LOCAL NEWS.

New Advertisements. MUNSON & Co.—Excellent Cass. Suits. Seed ad. "A Printing Office for $300." JAS. W. LIPPITT—Canaries. S. JEWETT—"Lost for Love." A. SHRIER—Going North. Storm Signal floats to-day.

Dogs with tin pans are fashionable. The spring trade will soon be opening. A handsome gold slipper of unique design is the latest candlestick holder. Don't pawn your ulsters just yet; they have had a fearful snow storm out West. Breathes there a man with soul so dead who never to his friend hath said, "This rain is bully!" The prophet of a hot summer has begun to lift up his voice; he is mainly in the ice and hotel business. Young ladies this spring will wear white pique waistcoats, fastened with white or blue ball buttons. Every one can do something to elevate society; even the girls can refuse to kiss the young man who refuses to clean his teeth. Shakespeare says that "use strengthens habit" Somebody states he tried the experiment on a coat, but it did not answer at all. Capt. E. M. McIntire returned here last night from New York, where he has been for the past ten days making up his Spring and Summer goods. We had a splendid rain this forenoon in this section, and the dry and thirsty earth has received it gladly. It will be worth thousands of dollars to our truckers.

Temple of Israel.

Services to-morrow, Friday evening, beginning at 8 o'clock. Subject of lecture, "Moses and the Pentateuch." The public are cordially invited to attend.

What more precious offering can be laid on the altar of a man's heart than the first love of a pure, earnest and affectionate girl with an undivided interest in six feather beds and a twenty thousand dollar farm?

Gingerbread without Eggs.

Six cups of flour, three cups of molasses, one and a half cups of butter, one cup of sweet milk, four teaspoonfuls of DOOLEY'S YEAST POWDER sifted through the flour dry, one tablespoonful each of ginger and cloves, and two tablespoonful of cinnamon.

Mr. H. H. Munson, who has been on a two weeks' trip to the Northern markets, on his regular Spring purchasing tour, has returned to the city, and in a few days will be ready to exhibit all of the latest and handsomest things in gents' and youths' clothing and furnishing goods.

It is when a boy finds himself, without any solicitation on his part, assigned to a position between the ruler and his teacher's knee, that he feels the imperative necessity, or at least the desirability, of ordering the immediate mobilization of all his forces.

Very many ladies now make their own lace, and lace braids are sold for the purpose at all fancy stores. The work is less difficult than embroidery, and much lace—princess point, miquardise, ragusa, etc., now sold in our lace stores, is made in America.

Masonboro Turnpike.

Mr. James Nolan commenced on Monday last to work on the Masonboro branch of the Turnpike Road and hopes that with the force he has at work to have the Road completed and in good order by the time our citizens who fly the town in the summer for a sniff of salt air on Masonboro beach are ready to move town.

Comparative Cotton Receipts.

The following receipts of cotton this season, as compared with the last, showing a handsome increase this year, will be found of interest:

From September 1st 1876 to March 28th 1877, inclusive, the receipts were 109,450 bales. From September 1st 1877 to March 28th 1878, inclusive, the receipts were 116,771 bales.

Increase of receipts this season, 7,521 bales.

A True Bill for Murder.

We understand that the Grand Jury at Robeson Court yesterday found a true bill for murder against Ben. McAlister, colored, who has been confined in jail and held for trial in the case of the white man named Smith, who was killed near the tent of the Great Eastern Circus while that troupe were in Lumberton in 1874, some account of which we have already published. The prisoner, McAlister, was sent up this morning to Lumberton in charge of a deputy to stand his trial, which may or may not take place at this term of Court.

City Court.

Quite a large crowd of the colored population lent their presence at the Court House this morning to witness the trial of the two colored men, Wm. Cowan and David Watters, who were arrested on Tuesday night by the police for the alleged theft of one box of boots from Messrs. Lemmerman & Coney's flat on the night of the 26th inst. Henry Neill, another colored employee of Messrs. Lemmerman & Coney, was arrested on the affidavit of William Cowan, and confined in the city Prison yesterday afternoon. John L. Holmes, Esq., appeared for the man Henry Neill, the other defendants had no counsel. The Mayor tried each case separately. The evidence given in did not vary from the account published in the REVIEW yesterday afternoon except so far as the man Henry Neill is concerned, who it seems from the evidence of Cowan and Watters the two other prisoners, was accessory before and after the fact of the robbery, but did not participate in purloining the goods from the lighter, though Cowan swore that Neill threw the box in the hold of the flat; at any rate, from the evidence adduced it did not appear that Neill was with the parties when they went back to the lighter after knocking off work to secure the stolen articles, but was subsequently, according to the testimony of another witness, Duke Bryant, in possession of some of the stolen goods.

The Mayor, acting in the capacity of a Justice, bound the defendants over to the next term of the Criminal Court, which convenes on Monday next the 1st day of April.

William Cowan and David Watters were held in default of a justified bond in the sum of $200 each.

Henry Neill was bound over in the sum of $50 Wm. How becoming surety for his appearance. This ended the sitting of the court for the day.

The Thermometer.

Consumption Cured.

An old physician, retired from practice, having had placed in his hands by an East India missionary the formula of a simple vegetable remedy, for the speedy and permanent cure of consumption, bronchitis, catarrh, asthma, and all throat and lung affections, also a positive and radical cure for nervous debility and all nervous complaints, after having tested its wonderful curative powers in thousands of cases, has felt it his duty to make it known to his suffering fellows. Actuated by this motive, and a desire to relieve human suffering, I will send, free of charge, to all who desire it, this recipe in German, French, or English, with full directions for preparing and using. Sent by mail by addressing with stamp, naming this paper, W. W. Sherar, 126 Powers' Block, Rochester, N. Y.

Numbers nine and twelve ribbons will be the widths most used this summer for trimming hats and bonnets.

Yellow Fever and the Board of Health.

No 2.

Mr. Editor.—After so clearly defining the mutual relations of the City Government and the Board of Health, it would seem proper for me to omit any further discussion of the details of a quarantine system, and if it were at all assured that the Mayor and his associates in authority would take counsel of those appointed to give it the matter would be allowed to rest where my last communication left it. But it is too hazardous to assume that it will be done in face of the history of the municipality during the past ten years, and I feel that public opinion is entitled to be enlightened upon all these important questions that it may be expressed with sufficient force to bring these servants to a right performance of their duty. Before an efficient method of preventing the introduction of any disease can be devised it is essential to possess a knowledge of its history, the vitality of its infectious principle, its modes of conveyance and propagation, and the various resources for destroying it, and for opposing its progress from place to place or from person to person. The object which a quarantine service should have in view is to prevent the direct introduction of the disease into the port, and to destroy the fever germs existing in the quarantined ship, so that neither immediately nor later may they become the starting point of an epidemic. If less than this is accomplished the quarantine is useless, and if more is exacted of any ship than is necessary to effect the object it becomes burdensome to commerce, and will not fail to receive the condemnation of our merchants upon whom depends the prosperity we enjoy.

The vitality of yellow fever germs is so enduring that no amount of time passed in quarantine will destroy them, and the detention element therefore, should be a very small one in the service, lasting only sufficiently long for the proper antiseptic and cleansing measures to be thoroughly applied. What these measures are is a matter of technical detail, easily learned from the various authorities on quarantine subjects, and I need make no further allusion to them than to say that they should extend equally to ship, hold, sails, rigging, cargo, cabin, captain and crew, and to the officers and servants engaged in the service itself. Once efficiently performed (under proper organization it need require but two or three days, at the most) there remains not the slightest pretext for detaining any ship, but it is perfectly safe to admit her immediately to the fullest "protégé" of the port. Only a single doubt opposes itself to this view, which is based upon a consideration of the incubative period of yellow fever, which means the time in which it is possible for the fever poison to exist in the body before the first symptoms of the disease arise. It is alleged that at the time of disinfection of an infected ship, some one of the crew may have just received the poison into his system and possibly that the fever may begin in him after the ship has come into port and so defeat the quarantine purpose. Now, if the incubative stage of yellow fever is short; that is, the poison can exist in the body but a very few days without showing itself, and it may be taken as absolutely certain that all danger is over if a case of fever does not arise within a week—for the longest period—after the ship and its personnel have been disinfected. So that even under the demand of this theory the quarantine need be but slightly prolonged, and without damage to charter interests.

It may be stated for the sense of security it affords—a condition so preservative in the face of every epidemic—that yellow fever cannot be communicated from any patient in the incubative stage, or even in the earliest active stage, so that there is ample time for the removal of any accidental case to a proper isolation. Again we have the very best reason to know that the yellow fever poison is remarkably slow in its progress, traveling not faster than over a radius of forty feet in twenty-four hours, and as it is not transported through the atmosphere but creeps along surfaces, insuperable barriers may be set to its spreading from any point at which it may appear. To illustrate, suppose a case is discovered at a point "A" in this city; within 24 hours it would include every one within its influence, in the area of a circle of 80 feet in diameter, the point "A" being the centre, or focus. If persons are allowed free intercourse to and from this infected circle, of course new points of infection, or foci, will be established elsewhere throughout the city. Here then is occasion for the maintenance of the most rigid municipal quarantine, and if combined with the establishing of an antiseptic zone around each focus, it will be no more possible for yellow fever to spread than for the heavens to rain larks to the hungry. I have said that the vitality of the yellow fever poison is remarkable and enduring, and in this respect it is not unlike the poison germs of many deadly diseases. A ship infected this year may preserve the poison in its potency to kindle the epidemic flame for years to come. And so in the Winter a ship may receive infected articles at a port where the disease does not at the time exist, and may leave them in distant ports, most unsuspectingly to inaugurate an epidemic and strengthen the conviction of those who believe in the possibility of spontaneous origin. Indeed, it cannot be doubted that many an old trunk which affection had sealed up, has in long forgotten years sent forth the shaft of death, and after another's love in treasuring up mementoes of lost lambs has in innocence again held the Lethæan chalice to the lips of those who were spared from the last ghostly banquet.

There are many directions in which the quarantine service may be made to extend. There may be a preliminary quarantine (I speak of it in its accepted, not its etymological sense) maintained at the loading port by the captain excluding rigorously chances of infection, and there may be a quarantine in transit, comprising disinfected and other measures, conducted on the voyage. Let these once be established, engrained on the local home service, as ensuring a speedier admission of ships, then make the entire obligation perfectly well known in ship and commercial circles, and a harmonious cooperation will be seen on all sides. But the city authorities cannot deal with the matter without the Board of Health. It must be looked to to complete the principles and elaborate the details which I have only outlined.

Our city is a favored one by nature, in many respects, and if those who are appointed to its sanitary care only receive the recognition and the small financial aid they are entitled to, we shall soon see our death rate largely reduced below 20 in 1,000, as it now stands, and every interest but the grave diggers' cry SELAH.

Sad News.

We are deeply pained to learn of the death of Mrs. Susan H. Griggs, wife of Dr. Wm. Griggs, and daughter of Hon. A. A. McKoy, which sad event occurred last night at 11 o'clock, at Dr. Griggs' residence in West Point, Georgia. Mrs. Griggs has been sick for some weeks past but a few days since she was announced as much better and strong hopes were then entertained of her ultimate recovery. But these hopes were doomed to disappointment, and young, lovely and accomplished but two short years a wife, she has passed to the shadowy land. Of a verity, "Thou hast all seasons for thine own, Oh! Death!"

News and Notes From Lumberton.

LUMBERTON, March 27th, 1878.

DEAR REVIEW:

This being court week the town of Lumberton has part on its Sunday clothes and the streets in the vicinity of the Court House are thronged with persons in attendance upon the court. Since we were last here a great many improvements have been made and nearly all of the "burnt district," which was destroyed by fire about twelve months ago, has been rebuilt and now new and neat two story frame buildings are standing on the sites of the old dilapidated ones. Newspaper men are not at all scarce here, in fact they seem to be struggling for the numerical ascendancy over the insurance agents, Messrs. J. W. Dowd, Raleigh News, R. W. Best, Raleigh Observer, J. N. Stallings, Democrat, J. T. Patrick, Wadesboro Herald, and George N. Harris, of the Wilmington Journal, and DAILY REVIEW, besides friends McDiarmid of the Robesonian, and Barnes of the Times of this town, are all on the war path trying to take in names and increase their subscription lists. The cause of all these knights of the quill being here is the Superior Court I do not mean that they are to be tried for stealing. Judge Eure is presiding with a very great degree of satisfaction. His conduct towards the members of the bar and the officers of the Court is such as could not fail to receive the praise of all. Judge Eure and your representative were serenaded by the Excelsior Band of this place last evening and we must say the band plays delightfully. The only capital crime before the court at this time is the case of Ben. McAlister charged with the murder of Benjamin Smith in Lumberton in October, 1873. The witnesses in this case were sent before the Grand Jury this morning. An officer will be sent to Wilmington where McAlister is now confined, to bring him before the court. He will be arraigned to-morrow and a day will then be set for his trial. Some little cotton is being brought into market now though business does not seem to be as brisk as it was supposed it would be during court week. Rhody Lowrey Chavis, the "Queen of Scuffleton," has been in the "city" for the past three days and attracted much attention from those who had never before seen her. She was generally escorted by John Dial, one of the murderers of Ex-Sheriff King, but who you will recollect saved his neck by turning State's evidence and convicting his pals. The couple are of such light complexion as to be taken for whites by the uninitiated.

I had the pleasure to-day of meeting with Mr. Jacob Wessel, an old Wilmingtonian. He is located here and owns a saw mill on the banks of the Lumber River. His old friends will, no doubt, be pleased to know that he is enjoying good health and is as hearty and hale an old man as can be found in North Carolina.

Yours, H.
