THE DAILY REVIEW.

VOL. 2. WILMINGTON, N. C., WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 5, 1877. NO. 191

M. Thiers Dead.

Sept. 4—5 A. M.—Reuter's Telegram Company has just received the following dispatch from Paris: "All the journals announce that ex-President Thiers died suddenly at 6 o'clock yesterday evening at St. Germain." At the time of his death no citizen of France held a more prominent place in the eyes of his countrymen and of the world than Louis Adolphe Thiers. Though over 80 years of age, he was in robust health, and his intellect was as clear, active and vigorous as at any previous time; and by reason of his great experience in public affairs, his undoubted patriotism, his eminent services to his country, and his distinguished fitness for such a position, he was looked upon by a large majority of the Republican party of France as the successor of MacMahon, should the latter, in the event of an adverse result to the present elections for deputies to the Assembly, resign the Presidency. The fact that the country might rely upon so safe a man for that high office, in case of MacMahon's resignation, was indeed an element of great strength to the Republicans of France, and the death of Thiers may, for this reason, be a serious blow to them.

M. Thiers was born in Marseilles, April 15, 1797. He studied law, and practiced from 1818 to 1821, after which he went to Paris and became a writer for the press and literature. It was at this time that he gave to the world his famous "History of the French Revolution." He entered public life under Louis Philippe, becoming an official in the Treasury and member of the Chamber of Deputies, and afterwards successively Minister of the Interior and Minister of Commerce and Agriculture and Minister of Foreign Affairs, his services in the various offices covering, with a few gaps, a period of nearly ten years. In 1834 he was elected to the French Academy. He was a warm opponent of Louis Napoleon and after the coup d'etat of 1852 was arrested and afterwards banished. He did not venture actively again into the political field until 1863, when the Paris Liberals elected him a Deputy. He opposed earnestly the war with Prussia, and uttered predictions of disaster that proved so true as to inspire the people with the highest confidence in his wisdom and foresight. His negotiations with Bismarck afterward increased his popularity still further, and deepened the public sense of his patriotism and statesmanship. In 1871 he was chosen Chief of the Executive by the Assembly, and in August of the same year he was elected President of the Republic for a term of three years. In May, 1872, he resigned, and was succeeded by MacMahon. On Jan. 30, 1876, he was elected to the new Senate, and in February to the Assembly. He was an ardent supporter of a republican form of government. His literary fame rests upon his historical works.

Yellow Fever in the City.

An unmistakable case of yellow fever in this city ended in death on Saturday. The Board of Health gives the assurance that there is no danger of a spread of the disease. Robt. Leich, an engineer on the steamer City of Houston, arrived about a week ago from Florida and took lodgings at 229 Tenth avenue. He was soon afterward taken sick, and on Saturday he was removed to the N. Y. Hospital, where he died on the same evening. The remains were speedily encased in a metallic coffin and buried under the direction of the Board of Health. The ward in which the patient died was thoroughly and promptly disinfected.

A Dastardly Act.

A gentleman from Onslow county has furnished us with the following particulars of one of the most dastardly acts that we have been called upon to chronicle for some time past. Mr. Enoch Foy, a highly respectable citizen of Onslow county, who lives on New River, having business at Morehead City, proceeded there one day last week in his boat. He had transacted his business and was preparing to leave for home when he was accosted by a stranger who represented himself as being one of a party of shipwrecked seamen, and said that he desired to get to Wilmington for the purpose of shipping on some vessel for his home, and begged Mr. Foy to take him in his boat to New River from whence he proposed to make his way to this city. Mr. Foy kindly consented, and took him in his boat, reaching New River last Saturday, when he invited him to his house and cared for him from then until Monday morning, when he was furnished with provisions for the trip and also a small amount of money was given him, when to all appearances he started on his journey. Mr. Foy no doubt feeling that he had assisted a worthy and needy person upon his route to his family and friends. But as the sequel soon showed he was egregiously mistaken. It appears that the man, after having started, took a circuitous route around the premises, passing through an orchard from which he helped himself and also robbed a watermelon patch and remained near the landing until night when he broke open the boat house and stole therefrom the sails of Mr. Foy's boat, and also a set of sails belonging to a boat the property of another party, and then launched Mr. Foy's boat and set sail for parts unknown. The boat is represented as having been a very fine one, costing near $200. The loss falls heavily upon Mr. F. as his boat had been newly fitted up for the Fall fishing. A vessel from Morehead City which arrived in New River on Tuesday, reported having passed the boat with sails set making in the direction of the former place. We sincerely trust that Mr. Foy may recover his boat and that the villain may be captured.

County Commissioners.

The adjourned regular session of the Board was held yesterday afternoon. The chairman stated that it devolved upon the Board at its present meeting to elect a chairman for the ensuing year, whereupon a vote was taken and J. G. Wagner, Esq., the present incumbent, was declared duly elected.

The Board then took up the question of the public schools of the county, and the following committees were elected for the various districts named, Wilmington being divided into two districts, and Harnett and Cape Fear Townships not being yet provided for:

First District—D. MacRae, W. M. Parker, J. E. Sampson.
Second District—J. H. Chadbourne, Walker Meares, John G. Norwood.
Third District—Newton Gillican, Stephen D. Keyes, Jacob H. Horne.
Fourth District—John J. Beasley, J. G. Wagner, W. H. Waddell.

The exact boundaries of the various districts will be decided upon at the next meeting of the Board.

N. G. Sampson was sworn in as Deputy Register of Deeds.

The Board then took a recess until to-morrow afternoon, at 2 o'clock.

Yesterday's Excursion.

A very pleasant party assembled on board of the steamer North East and soon the little steamer was gliding gaily up the stream for Maulsby's Point. The Italian String Band discoursed some very sweet music. Upon the arrival of the boat at Maulsby's Point the excursionists repaired to the dancing hall. Dancing was indulged in by some while others strolled through the woods and along the banks of Lyon's creek and Black river. A quiet, pleasant day was spent, when the excursionists turned their faces homeward, arriving at the dock about 6:30 o'clock.

To that whole-souled clever gentleman, Capt. Paddison, the commander of the steamer, we make our bow for courtesies.

For some reason unknown to us the picnicers who were to have met the excursionists did not put in an appearance.

Still Another.

The steamer North East will bring down a party of excursionists from Point Caswell and the surrounding country to-morrow. The excursionists will remain here over night and proceed on Friday to Smithville and the Forts on the steamer Unherhill.

Removed.

Messrs. Cassidey & Ross have succeeded in getting the railroad iron which was on the lighter Dolly Varden when she capsized on Sunday last. The iron, it will be remembered, was lighted from the schooner R. H. Mitchell which went ashore near Big Island.

Not our Fault.

One of our subscribers at Laurinburg complains at not receiving his papers regularly, saying that he misses a copy on an average once per week. We can only assure him that the paper leaves this office in full time for the Charlotte mail. We must appeal to our friends, the mail agents on that line, to look into the matter.

Reorganization.

We hear it rumored on the streets that a committee of our German fellow-citizens will soon issue a call to the members of the old "German Volunteers" to assemble and reorganize this company.

The German Volunteers was one of the first companies that responded to the call of Governor Ellis in 1861, and took possession of the forts at the mouth of the river. It was afterwards Company A, of the "Bloody Eighteenth," and saw hard service in many of the campaigns in Virginia.

Tired Razors.

Many people have heard barbers say that a razor is tired, meaning that, although apparently sharp, it refuses to cut the beard. Microscopic examination has developed the fact that a razor, from long continued strapping by the same hand and in the same direction, has the ultimate result of making the fibres of its surface orange arrange themselves in one direction. After a month's rest these fibres will rearrange themselves heterogeneously, crossing each other and presenting a saw-like edge, when the cutting power of the razor will be found to be restored.

A Scrimmage.

Two colored barbers had a slight difference this morning and adjourned to the back yard for the purpose of settling the difference. This was done in a few rounds, when quarter was called for and given, and the dead and wounded were gathered up and sent to the undertaker's and the hospital. The list of casualties is not yet ready for publication.

"The God of War."

Perhaps there never was a time in the history of the progress of the science of astronomy when so much interest attached to any one star as now centres upon Mars. This is due in the first place, and mainly, to the recent discovery of the fact that this planet, which was supposed to be without any satellites or moons, is supplied with at least two, and it is believed three. But there is another thing which makes "the god of war" a centre of attraction. The fact that this planet was in conjunction with Saturn on the 27th of August, was noticed in the REVIEW a few days before the occurrence, and the beautiful sight which was presented by the close proximity of these two bright stars—a very rare one indeed—was witnessed by many persons. These two planets will come into opposition with the sun within four days of each other, the former this morning and the latter on the 9th inst. In that opposition Mars will be nearer the earth than in thirty years before.
