IEWS AND REVIEWS.

Ex-Governor Chamberlain was among the passengers who sailed from New York on Saturday last for Europe.

Signor Cairoli, Prime Minister of Italy, is exerting himself to bring about an international exhibition at Rome in 1881.

Diaz has pronounced against a railway connecting Mexico with the United States, and refuses to admit the contract agreed upon by his predecessors.

The last public hanging in England was that of Michael Barrett, for complicity in the Fenian attempt to blow up Clerkenwell Prison on May 26, 1868.

Hubert, of the New York World, is going to Europe, and will be succeeded by Mr. Schuyler, of its editorial staff. Who owns the paper and conducts its politics just now are mysteries.

A Bridgeport man sang and played a guitar for an hour before his sweetheart's house, the other evening. Then his rival appeared at the parlor window and thanked him for the serenade.

D'Alberis, the Italian explorer of New Guinea, describes the people whom he saw on his recent journey up the Fly river as "beautifully dressed with white feathers, and their bodies painted in many colors."

Jesse Graut, the young son of Ulysses, has got home-sick and comes back from Europe, agreeing with Tilden, Conkling and the rest that this is the "boss" country. His father expects to spend the summer in northern Europe and the winter in Spain. Jesse reports that the ex-President regards the Potter investigation as a "useless piece of business."

The President of the United States having granted a rehearing in the case of Gen. Fitz John Porter, who was cashiered during the late war for alleged disobedience of orders under Pope, the board of army officers appointed to hear the new testimony to be presented will begin its sessions at West Point on the 20th inst. Gen. George W. Getty, commanding at Fortress Monroe, will serve as president of the board, and has already arrived at West Point. The friends of Gen. Porter have been very active in hunting testimony favorable for the defense, and are sanguine that his conduct as an officer will be vindicated by a reversal of the verdict of dismissal from the army.

The Postmaster General apprehends very serious embarrassment in carrying on the postal service, by reason of the reductions in compensation of the railroads and Department officials made by Congress. The compensation of the railroads was reduced ten per cent. during the last Congress, and by the present Congress five per cent. more. Mr. Key does not think the railroads will stand this. He says that he fears he will lose a number of his best officers, special agents and officers of railway transportation, who will be offered better salaries than the Government now gives them, and he fears that the system of postal-cars which has done so much for the postal service, may, in consequence of the reduced appropriations, be obliged to be abandoned.

A Washington letter says: "There is a great deal of comment here over the extraordinary and unwarranted speech of Gen. Sherman at the dinner of the West Point alumni yesterday. Gen. Sherman is represented as having said that if any attempt was made to disturb Mr. Hayes's title the latter would have nerve enough to maintain his rights, and in doing so would have the support of the army. Some of Gen. Sherman's own friends here say that he has, by his political speeches in the last year or two, done more to stir up popular prejudice against the army than all other causes combined. It is known that many army officers of high rank and of distinguished reputation deny Gen. Sherman's right to place the army in the attitude of taking sides in the politics of the country."

ABUSE, NOT CRITICISM.

A paper published in the city of Richmond, Va., known as The State, which, however, we are inclined to think lacks many essential elements of being a State paper, has presumed to thus refer to one of our distinguished Representatives in Congress—General R. B. Vance:

His conduct, whether foolish or knavish, is equally indefensible, and the people of Virginia should not soon forget this unneighborly stab at their best interests merely for a little cheap "moonshine" popularity in his own district.

The foregoing paragraph was directed at General Vance in consequence of that gentleman's presuming to exercise his right as a Representative, and daring to offer an amendment to the tobacco bill, which is the particular pet scheme of a certain class of Virginia politicians and tobacco speculators. Now, when we take into consideration the fact that North Carolina produces about as much tobacco as Virginia, and that nearly one half of the tobacco offered in Virginia markets is grown in North Carolina, an unprejudiced, fair-minded person might wonder why North Carolina, who pays her quota of taxes to the general government, hasn't quite as much right to speak through her Representatives upon a matter that concerns the interests of this State, as Virginia has.

The Raleigh Observer, some months ago, had occasion to administer a rebuke to one of the Richmond papers, about North Carolina affairs, and in that rebuke took occasion to remark that "modesty is not a chief characteristic of the average Virginian." If the paragraph above quoted from the Richmond paper is a fair sample of the sentiments of the average Virginian, we are rather inclined to think that the Observer was about three-thirds right in its conclusions. Senator Withers, of Virginia, some two years ago, voted to abolish the duty on rice. But no unkind remark was made by the press of the Carolinas and Georgia, where rice is a chief product of those States, toward Senator Withers—i. e., that we have ever seen. The abolition of the duty on rice brought this country into direct competition with China, where rice grows as easily as wire grass in our piney woods; and we must confess, while we are considering this subject, that it did seem a little strange for a Southern Senator to occupy the anomalous position of voting to adopt free trade in the South, while the North was protected with a high tariff on its manufactured articles.

In conclusion, we will simply remark that, if the Richmond papers or the Virginia papers, generally desire to criticize the conduct of any Southern Representatives, they have a fine field within their own borders. We are proud of our Representatives in Congress; they have done nothing to reflect discredit upon the selves or their constituents, and have occupied a position in both branches of the National Legislature second to none from any other section of the country. Can Virginia say as much for her whole Democratic delegation?

It would be well, too, if the Richmond State would study up the difference between criticism and abuse. Every public man is open to the former; but none are disposed to submit quietly to the latter when they have acted conscientiously and with strict regard to the welfare of their constituents.

THE COLOR LINE.

The doctrine of political equality preached so long and so persistently by the Radicals is about to bear a very distasteful fruit. Heretofore it has been a very fine thing to lead the negroes like sheep straight up to the political shambles where they voted as they were bid for their white leaders for all of the prominent offices, satisfying themselves with the crumbs which fell to their share, but now there is a change. In Tarboro, on Tuesday last, there was a Convention of the Republicans of the Second Judicial District, for the purpose of nominating a candidate for Solicitor, and although there was no lack of candidates among the whites, a negro lawyer by the name of John H. Collins, of Halifax, duly received the nomination.

The District is composed of the counties of Wake, Warren, Halifax, Northampton, Edgecombe, Bertie, Martin and Craven, and as the negroes are largely in the majority in the District, the nomination is equivalent to an election.

Yet this is not all. The Judge and Solicitor in the Second District and the Congressman in the Second, are all that the Radicals can carry at the next election, of a grade above county officers, and the strong probability is that two of these three offices will be filled by colored men. Ex. Gov. Brogden is now Representative from the Newbern district, and although he and L. W. Humphrey and other white Republicans are making active and earnest canvasses for the nomination, yet the strong probability is that it will fall to W. P. Mabson, a colored man from Edgecombe county.

There is a sort of poetical justice in these things which the white people in this State are not slow to appreciate.

ADJOURNED.

Congress adjourned this morning at 7 o'clock, after an all-night session. This winds up the 45th Congress. We will have something to say in to-morrow's issue in regard to their labors.

OPENING THE CAMPAIGN.

The Goldsboro Messenger understands that Judge Powle will open the campaign in a short time. He will make his first speech at Rocky Mount and an appointment has also been made for him at Kenansville. The Judge is an earnest, able speaker, a vigorous thinker and an eloquent declaimer, with facts and figures always at hand to support his arguments. We would be glad to have him come to Wilmington and speak here where he has heretofore been gladly heard during the few visits he has made to our city.

Capt. Swift Galloway, candidate for Solicitor from this district, is also making up his appointments. He speaks first at Beaufort on Thursday next and on the Fourth at Snow Hill. He will most probably take in Wilmington during his round in the Cape Fear counties.

Mr. Americus Symmes has recently restated his father's theory of the North Pole, in which he also has faith. He holds that the explorer will find, after he passes the eightieth degree, the weather milder; when he reaches the eighty-first degree he will find some open water; when the eighty-second degree is reached he will find much open water and great quantities of wild animals, and some water fowls; when the eighty-third degree is reached he will find the open Polar Sea, two thousand miles in diameter, and, if he will go out into that sea when the weather is warm and genial, he will find the country that the Symmes theory says can be found, of large forests of timber, large rivers and rich land, and the home of more wild animals than can be discovered anywhere else in creation, and water fowls in abundance. Mr. Symmes argues that the observations of the open Polar Sea back up his theory; that wild animals go North in the fall from Greenland and return in the spring fat and leading their young, and that big trees, vegetables and flowers come floating down from the North, and lodge on the coasts of Norway and Spitzbergen. Mr. Symmes recommends his banza zone on ice to the attention of the Howgate Expedition.

(Washington Post.)

Hon. W. M. Robbins, of the Second North Carolina district, leaves for home to-night. We regret to learn that there is opposition in his district to his renomination. We do not believe that this springs from the hearts of the sturdy people of his district. Mr. Robbins is an able, faithful and reliable Representative. He has boldly and eloquently voiced the wrongs and vindicated the rights of his people. His speech on the tariff was an able and masterly exposition. His people will make a great mistake if they fail to return this honest and able Representative.

(Charleston News & Courier.)

South Carolina's Friend—Gen. Ransom. The appropriation of two hundred thousand dollars for the improvement of Charleston harbor is not all that South Carolina gets from Congress this session. In the Sundry Civil bill is incorporated an appropriation of $20,000 for the erection of a lighthouse on Paris Island, in Port Royal Sound, and provision is made in the River and Harbor bill for the survey and improvement of the Pee-Dee River. For the success of the effort to obtain these necessary appropriations, especially Charleston harbor, the public are largely indebted to Senator Ransom of North Carolina. As a member of the Senate Committee on Commerce he had large opportunities which he used with admirable effect. His labors, too, were the more important, in our behalf, inasmuch as he is, beyond question, one of the most influential members of the Senate.

Gen. Ransom, although a fine speaker and dialectician, wielding with equal power the rapier of satire and the hammer of hard fact, seldom cares to be heard on the floor of the Senate, save when questions of National concern, and topics of interest to the South, are under consideration. How brilliant he can be, when the exigency arises, was exhibited in his scathing reply to the calumnies of Senator Hoss. Senator Ransom prefers working to talking, and this quality, together with his purity of character and kindly dignity of manner, cause him to grow steadily in weight with his colleagues. The South needs more such men as Ransom, Lamar, Morgan and Butler, for not one of these has imperiled the success of any measure by injudicious action, or has been disposed to sacrifice the useful to the ornamental.

It is proper that South Carolina should know how much she owes to Senator Ransom, for no State has had a more capable and consistent friend, in all things and at all times, in Washington.
