VIEWES AND REVIEWS.

Pittsburg's glass factories cover 200 acres. Window and pressed glass is made in abundance—but no plate, and very little cut glass is turned out. Indiana manufactures as fine plate glass as any foreign country, and New York builders use it in the large stores and warehouses.

Elam Potter is pushing a wheelbarrow from Albany to San Francisco. He wears very long hair and whiskers, and the wheelbarrow is gaudily painted, so that his arrival in a village causes excitement. He goes to a hotel, as previously arranged, and a crowd follows. Business at the bar is brisk while he stays, and he gets a share of the profit. Probably his journey will terminate at the western limit of civilization and barrooms.

An act passed by the British parliament within a few years makes the shooting of sea birds, for four months in the year, a misdemeanor. In certain parts of Scotland, consequently, their increase has become so enormous as almost to destroy the herring fishery. With 12,000 miles of netting, the fishermen caught only 800,000,000 herring last year, and the parliament is to be asked to repeal the act, as far as Scotland is concerned.

In Chicago it is rumored that the communists are preparing for a desperate strike. The plan is to rise in the morning before daylight, when the populace are asleep, take possession of the streets for several squares, and barricade them for defense. Whether correct or not, it is at least true that the police and military are thoroughly armed, and are preparing to prevent the least signs of an outbreak.

There is a steamer on the Great Salt Lake, Utah, called the General Garfield, but disrespectfully mentioned in the local papers as "the tub." It was lately purchased by a company of Eastern men, and decorated with a fresh coat of putty and paint, notwithstanding which a Western visitor, discerning evidences of the rotteness of the old craft, sententiously observed that "it 'peared to be so much like the General that 'twasn't no use whitewashin' it."

The first steel made in this country was in 1872, and amounted to 94,000 tons. Its manufacture now amounts to over 500,000 tons, or more than three-fourths of all we consume. It is worth $42 a ton on an average, and $30 a ton in England, in gold. The American steel is equal if not superior to foreign manufacture. A firm in Pittsburg is manufacturing steel teeth for horse rakes, for 20,000 sets, to fill an order from England, and the steel now made in America is more and more sought for as the better quality suits certain purposes.

English Prime Ministers have rarely been very rich men, and some have been quite the reverse. Pitt never married and declared that he couldn't afford it, and Canning and Disraeli were bolstered up by wealthy wives. The late Lord Derby and Sir Robert Peel are about the only instances of very wealthy Prime Ministers, though Lord Melbourne was very well off. Lord Palmerston only became so late in life through a rise in mineral property. His wife, too, succeeded to her brother Lord Melbourne's estates.

One of the great lace houses at Nottingham, England, has maintained a daily religious service for its employees for the past twenty-five years. No compulsion whatever is put upon the work-people to attend the service. The half hour it lasts, from 8 to 8:30, is taken out of the master's time. If not at chapel, everybody must be in his or her proper place in the warehouse doing their appointed work. The results that out of a total of 800, the average daily attendance is over 500, involving a weekly loss of 1,500 hours to the firm.

A writer in the London Magazine in 1827, says: "It is curious to imagine what the society of New South Wales may be 2,000 years hence. The ancestors of a portion of our proud nobility were thieves of one kind, the chieftains of ruder times being often nothing better than a well-established robber, and why may not the descendants of another kind of thief glory equally in their origin at some distant day, and proudly trace the deeds of a distinguished felon in London, just as a descendant of a border chief tells of his levies of blackmail?"

A curious bathing fair was held at Ajudhia, in Oude, last February. When a peculiar conjunction of the planets takes place and which only occurs once in eighty years, the natives rush in crowds to the river, as they believe that if they manage to bathe and go through certain ceremonies in four minutes and a half, they will obtain the remission of their own sins and those of millions of their ancestors. On this occasion the rush to the river was so great that numbers were trodden under foot, and sixty-five persons lost their lives.

THE SITUATION IN EUROPE.

At last it seems that peace, peace, mild-eyed peace, is to smile benignly on Russia and England, and the San Stefano treaty, the mighty instrument drawn by that wily Russian diplomat, General Ignatieff, which was to impoverish Turkey, take nearly all of the Sultan's European domains and a big slice from his Asiatic territory, including the strong fortresses of Kars and Ardahan and the strategic position of Batum, on the Black Sea, is to be submitted to a European Congress to determine whether Russia shall have the indemnity claimed in the aforesaid treaty or not.

The Russian soldiery and the Russian peasantry may want to know now why all this blood and treasure have been wasted, for what purpose the soldiers have been called upon to shed their blood like water and the peasants to know why they should be ground to the earth in taxes to carry on such a tremendous war when the fruits of victory are permitted to be snatched from their grasp at the moment when they are about to enjoy it?

True, Russia and England may quarrel in the congress, and withdraw from it to fight, but that is a most improbable contingency. The verdict of history will be that Russia lost her opportunity in April. She never had an earthly chance except in occupying Constantinople and seizing the Bosphorus before the 10th of April. Then she would have encountered little or no opposition from the Turks, and the English fleet would have been compelled to bombard Constantinople, Russians, Turks and all, to accomplish anything. But now, thanks to the activity of England's agents and the abundance of her money, the Turkish army of Constantinople, re-clothed, re-armed, paid up and provisioned, is in high feather, and military authorities say it is abundantly capable not merely of defending Stamboul, but of resuming the offensive, with fair chances of success in case of emergency. In short, the Russians, by trying to substitute diplomacy for force, have lost their opportunity.

England, which always did accomplish more by diplomacy than fighting, has completely out-generated the greatest diplomat of the age, Prince Gortschakoff. By this parleying between the two great Premiers the government of Great Britain has been enabled in the six or seven weeks' time, which she has gained, to place herself in readiness for war. Russia's great Chancellor must have had a sort of Rip Van Winkle sleep.

DEPRECIATION OF REAL PROPERTY IN NEW YORK.

The World says it has seemed for some months as if the price of land on Manhattan island had gone as low as it could go, and that neither hard times nor local misgovernment, nor both together, could put it any lower. The Brevet sale in Brooklyn the other day was disastrous, but it was hopeful compared with the sacrifice of property along the Boulevard, which was made recently. The property sold for about a quarter of its appraised value or perhaps a tenth of what it would have brought ten years ago. The number of people who own houses and lots and yet take no interest in local politics, is likely to diminish with much rapidity.

EIGHT BY SEVEN.

The eternal fitness of things is well illustrated in the fact that ex-Gov. Chamberlain, of South Carolina carpet-bagger, appears before the Senate Committee on Privileges and Elections to plead the cause of another carpet-bagger, Corbin by name, who contests the seat now filled by Senator M. O. Butler. Set a thief to catch a thief and set a thief to help a thief. Corbin is trying to imitate Hayes and wants to make a returning board of a Congressional Committee. He is trying to steal a Senatorship and illustrate the electoral fitness of things (8x7) by getting a thief to plead his cause.

This fellow, Corbin, is a notorious rascal, and it is probably on this fact he hangs his hopes of success. He is familiarly known among the political refugees in South Carolina as the man who once held half-a-dozen offices at the same time, in that State; who added more than his share to the fund of lies gathered there during the last campaign, and who was never known to reject an opportunity to feather his nest. If he had his deserts he would be breaking stone at Albany, instead of making application for admission at the doors of the Senate.

AN EXPERIMENT.

The newest direct trade experiment at Chicago is the chartering of a schooner to take a cargo of alcohol from there to Gibraltar at $2 50 per bbl. The Tribune says: "If a vessel of sufficient capacity can be secured to carry the alcohol to Quebec, the 'Pamlico,' now there, will receive it and deliver it at Gibraltar for orders. The cargo goes finally to the Mediterranean."

THE FLORIDA STEAL.

The Boston Post publishes an interesting interview with Hon. Lewis Baldwin, who was one of the gentlemen who went to Florida on behalf of the Democratic party in the time of counting the vote. Mr. Baldwin, who reported at the time the methods by which the vote of the State was stolen, recapitulated some of the statements he had hitherto made, showing how the event had proved their correctness. He also spoke of an interview he had with Mr. Tilden the day after the announcement of the Florida vote had been made. Mr. Baldwin was indignant at the frauds, and suggested that the Oregon vote, of which he had just heard, would probably make everything all right. Mr. Tilden responded that he would not take the Presidency if he got it by the vote of Oregon, but he thought it might compel Congress to go behind the declaration of the Returning Board in the Florida and Louisiana cases.

WESTERN GRAIN FREIGHTS.

The New York Bulletin says that the depression of lake grain freights, in consequence of the low rates at which the railroads are doing continues and the boats accordingly talk blue. On Saturday, 18th, according to the Chicago Inter-Ocean, the railroads were carrying grain through to New York at 14 cents per 100 pounds. Lake and canal shipments on through rates to New York are not attempted at present. Meanwhile, the lake sailors, who are pretty much out of employment, still maintain their demand for $1.50 per diem, and the "Union" is keeping them up to it. If they would accept a dollar, business might be restarted in spite of railroad competition and a good many sailors would be kept from degenerating, by-and-by, into idle tramps.

The French Societe des Voyages d'Etudes, which has among its founders many of the most eminent of French scientists, is at this moment fitting out, for the second time, a vessel for a voyage around the world. The object is to organize voyages of this kind for instruction and amusement under such advantages as only few private persons would be able to command. The duration of the trip is eleven months. The cost of a cabin occupied by one person is $920; occupied by two, $680. The numbers are limited to 60. The vessel sails June 30.

The most venerable couple in Texas, perhaps in the country, are Mr. and Mrs. Robinson of Mountain City. He is reputed to be 103, and she 102 years old, and they were married in Kentucky eighty-two years ago. Mr. Robinson says he never swore but one oath, has never borrowed but fifty cents, and never gave a note. He and his wife are like children in their devotion to each other, and after any separation shed tears on meeting. Recently they were presented with a comfortable house by a generous neighbor.

In England the class among which the rate of mortality is highest are the innkeepers. For this there can be but one cause—drink. The class highest in the scale of vitality are the barristers, who are not, as a class, distinguished for habits of total abstinence. The death rate is higher among clergymen than among lawyers. It is a curious fact, too, that mortality is greater among solicitors, who lead a much less stirring and bustling life, than among barristers.

A Manifest Absurdity.

It is manifestly absurd to claim for a mere stimulant, tonic and alterative properties. Yet this is what is daily done by the vendors of cheap local bitters, colored to make them look attractive, and agreeably flavored, but the alcoholic basis of which is of the vilest and most hurtful description. The transcendent success of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, the leading alterative tonic of the United States, has induced many of these compounders of drams in disguise, to attempt the counterfeiting of this standard medicine, but their efforts have never proved successful on a large scale, and they have themselves in many instances notoriously "come to grief," through the instrumentality of the law.
