THE DYING ARCHBISHOP.

Night-No Hope that he can Re-

Bishop Corrigan's residence in Newark, where Archbishop Bayley is dying, was besieged yesterday by a host of friends who called to ascertain his condition. There were a number of rumors affoat yesterday that he had died, but inquiry at the episcopal residence elicited that during $600. By this recommendation McCrary the early part of last night he was very low and his death was momentarily expected. At 4 o'clock yesterday morning there was a decided change for the better. At 10 o'clock last night he rested easier, and sanguine friends predicted his ultimate recovery. His physicians, however, said that he is beyond all hope, and his death is a question of a few days at the most. There were no special services held at any of the Catholic churches in Newark yesterday. At St. Patrick's Cathedral, adjoining the episcopal residence, Father Doane preached the sermon, in which he referred to the Archbishop and asked the prayers of the congregation.

Prayers were offered on behalf of the dying Archbishop in all the Roman Catholic churches of Baltimore yesterday. His friends there were in constant telegraphic communication with those around h's

(N. Y. Sun.) Bishop Whipple on the Indians.

Bishop Whipple, distinguished for his missionary works among the Indians, preached in Holy Trinity Church, Brooklyn, yesterday, on the Wrongs of the Red Man. Eighteen years ago, when he went to labor among the Chippewas, he said he found them drunken, ragged, painted, and debased. On a recent visit which the pastor of Trinity, Dr. Chas. Hall, paid to his mission he showed him a congregation of 300 Indians engaged in devout worship, and two Indian ministers, one the son of a chief, who were assisting in the services. Over sixty millions of dollars have been spent by the Government in its efforts to deal with the Indian question, and with what poor success the world knows. We read daily the telegraphic despatches recounting the efforts made to exterminate a handful of Indians. They are the only heathen race on the globe that is not idolatrous. They believe as firmly in a Great Spirit as we do. They have lasting family ties, and are passionately attached to their homes. When they are forced to go from the land they believe to be their own, is it strange that the : feelings of sorrow should be followed by a thirst for revenge? They have seen their wives and children slaughtered in cold blood. Is it strange that they should swear by the blood of their lost ones to avenge their deaths? Bishop Whipple defied any one to show where an Indian was the first to break a treaty. He thought that the only way to bring into a loyal state the three hundred thousand lawless Indians was to spread freely among them the Gospel of Christ, and to send the servants of the Lord thither to teach natives how to teach others of their own race.

By the President. W. M. EVARTS, Secretary of State. Increasing The Army.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30 .- For some time it has been understood that the strikes last summer were to be made a pretext by the Administration for an increase of the army. Secretary McCrary has His Condition Yesterday and Last about perfected his plan, though it awaits the approval of the President, and has yet to be passed upon by the Cabinet The Secretary of War proposes to fill up the existing regiments without adding to the comissioned officers in either the staff or line. This would add about 15,000 men, and increase the estimates by about $9,000,000, the War Department putting the yearly cost of an enlisted man at hopes to avoid the criticism which must follow an attempt to increase that costliest part of a costly establishment, the commissioned officers, and he would obtain a force of much more value for aggressive operations, a force, in fact, as large as that with which Scott once conquered Mexico. The upper chamber may agree with McCrary, but it need scarcely be said that the House is not likely to give him what he wants, but is altogether the overgrown army list.
