VIEWS AND REVIEWS.

The philosopher of the New York Times has calculated that "the flies in the boarding houses of the city of New York alone would, if gathered together, form a pyramid with a base of one thousand square feet and a height of six hundred and fifty feet."

The Prix du Jockey Club, commonly called the French Derby, was founded in 1736. The prize was then $1,000; it has gradually increased, till now it amounts to $10,000. From 1826 to 1877 the sum of $1,938,160 has been added by the Jockey Club.

At New York there seems to be a general decline in the prices of the shares and loans of the passenger railway companies of that city. The bonds, being secured by the real estate and personal property of the companies, are not greatly affected, but the elevated roads are seriously affected by the price of stock and scrip.

Senator Thurman's red-silk handkerchief, which figured so conspicuously during the sessions of the Electoral Commission, will appear in Mr. Fassett's painting of the tribunal. The Senator has been sketched with the handkerchief thrown carelessly over his arm, and it will be so handed down to posterity.

General James Grant Wilson, at whose residence the poet Bryant happened to have his fatal fall, is about to turn the accident to good account by writing "a biographical memoir" to float a new edition of Mr. Bryant's "Library of Poetry and Song." The Evening Post very properly makes this announcement the text for some pungent remarks on biographical penny-a-lining.

It seems to be now ascertained that J. Donald Cameron, of Pennsylvania, will receive undivided Republican support for the United States Senatorship. Gov. Hartranft, who was selected by the anti-Cameron interest as the man to make a fight against the regular candidate, has positively announced that he will not allow his name to go before the Legislature.

The Nautilus, which left Boston June 3, was spoken by the Adriatic of the White Star line on the 19th at a point about one-fourth the distance to Europe. The little vessel is the smallest that ever attempted to cross the Atlantic. Her two passengers were well, and the only assistance they required was information as to their latitude and longitude.

The auditor of public accounts of Virginia has received returns from all counties and cities of that State using the Moffatt whiskey register from the date of their being put into operation up to April 30. These returns indicate that the total yield on revenues from the sale of whiskey taxes, etc., will foot up for the year $605,474, as against $202,195 heretofore reported as the amount assessed on liquor in every form for the year 1876-77.

The jolly members of the Hoboken Turtle Club and hundreds of their friends, says the New York Sun, enjoyed the first feast of the season in the grove in the rear of Gabe Case's hotel, in Jerome avenue. On the three long tables were 100 pounds of Spanish mackerel, 50 pounds of cels, 50 pounds of turtle steaks, 50 pounds of beef steaks, 150 boiled eggs, &c. The turtle eaters were nearly all heavy weights, among them being many politicians, hotel proprietors, merchants, lawyers, and turnmen. After having taken account of stock, it was decided that Col. Bush had eaten the most. In the pools he was included in the field. Pools on him paid $379 60. His grand total was: Twenty-one plates of soup, thirty hard-boiled eggs, twelve Spanish mackerel, ten pounds of steak, twenty-five hot rolls, and sixteen cups of coffee.

A FAITH THAT IS NOT FAITH.

Ralph Waldo Emerson, in a paper recently contributed to the North American Review, entitled "Sovereignty of Ethics," proclaims, with a show of erudition, the birth of a new faith and labors to persuade his readers that a worship based upon it will necessarily be that which shall engage the devotions of the future American. The Home Journal has copied the article under the head of "The Faith of the Future." Mr. Emerson lays down as the Corner Stone of this strange edifice this very comprehensive definition of the term worship:—"Worship," he says, "is the regard for what is above us," by which he evidently means whatever is incomprehensible. In his view of the subject what we have been taught to believe as the most solemn act of religious duty may be so construed as to embrace any act of superstitious reverence, any system of idolatry, however monstrous, so long as the mind is blinded to the belief that it is right in rendering such adoration, to say nothing of the very common form known as hero worship, which has of late years obtained such a strong hold upon the average American mind, and which by the eye of reason may be seen to be working out its legitimate results, the subversion of good government, and the fraudulent absorption of the inherent rights of the people, by reducing the mind to a condition of slavery to theories, which have no foundation in truth, thereby rendering man a pliant instrument in promoting the ends of evil and ambitious aspirants of power.

Mr. Emerson ignores entirely the religious instinct in man—a fact which had ever been admitted, and proclaimed by the history of the human race, in whatever state of society it has been found. And he attempts to confound, at one fell swoop, religion and ethics, by giving to the latter a dignity and control over human actions to which it can never attain, except through the regenerating power of the former. In a word, his theory, if theory it may be called, would set up in our midst, as legitimate worship, a blind obedience to impulse, which is as various and whimsical in its exercises as the circumstance which tend to produce it. And this, he avers is the true faith to which the American mind is naturally tending. Mr. Emerson's whole article is a disjointed chain of generalities, from which only one conclusion can be drawn; that he has read that book called the Bible to little purpose if he has not discovered in it the foundation of his much boasted system of ethics. He will find it expanded in the ten Commandments given to Moses. It is again condensed in the short compass of a simple sentence, "Do unto others as you would they should do to you." And again it is expressed in a form that cannot be mistaken, "Love thy neighbor as thyself." Now, if Mr. Emerson cannot draw out either of these passages into a better system of ethics than any that he can conceive or with which he may be familiar, it is certain proof that his mind is better adapted to fiction than to the development of truth. But this is not where we make direct issue with Mr. Emerson. We would say to him that if the Bible, which promises the only true foundation upon which to erect a system of ethics, reveals to us the necessity of "butressing it up, in shallow hours of ages, with legends, traditions and forms,"—we give his own words,—we are inclined to think that the Bible is true and that Mr. Emerson's idle speculations about the "human mind when trusted never being false to itself" and the "conduct" of man remaining steadfast amidst the decline of religion and piety is but an edifice of that very thin substance known as gas. But in deference to Mr. Emerson we will call it erudite gas.

We are willing to accord to man, as the highest order of created beings on earth, much that Mr. Emerson claims for him. But, after all, we are still forced to the conclusion, based upon a careful review of his career, that he is not to be treated beyond the influence of that mighty force concentrated by the infinite wisdom of his Creator under the banner of the Cross. And in order to render the very best system of ethics effective in neutralizing the power of sin, there must be a faith and worship, which shall have Christ for its "centrality." If this be not so, why is it that the strictly moral statesmen of our day have, in the exercise of their "great moral ideas," in direct violation of Mr. Emerson's theory, come so near subverting the best government in the world, a government founded upon the admission of the very truths which we have advanced? Why are these moral men to-day withering under the rebuke of the moral law against which they have offended? And why is our country cursed with countless isms, the legitimate results of man's attempt to walk by his own innate strength? Nothing is more evident in practice than that the mind must rise step by step if it would attain to any grand view of its own powers or of the wisdom of the Creator, as manifested in His works. This wisdom is preeminently shown in the existence of a moral principle or conscience which we find implanted in man's nature, affording as it does a living evidence, confirmed by the revealed moral law, as a guide for its action, of the remaining trace of the glory of man's original constitution. But it is of itself inadequate to effect the restoration of that glory. It serves only as a bridge over which fallen man may walk till he shall reach the confines of truth. From thence he must walk by the eye of Faith, A Faith that shall embrace God's commandments with obedience, and His promises with trust.

If Mr. Emerson will but contrast the results of his theory in practice with the fruits borne by the system we here commend to his consideration, we venture the belief that he will not be long in choosing which is best to live by.

(Newbern Nat Shell.) A. & N. C. Railroad.

A large number of stockholders of the Atlantic & N. C. R. R. assembled yesterday in the spacious ball room of the Atlantic Hotel for the purpose of organizing a permanent Board of Stockholders. J. C. Wooted, of Kingston, was made temporary Chairman and Messrs. Pool of the Newbernian, and Bonditz of the Goldsboro Messenger, made temporary Secretaries. The attempt to organize a Board failed for want of a quorum.

It seems unjustly had been issued by Judge Seymour, restraining stockholders from voting their stock in a divided state, although the something had been done in times past by other stockholders who are not under injunction.

The State, represented by Judge Manly, believing this to be unequal and unjust, declined going into a meeting until the stockholders, enjoined had an opportunity to obviate this inequality by injunctions, or otherwise.

Judge M. said the State, from its standpoint, did not object to inquiry, but desired it; that the rule of voting might be made equally applicable to all and in accordance with the spirit and intent of the charter. This course, he said, was taken in pursuance of injunctions from His Excellency the Governor.

Pender County—New Postoffice on Moore's Creek Secured through Col. Waddell. MOORE'S CREEK, CEDAR DALE P. O., } PENDER CO., June 27, 1878.

MR. EDITOR—You can see from the above caption that we have had established through the influence of that estimable gentleman and our much esteemed friend, Col. A. M. Waddell, a new Postoffice by the name of Cedar Dale. This new office is one mile off the old route from Rocky Point to Black River Chapel on an intersecting road that intersects the old Fayetteville and Sampson roads, also about two miles from that memorable old place, the battle ground of Moore's Creek, where the once famous battle that was won sided so much in the termination of the Revolution within our own State. This Postoffice has been much needed for some time, it being five miles each to the nearest offices, Long Creek and Point Caswell.

Crops are good in this section and our people devote more of their time to farming than formerly on account of the very low prices of naval stores. We have hundreds of acres of good clayey subsoil land perfectly adapted to cotton and we look forward and hope that the day is not far distant when this will be the cotton section of Pender. We are sure by a little improvement that they cannot be surpassed by any in the State. And, Sir, we have the needed material on our own farms without having to send abroad for commercial fertilizers.

We have some specimens of very fine marl, which we think cannot be excelled in either of the Carolinas. We are anxious to have Prof. Kerr visit us and will take pleasure in taking him through our country.

Please send to this office some extra copies of your valuable JOURNAL for distribution. I am anxious that every citizen in the vicinity of Cedar Dale should be a subscriber to the JOURNAL. I am, very respectfully yours, CEDAR DALE.

An Open Letter—It Speaks for Itself

ROCKFORD, Mass., April 2d, 1877. MR. EDITOR—Having read in your paper reports of the remarkable cures of catarrh, I am induced to tell what I know about catarrh, and I fancy the "snuff" and "inhalant-tube" makers (mere dollar grabbers) would be glad if they could emblazon a similar cure in the papers. For 26 years I suffered with catarrh. The nasal passages became completely closed. "Snuff," "dust," "ashes," "inhalant-tubes" and "sticks" would not work, though at intervals I would sniff up the so-called catarrh snuff until I became a valuable tester for such medicines. I gradually grew worse, and no one can know how much I suffered or what a miserable being I was. My head ached over my eyes so that I was confined to my bed for many successive days, suffering the most intense pain, which at one time lasted continuously for 168 hours. All sense of smell and taste gone, sight and hearing impaired, body shrunk and weakened, nervous system shattered and constitution broken, and I was hacking and spitting seven-eighths of the time. I prayed for death to relieve me of my suffering. A favorable notice in your paper of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy induced me to purchase a package and use it with Dr. Pierce's Nasal Douche, which applies the remedy of hydrostatic pressure, the only way compatible with common sense. Well, Mr. Editor, it did not cure me in three-fourths of a second, nor in one hour or month, but in less than eight minutes I was relieved, and in three months entirely cured, and have remained so for over sixteen months. While using the Catarrh Remedy, I used Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery to purify my blood and strengthen my stomach. I also kept my liver active and bowels regular by the use of his Pleasant Purgative Pellets. If my experience will induce other sufferers to seek the same means of relief, this letter will have answered its purpose.

Yours truly, S. D. REMICK. d&wit

TO ADVERTISERS. Geo. P. Rowell & Co's SELECT LIST

Local Newspapers. Many persons suppose this list to be composed of CHEAP, low-priced newspapers. The fact is quite otherwise. The Catalogue states exactly what the papers are. When the name of the paper is printed in full-face type it is in every instance the best paper in the place. When printed in Capitals it is the only paper in the place. When printed in Roman letters it is neither the best nor the only paper, but is usually a very good one, notwithstanding. The list gives the population of every town and the circulation of every paper. It is not a Co-operative List. It is not a Cheap List. At the foot of the Catalogue for each State the important towns which are not covered by the list are enumerated. It is an Honest List. The list includes 970 newspapers, of which 165 are issued Daily and 805 Weekly. They are located in 825 different cities and towns, of which 22 are State Capitals, 828 places of over 5,000 population, and 441 County Seats. Lists Sent on Application. Address GEO. P.
