May be they did, "have giants in those days," but they couldn't have looked any bigger than a free-born American citizen feels when he is in a procession.

Miss Mary Anderson, when playing at Nashville last week, had a terrific adventure. It was a mouse, which lost it way among the folds of her dress. Miss Anderson is slowly recovering.

The coldest storm wave of the season was experienced by a young man from in Wilmington who escorted a Front street girl home Sunday night, and was detected by her father just as he was putting his mustache where it would do her most good.

We see that a good many of our exchanges have copied the article from the News implicating the mail agent Rourke in the difficulty which recently took place here, but have failed to notice our correction. We hope that such papers will notice our correction and thus remedy an injustice done a very quiet, peaceable and deserving man.—Weldon News.

That was a Sensible Woman, Who, when invited by her husband to attend the opera, told him she would much rather have the price of the tickets invested in DOOLEY'S YEAST POWDER than that she liked music and amusements less, but good bread, biscuits and roll more.

Jacob's taste led him to choose Rachel; Moses' nobility of spirit made him choose to suffer with his own people; Regulus' manhood made him choose death rather than dishonor, but the Wilmington school-girl chews gum.

If you dream of a ring-tailed monkey chewing bar-soap on the top of an obelisk, and scratching the small of his back with his left hind-foot, on which there is a blister of the eighth potentiality and of two years' standing, it means that you will meet a cross-eyed girl the next time you go hunting for raccoons in a reservoir.

The Mexican Veterans.

As there are a number of the veterans of the Mexican war living in Wilmington and adjacent section, it may be of interest to them to know that there is good prospect of the bill for the payment of three months extra pay to the soldiers of that war becoming a law. Slow justice it will be, but none the less acceptable to many of the gallant men who went in this war at their country's call.

Several exchanges are giving directions "How to dress." The most sensible way is to stay in bed until the fire is started, and then take your clothes under your arm and trot out to the dining-room stove.

"Hell."

We understand that the Rev. Jos. R. Wilson, D. D., of the First Presbyterian Church of this city, to preach on "Hell" next Sunday evening. As the subject matter is a very interesting one, or at least one which is receiving much attention from the clergy of the country, we presume a great many persons will hear Dr. Wilson.

They Wanted Them.

Long before the hour arrived for the sale of seats to Evadne, the sidewalk in front of Heinsberger's was jammed, jammed and packed, with human souls, ready and anxious to secure seats for the performance. At nine o'clock this morning all the best seats were sold and the crowd is now gathering in order to be in time to secure good seats to witness Mary Anderson in Ingomar.

Concluded He Would not Go.

One of the colored men who shipped a few days ago for Navassa Island did not seem to have entirely made up his mind to tear himself away from among us, for when opposite Smithville he sprang from the vessel and swam ashore, Aboat's crew was sent after him but he outswam them, and like the wild man of Borneo took to the woods where he remained until all was quiet. And then he came back to this city to loaf and drink "shots."

Fashion Gossip.

Gauzes shot with silver and gold are exceedingly pretty for evening purposes.

Belts of gold or silver braid, fastened by bouquets of flowers to harmonize with the costume, are fashionable.

Watered fringe is used in place of fur trimmings for mantles.

"Galon grec" is made in mohair, and is used for braiding out-door garments.

"Galon peluche," or plush with satin back, when of two contrasting colors is much used for bows.

The newest embroidery looks like applique, and is accomplished by placing dark or black velvet or cloth in arabesque form, laid on a bright color, and completed by braiding or chain-stitching the edges of the design.

Gold and silver inks are used by ladies who desire to send written compliments or social invitations in letters that appear in sunlight or moonlight hues. They may be also employed with effect for illuminating scrolls and other devices.

Clustering loops of satin ribbon of bright and varied colors are appropriate garnitures for fichus, collars and mourning caps of lace. By varying the decorations or using flounces alternately with the ribbons, the same lace may be used for apparently two distinct sets of lace ornaments.

The Marie Stuart periure is composed of fine white muslin and Valenciennes lace; on each of the gatherings is placed a narrow black velvet, headed by narrow Valenciennes lace, and the full collar is fastened with a bow of velvet to match.

"Imperial Orange" is the name of a new color or dye. Its peculiar property is that the article of dress dyed with it may burst in flames at any moment, and by spontaneous combustion be reduced to ashes, together with its wearer.

Corsages of white silk are embroidered at the waist over the point, forming what used to be called a Swiss waistband, pointed upwards and downwards, both back and front.

The Trianon sleeve, with its lace ruffles, falling from the elbow, is the sleeve par excellence for ladies who are neither young nor stout.

Lancer feathers are very graceful, and are not injured by the rain; this gives them an advantage which must be acknowledged.

Menu cards and needle cases are made after Cleopatra's needle, in obelisk shape.

The toilette of the mistress of the house for home receptions should differ essentially from that worn when visiting, the reception toilette being simple, while the visiting costume may be as rich and elaborate as one can desire.

Velours de Flanelle, or Molleton, is the new material for winter dressing and morning gowns. It is soft, warm and pretty. It comes in dark, plain colors, or has a pattern of crossed bars running through broad stripes of the flannel.

A new feature in kid gloves is the polished inside as well as outside. This novelty is called the Royal, and can be found in all shades; the newest tints are mouse gray, Bird of Paradise, shell colors, rose-wood, heliotrope, flax and logwood.

Church Collections.

A sexton having been interviewed about church collections, these hard times, made the following reply, which may or may not be applicable in all communities:

"They are worse now than they have been in years; but much of this is owing to those little silver pieces and nickles coming round again. When there was paper currency people couldn't put in less than ten cents. If they put in ten cents you could tell. Now it's all silver and pennies, and fine ladies and gentlemen will put in a couple of pennies and kind of jingle up the money in the basket, so that you can't tell what they put in—that is, if you haven't had experience."
