg, published in the Philadelphia Weekly Times, has aroused the veterans of North Carolina, and from the coast to the mountains the newspapers are thundering in wrathful resentment. This is the proper time to correct all errors concerning the late struggle, and we are glad that the enterprise of the Times affords the opportunity for these corrections.

We do not doubt that our good neighbor of the Index-Appel is always willing to do justice to North Carolina and North Carolinians but we respectfully submit that in this instance there is but one way to do it, and that is to publish the refutations of Col. Taylor's unjust charges—which it has not yet done.

COME SOUTH, YOUNG MAN!

The Baltimore Sun very sensibly thinks that Greely's advice may be improved upon and that "Go South, Young Man!" is better than "Go West!" It says:

We are now about to enter upon that stage in the agricultural history of the country when men of industry and enterprise will find it more profitable to take up and renovate the naturally fertile but worn soils of the States that lie along the Atlantic seaboard than to open up new farms at the West. It might require in the first case a little more patient waiting before the lands could be restored to their original fertility, but their greater value when once renovated, and the better prices to be paid for their products, would more than compensate for the delay, and in the meanwhile the men who were thus making two blades of grass grow where but one grew before would be enjoying for themselves and their families those social and material advantages which all desire, and that can only be had in long-settled and populous States.

This is good, plain, practical, sensible talk. It has long been a wonder to us why the fertile lands of the South bordering as they do immediately upon water courses and railroads, should be neglected for the prairies of the Far West which, removed as they are from a market, with a scarcity of timber and subject to grasshoppers, cutworms, too much cold in winter and too much heat and drouth in summer, present far less attractions to the eye of thrifty immigrants than do our own fertile fields and untouched forest lands. There are on the Cape Fear river, immediately accessible to a market, thousands upon thousands of acres of lands of rare fertility, which only need the hand of the husbandman to develop their stores of wealth, and immediately opposite this city there is a large island (Eagle Island) which is one vast bed of alluvial soil, and not one acre of which is now under cultivation. With the proper drainage, this island could be made to produce excellent hay, equal to the celebrated North River hay, for which the Jersey Flats are so famous, and three crops of the grasses could be raised on it every year. We cannot but think that the proper effort has never yet been made either by our people or our State authorities, to place our advantages of soil and climate properly before its European emigrants.

The Burlington Free Press of Monday thus groups them: "Near St. Albans, the other day, a snake was seen twelve feet long and as large around as a water-pail. As he stood on his head and wiggled his tail in the air the scene was terrific. A woman at Sutton, recently, heard a noise among her hens. She went out to see what was the matter, and behold, a large snake of a darkish color. It did not seem like the ordinary striped snake, and was coiled up beside one of the hens, and the hen was flapping her wings and seemed to be fixed to the spot as if she were charmed. The woman killed the snake, and subsequently the hen laid an egg, the small end of which is the exact shape of a snake's head. The egg was broken, and in the end was a small but perfect snake, alive and about an inch long. Alfred Gile of Danville is reported to have killed a black snake, recently, that measured five feet and three inches in length."

The Right Reverend Bishop Lynch of Charleston lies seriously ill at Boston. Recently prayers were offered up for him at the early masses in the various Catholic churches in Charleston. A surgical operation will be performed on him some time this week by eminent surgeons in Boston.

NORTH AND SOUTH.

From the report of the Commissioner of the General Land Office it appears that the Southern States have received the following donations of land for the purposes of internal improvements:

Table with columns for State/Territory and Acres. Includes Alabama (3,569,120), Florida (2,360,114), Louisiana (1,677,849), Arkansas (4,879,149), Missouri (2,895,160), Total to Southern States (13,381,833), and Donations to Northern States (Wisconsin 5,436,797, Minnesota 9,604,042, Oregon 1,888,600, Illinois 3,249,968, Iowa 6,795,256, Michigan 5,962,480, Kansas 8,840,000, Ohio 1,100,361, Indiana 1,439,270).

Total to Northern States... 41,376,783. Again, in the report of the Secretary of the Treasury, made to the Senate January 7, 1874, it is shown that from 1789 to 1873 the appropriations of money in aid of the construction of wagon-roads, railroads and canals were as follows:

Table with columns for Southern and border States, Northern States and Territories, and Total. Southern and border States: $9,981,982.90. Northern States and Territories: 97,925,762.70. Total: $107,907,745.60.

Commenting on the above the Raleigh News says: It is time for the Southern States to begin insisting upon a fair share of the patronage of the government, or our rateable proportion of the appropriations for public improvements. We have the power to secure the benefits from the national treasury to which we are rightfully entitled, and we should not hesitate to use it. There is no longer any necessity for our standing in the background. Let us go forward and claim some of the rights that belong to tax-payers. The burden of the Internal Revenue taxation falls on the South. It is proper that a proportionate part of the government appropriations and donations should fall to her lot.

At the same time, while insisting upon our just share of government benefits, wisdom dictates moderation and caution. The thing must not be carried too far. Should the South unite to move in on the Treasury—a thing she has never done in the past—the result would be the solidification of the North against us. Touch the pocket of the North and the North will immediately stand up against us. Let us, therefore, not show any undue disposition to grasp subsidies and gratuities from the national treasury, but only say to the North that we must have our share of the appropriations for internal improvements, mail service, &c. That much we can safely demand.

It may not be generally known that the real name of John T. Raymond (Old Sellers) in John O'Brien; Lawrence Barrett was originally Larry Brannigan; Barney Williams was Barney Flaherty; George Clark is Peter O'Neil; Harry Montague in Henry J. Mann; and W. J. Florence originally possessed an unmistakably Hibernian though hardly musical name. Among actresses this change of names is yet more common. Having selected one that suits, it is generally retained by the bearer until the close of her stage career though marriage may give her the right to use another and a better one. Most of the prominent ladies upon the stage are married. Charlotte Thompson is Mrs. Lorraine Rogers; Adelaide Neilson is Mrs. Leigh; Marie Gordon is Mrs. John T. Raymond; Marie Drabrook is Mrs. George Rigbold; Clara Morris is Mrs. Harriot; Kate Claxton is Mrs. Dore Lyon; Rose Eyttinge is Mrs. George H. Butler; and Edie Germon is Mrs. Nelson Seymour. The list might be indefinitely prolonged.

Health on a Sure Basis. In order to establish health on a sure basis the enfeebled system must acquire additional vigor. And yet, patent as this fact is, and widely known as it is, too many people neglect this vital point in the self-treatment of disease, and physicians are very often equally remiss, resorting to the use of palliatives which affect symptoms only, and fail to accomplish the chief end in view, which is, or should be, restoration. The main reason why Hostetter's Stomach Bitters are so successful in overcoming disease is that they impart vitality where it is deficient, and thus build up a superstructure for exhausted nature to recuperate upon. The Bitters also improve the appetite, soothe the nervous system when overstrained, and are a general and agreeable medicinal stimulant, with a basis of pure spirits holding in solution boric elements of the greatest efficacy.

APPLETON'S AMERICAN CYCLOPEDIA.

Entirely rewritten by the ablest writers on every subject. Printed from new type, and illustrated with several thousand Engravings and Maps. The work originally published under the title of THE NEW AMERICAN CYCLOPEDIA was completed in 1873, since which time the wide circulation which it has attained in all parts of the United States and the signal developments which have taken place in every branch of science, literature, and art, have induced the editor and publisher to submit it to an exact and thorough revision, and to issue a new edition entitled THE AMERICAN CYCLOPEDIA.

Within the last ten years the progress of discovery in every department of knowledge has made a new work of reference an imperative want. The movement of political affairs have kept pace with the discoveries of science and their fruitful application to the industrial and useful arts made the conventional refinement of social life. Great and important national revolutions have occurred, involving changes of peculiar moment. The civil war of our country, which was at its height when the last volume of the old work appeared, has happily ended, and a new course of commercial and industrial activity has been commenced.

The great political revolutions of the last decade, with the industrial and social progress of time, have brought into public view a multitude of new men, whose names are in every one's mouth, and of whose lives every one is curious to know the particulars. Great battles have been fought and important changes maintained, of which the details are as yet preserved only in the newspapers or in the transient publications of the day, and which ought now to take their place in permanent and authentic history.

The illustrations which are introduced for the first time in the present edition have been added not for the sake of pictorial effect, but to give greater lucidity and force to the explanations in the text. They embrace, and depict the most famous and remarkable features of scenery, architecture and art, as well as the various processes of mechanics, agriculture, and manufactures. Although intended for instruction rather than for embellishment, no pains have been spared to insure their artistic excellence; the cost of their execution is enormous, and it is believed they will find a welcome reception as an admirable feature of the Cyclopaedia, and worthy of its high character.

This work is sold to subscribers only, payable on delivery of each volume. It is completed in sixteen large octavo volumes, each containing about 800 pages, fully illustrated with several hundred engravings, and with numerous colored Lithographic Maps.

Price and Style of Binding. In extra Cloth, per vol, $5.00; In Library Leather, per vol, $6.00; In Half Turkey Morocco, per vol, $7.00; In Half Russia, extra gilt, per vol, $8.00; In Full Morocco, antique, gilt edges, per vol, $10.00; In Full Russia, per vol, $10.00. Thirteen volumes now ready. Successive volumes, until completion, will be issued once in two months.

Specimen pages of the AMERICAN CYCLOPEDIA, showing type, illustrations, etc., will be sent gratis, on application. First-Class Canvassing Agents Wanted. Address the Publishers, D. APPLETON & CO., 649 & 655 BROADWAY, N. Y.
