The First National

The consolidation of the First National Bank and the Dawson Bank seems to have been fully effected. The officers of both banks are retained, with the exception of the two juniors in the Dawson Bank, Mr. Ashley Gilbert, Book-keeper, and Mr. J. Hal Boatwright, Discount Clerk, of the National, in addition to those mentioned by us the other day, still continuing to fill their positions.

The Thalian Amateurs.

The ladies and gentlemen composing this organization must have been gratified by the appreciative manner in which their efforts were received by the large audience who were in attendance at the Upper Room of the Tileston School last evening to witness the performance. The rendition was very good, and in some passages excellent. There was a little occasional hesitancy, and some of the actors were evidently not (to use the stage vernacular) well up in their parts, and one of the ladies did not speak quite loud enough to be thoroughly understood. We hope our young friends will not think we are criticizing them too harshly, (for, indeed, we were highly pleased), but that we make the suggestions as a kindly encouragement. All the faults we noticed (and they were few), may be easily and readily overcome, and, undoubtedly, will be. The actors possess real histrionic abilities, which time and experience will demonstrate. We are earnest advocates of all such enterprises, not only because they develop our home talent, but because they afford our people an opportunity of occasionally passing a very agreeable evening at a very trifling expense, as we did last evening. We congratulate the young ladies and gentlemen of the Amateurs on their ability not only to draw large houses, but to entertain them as well, and we shall look with pleasure for their next appearance on the mimic stage.

Weather Report.

The indications of the weather, as received at the Signal Office in this city at 10 o'clock this forenoon, are as follows: In the South Atlantic and East Gulf States generally lower pressure, Northeast to Southeast winds and slightly warmer, clear or partly cloudy weather will prevail, with rain areas in latter.

The Queen of the Oven.

A breakfast-biscuit or tea-roll made with DOOLEY'S YEAST POWDER is certainly the queen of the oven—so light, white, and delicious. You lift it tenderly, break it open gently, spread it daintily with fresh, sweet butter, waiting to be gratified. After breakfasting on biscuits made with DOOLEY'S YEAST POWDER, what man would contemplate suicide or grumble because his wife asked him for money?

Dropsy and Rheumatism

Dropsical and Rheumatic persons find the use of Spear's Port Grape Wine of New Jersey, and the Wine Bitters of incalculable benefit. Their purity and valuable properties have given them a wide reputation among physicians throughout this country and Europe. This wine took the highest premium at the late Centennial.

Hanging of the Murderers of the Worley Family.

APPEARANCE OF GOLDSBORO.

Incidents of the Occasion.

On Thursday evening, before the hanging, numbers of people came from long distances many of whom encamped in the suburbs of the town to be promptly on hand in the morning. The Sheriff had given notice through the papers that he would not proceed to the execution of the felons before 3 o'clock p.m. notwithstanding which, at 8 o'clock Friday morning more than two thousand people were on the ground looking at the scaffold and preparations and securing good places from which to view the execution. At 9 o'clock the crowd had increased to three thousand, and by 10 o'clock over five thousand were on the streets and the crowd constantly increasing. Centre street, the principal street of the town, is 140 feet wide and the pack was so great on the sidewalks that your correspondent had to take the middle of the street in passing up and down. "Cheap John" was on hand crying off his wares at auction and a motley crowd surrounded him bidding on his "cheap bargains", "goods given-away." The inevitable Italian with his organ and monkey drew a crowd up and down the streets. To add to the confusion Messrs W. F. Konegay & Co., dealers in agricultural engines, backed two steam engines with very shrill whistles into the street, to one of which they attached a wheat thrasher and under Charley Dewey they were shrieking and thrashing all day, much to the delight of a large crowd of white and colored farmers who surrounded the machines and hung over them in constant danger of losing hand and arm in the swiftly revolving wheels.

At 9 o'clock, Co. E, of the Vance Guards, col'd., mustered at their army under the command of Capt. Green Everett with 45 men. After marching through the streets and performing various military manoeuvres they reported to the Sheriff for duty. Then the drum of the Goldsboro Rifles, white, was heard and they turned out, commanded by Capt. W. H. H. Cobb, numbering 45 men, and marched off to report to the Sheriff.

SCENE AT THE PLACE OF EXECUTION.

The Court House square was packed with a surging crowd, white and black, women, children and men. The scaffold was erected in a small enclosure east of the jail and adjoining it. The platform was about even with the top of the enclosure so that all who wished could see and hear the felons. The Court House windows were filled at 9 o'clock and the top of the Court House which overlooks the scene was crowded with spectators at that hour. At 11 o'clock the Vance Guards marched into the square and took position on the east of the Court House where they stacked arms, put out sentinels and were held in reserve in case of any rioting. The Goldsboro Rifles were stationed within the enclosure and a line of sentinels posted with part of the company on the outside, a strong rope being drawn around, about thirty feet from the wall, covering the door of the jail. Crowd increasing constantly. Walnut street packed and Centre for half a mile. Many have been in position since 8 o'clock a. m. though the execution does not take place until 3 o'clock p. m. The 17 bar-rooms of the place are crowded and lager beer with whiskey strait is being dealt out as fast as the bar keepers and their assistants can deliver it. By 3 o'clock there will be hundreds "drunk and down" and unable to see the great show. The Sheriff is calm and collected, a man of great nerve and steady, quiet demeanor.

ONE O'CLOCK.

The barbecue carts—a Wayne county feature—are well patronized and the crowds are dining, everybody in good humor, peaceful, mellow and even jolly; just rising and fluids going down. How the Commissioners of Wayne county will answer the violated law which they have disregarded to have the execution private, only the Solicitor of the District can tell and we presume he will do his duty. Sampson, Duplin, Greene, Lenoir, Johnston, Wilson, and Wayne have all sent their crowds. A Greene county man remarked just now that the fo... killer would have nothing to do in his county to-day if he was to pass through.

TWO O'CLOCK.

Crowd fully six thousand. Photographs of the felons are being peddled at five cents each and thousands have been sold. Just now the guards pressed the crowd back off from the rope and the confusion gave rise to a rumor of fighting over the prisoners. The outside of the crowd stampeded up street and about a thousand did not stop until they reached the Railroad. They felt their way back gradually and are now hanging timidly around. The prisoners are on the scaffold and the end is near.

Each one had on a neat black suit presented by the Sheriff—the drop fell at 3 o'clock precisely.

Noah Cherry, who was the prime mover of the heinous crime and subsequent murder, was 64 years of age. He was a pure African. He had an ungainly stooping figure, and his head and face were covered with a shock of grizzly gray hair; his countenance was one which would inspire any one with feelings of mistrust.

Harris Atkinson, aged 38 years, was a full-blooded negro, resembling a head and protruding chin. His physiognomy was the picture of ignorance and insolence.

Robert Thompson, aged 42 years, had not a bad countenance, and from his general appearance one would hardly suppose him black enough at heart to have taken part in the outrage and double murder.

Seven minutes past 2 o'clock the culprits mounted the scaffold, facing north. The Sheriff had consented to give the felons twenty minutes each in which to speak and the eager lookers on listened with bated breath for the startling confession it was supposed the men would make. As they made none on the scaffold the supposition was that they had made their confessions to Sheriff Grantam and Mr. Julius Bonitz, of the Goldsboro Messenger, but in this they were mistaken, as the men stoutly denied knowing anything relative to the charge of which they were convicted, and for which they would soon be put to death. Cherry first addressed the crowd, denying all the way through any complicity with the matter. He pleaded his case before the people, and evidently had no idea he would be hung. He is said to have asked the Sheriff early in the morning of the execution to hang him before breakfast, as he wanted to see how they feed in the jail. He stated, on the gallows, that he wanted to go to heaven, but he was not sure he would get there.

Atkinson next spoke, and evinced a vast amount of venom, was impudent and defiant in his manner, and was very abusive to one of the counsel for the State.

Robert Thompson next addressed the crowd, and his remarks were of the tenor of those of his brother convict. He showed less venom than the other two, but reiterated his innocence.

The allotted time being up, friends of the felons ascended the scaffold and bade them good-bye.

The noose was adjusted and the caps were pulled over the faces, when the men, for the first time, showed signs of trepidation. The drop fell, and the souls of the felons were ushered into eternity. The bodies dropped like logs and died very quietly, pulsation ceasing in three minutes. Up to the time the noose was affixed, the doomed men evidently thought a huge farce was being enacted for the purpose of extorting confessions from them.

The impression among those who had conversed freely with the men, is that they had conferred together and decided to die rather than divulge their secret.

A noticeable feature of the day was the presence on the grounds, in about ten feet of the gallows, of the children of the murdered parents. "Little Tildie Worley," aged five years, and the only eye-witness to the murder who is known of—except Jerry Cox, who turned State's evidence—Cora Francis Worley, aged three years, and Celia Lavinia Worley, a child at the breast. Their protectors and guardians kept them in full view of the gallows and often told the oldest child to take a good look at the men, for they killed her parents. The bodies of the culprits were taken charge of by their friends, and thus ended the great tragedy of Wayne county.

Still Sick.

Rev. Dr. Patterson has not yet returned to the city. He is in Raleigh at the house of a friend, where he is receiving every kind attention and his physician, Dr. E. Burke Haywood, has forbidden him to travel yet. There will be services, however, in St. John's to-morrow at the usual hours. Rev. Mr. Morrelle will preach in the morning and Rev. Dr. Watson at night.

Arrest of an Alleged Murderer.

A white man by the name of Miles Smith, alias L. V. Smith, was arrested by Constable C. W. Oldham, of this city, at Sneed's Ferry Onslow county, about seven o'clock on Thursday evening the 13th inst., upon a warrant issued by Justice W. W. Harris, for the murder of one Henry Johnson, colored, in the month of October, 1876, at a public speaking in Darlington District South Carolina, about five miles east of Darlington Court House. Mr. Oldham left here on Thursday morning and reached Sneed's Ferry that evening between six and seven o'clock, and in an hour after his arrival the accused party was in his custody.

Officer Oldham said upon coming up with Smith, he read the warrant for his arrest, and informed him that he would have to leave those parts and proceed to Wilmington under arrest to await the action of the authorities in South Carolina, to answer to the charge contained in the warrant. Smith replied that he was not guilty and didn't think he would come. At this juncture, officer Oldham held up to Smith's astonished gaze a pair of iron bracelets, and informed him that he could make his choice, go peaceably or by force. Whereupon Smith decided to go peaceably. Mr. Oldham remained with his prisoner at Sneed's Ferry until yesterday, (Friday) morning, about six o'clock, when he started with him for Wilmington, reaching here about seven o'clock last night. Smith was immediately committed to jail, and the authorities in South Carolina notified of his arrest.

Justice Harris also forwarded to His Excellency Gov. Zebulon B. Vance a copy of the proceedings in the case.

We understand that Governor Hampton has offered a reward of $200 for the arrest of the murderer of the aforesaid Henry Johnson.

To-morrow is known in the Church Calendar as Trinity Sunday.
