VIEWS AND REVIEWS.

"This is the Champs Ulysses, named after you, General," said the gallant Parisians driving Grant along the chief boulevard. And it is intimated that the great ex-tinner as well as ex-President was mightily flattered.
 Kearney, the political rocket of the Pacific slope, was born in Oakmount, County Cork, Ireland, in 1747; spent his youth on the sea, reached San Francisco as first officer of the clipper ship Shooting Star in 1868, is a Catholic, is married, temperate and swears like a trooper in harangue.
 Some of the newspapers are using it against Mrs. Jenks that a few years ago she undertook to prosecute a claim in Washington and represented that she was not married. The Philadelphia Times thinks there is very little to induce a belief that she is; it is the unfortunate Mr. Jenks who seems to be married.
 In a list of British places, pensions and sinecures, in 1819, appear the names of Edward Shippen Arnold, James Robertson Arnold, Geo. Arnold, and Sophia Matilda Arnold—the first three for £400 a year, the last for £100. They are pensions given by royal sign manual and a note is appended: "N. B.—These are the children of the notorious American General Arnold."
 The latest mail advices from San Francisco indicate that the Kearneyites or Communists will have overwhelming control of the Constitutional Convention. They have chosen something like two-thirds of the members, about a hundred in number, leaving the Non-Partisans or Corporationists thirty-nine, the Republicans seven and the Democrats four. The majority, or rather plurality, of the Kearneyites in the State is over two thousand.
 In New York, last Wednesday, 360,000 acres of land in McDowell county, W. V., represented as heavily timbered white oak and mineral lands, was sold at public auction. The lands were sold in lots of 1,000 acres or more to suit purchasers. One half of the tract was knocked down to G. P. Bonner & Co., at half a cent per acre. The balance was sold mostly to Germans in lots of from 1,000 to 10,000 acres at from one-half a cent to a cent and a-half per acre. The average price realized for the entire tract was 1/2 cent per acre.
 San Francisco has a police justice who deals out the terrors of the law mainly with a view to filling the municipal treasury, and there is hardly any offence on which he is empowered to administer judgment but may be atoned for by a cash payment. He is a profitable judicial officer, pecuniarily, though he may be a loss otherwise. The fines imposed by him on an average a day foot up over two thousand dollars. Among the ten laws were: For disturbing the peace, $250 or 125 days prison; for malicious mischief, $250 or 125 days; for indulging in profane language, $300 or 150 days; for battery, $300 or 150 days; for misdemeanor, $150 or 75 days; for a "drunk," $150 or 60 days.

THE MEXICAN TROUBLES.
 General Ord, in a recent interview with the Chicago Times, gives a lively view of the difficulties and perils of the situation. He says the Mexican national forces professedly employed to watch these Indians are simply vagabonds captured by the police at a bull fight or any casual collection of the populace and carried into camp bound with ropes. The authorities dare not bring regular troops so near the frontier, because, being unpaid and poorly fed, they would desert.
 Gen. Ord says plainly that the Mexican troops are not used to prevent raiding to the Texas side. When a pillaging expedition is contemplated the fact is nearly always well advertised weeks beforehand. The Indians cross over to the American side in open broad daylight; they recross in an equally open manner, and retire leisurely with their plunder into the mountain fastnesses. Recently a band of raiders constructed two rafts on which to transport their plunder across the river. The work was performed in open day, and under the very noses of the Mexican authorities. This sort of thing is of frequent occurrence. The General declares that the Mexican forces stand between the raiders and the American troops, and really obstruct the pursuit of the thieves. He did not say, in so many words, that the so-called protectors were as bad as the pillagers, but it was impossible to look the General in the eye and not understand that he meant something of the kind.
 Gen. Ord said it was a mortifying spectacle to the Americans living on the border to be compelled to witness such dastardly violations of the neutrality laws. The Texan authorities have all they can do to restrain the people from taking the matter into their own hands. The population of that State is swelling up toward a million, and the country adjacent to the border is too rich in pastoral and other resources to be abandoned, and all because it is perpetually overrun by hordes of plunderers from the opposite side of the river. The tier of counties lying next the river, in Texas, are particularly unsafe for habitation, owing to these depredatory incursions. The general said, with a spark of fire in his speech, that these outrages could not be borne always, and that if the general government refused to act, the people of Texas would march over into Mexico one of these fine mornings and stir up the natives of that heathenish republic in a manner that would make old Montezuma turn over in his stone sepulchre. If this should come to pass the drubbing which the "Greasers" would get would be a good deal severer than what they might expect to receive in a scientific warfare. He said no other great government but this on the face of the earth would have borne with such dastardly insults and outrages without giving the perpetrators a tremendous thrashing.
 The conversation turned on the adequacy of the present force in the department of Texas for the protection of settlers on the border. General Ord said that the available troops in his command did not number to exceed eighteen hundred or two thousand. A condition of turbulence and hostility exists along the Rio Grande for a distance of fourteen hundred miles. This extent of border cannot be guarded effectively by two thousand troops. If they were deployed out over the whole distance the sentinels would be nearly a mile apart. The General told the reporter that murders were committed almost daily at all the exposed points. Recently the raiders killed thirteen herders in one neighborhood. He had letters from ranchmen giving particulars of the most atrocious crimes upon the white settlers on the American side. He did not expect any immediate improvement in the condition of affairs down there during the present summer. Corn was now selling on the Mexican side at six dollars per bushel. The people back in the interior had suffered much from famine, and they were without money. Not being possessed with the wherewithal for buying corn, it was to be expected that they would not discourage raiding, especially as it offered about the only means of livelihood open to them.
POOR JOHN SHERMAN!
 Wyoming Valley in Pennsylvania was once the scene of a terrible massacre of white settlers by the savages. The people of that interesting and lively section commemorated that tragic event on the 4th inst. by a public celebration at which President Hayes, Secretary Sherman, Governor Hartranft and other notables were present. Of course, there was the usual amount of speech-making and, among others, Secretary John Sherman was called upon. But the Secretary found it as difficult to make a speech to the good people of Wyoming Valley in Pennsylvania as he did to determine whether he wrote that letter to Anderson and Weber, which was an important question before the Potter Investigating Committee. For a few moments after commencing his speech, everything went on smoothly, but he was soon interrupted by facetious calls for "Mrs Jenks," "Mrs. Jenks," "Fetch her out," "How's the old girl now?" etc., much to the delight of the unterrified and to the confusion of the Secretary. Surely, there is but one John Sherman, and the syndicate (not "The Jenks") is his prof.

WASHINGTON LETTER.
 WASHINGTON, D. C., July 6th, 1878.
 Your correspondent did not overestimate the importance of the testimony of L. G. Dennis of Florida, or of E. L. Weber, of Louisiana. It is impossible to do so. These men were trusted radical politicians, and are not impeached. They testify to specific acts of fraud sufficient to have changed the result of the Presidential election, and name witnesses to corroborate them. Weber also says that he held the famous Sherman letter and it was in Sherman's handwriting. He names other witnesses who have the same knowledge of its contents and authorship. So important is this testimony considered that Mr. Sherman will send his lawyers to New Orleans to cross-examine Weber and the other witnesses. Secretary Schurz has commenced the practical work of reform in his office by dismissing the Appointment Clerk of the Department. Large numbers of removals are anticipated. The Secretary will, I believe, now do what ought to be done in every Department—reorganize the various Bureaus and drop men who are known to be inefficient or unnecessary. He will find many of them. It is a great step towards this that he dismisses Zach Chandler's appointment clerk, a man who knew no worth or fitness for office unless it came in the form of rabid Radicalism, and to unfitness it came in that form.
 Senator Withers, in a recent interview, adopts the suggestion of another eminent Virginian that Senator Thurman's brilliant record at the last session of Congress put him in the lead as a Democratic candidate for the Presidency. Thurman is himself a native of Virginia, though he has resided in Ohio since 1819. He is 65 years of age, was in the 29th Congress, has been Chief Justice and Governor of Ohio, and is now in his second term of six years in the Senate. He is eminently sound as a lawyer, popular with all, and, unlike many men of real ability, is not ashamed to learn something even at three score years and five. Your correspondent has no candidate for the Presidency, but will be happy if the nomination falls upon a man not less safe than Senator Thurman.
 Among Republicans here hardly any one but Grant is spoken of for the same office. Friends of Conkling, Sherman, Blaine, Washburn and the rest unite in his praise.
 We are again having rumors of trouble with Mexico. But the Secretary of State declares himself for peace, and the Secretary of War is off on a pleasure trip, and we may therefore conclude that the danger is not imminent. What the United States should do is to assist Mexico in every possible way in maintaining peace on the border and tranquillity in the interior. There is no credit to be gained by bullying.
 The past ten days has been extremely hot here. Congress did well to close up its excited session just when it did, for legislation on any of the nights of last week would have been an impossibility.
 Though differing never so widely on nearly every question of public policy to suit the rival interests of different localities, there is unanimity among Radical organs in the bitter warfare waged on Speaker Randall, which has attracted the attention of intelligent observers everywhere, and of every shade of politics. The avidity with which they have seized upon, misrepresented, twisted and perverted the words of his late speech in response to the royal reception tendered him in Philadelphia, from the great "Metropolitan dailies" of our large cities to the cross-road weekly with a subscription list of nearly 200, pretty accurately indicates the feeling of consternation with which they have noted his resistless strides towards the supreme leadership of the opposition within the past two years. And their frantic efforts to forestall the action of the next national nominating Convention of Democracy as far as to compass his defeat before it, is one of the most conclusive arguments in favor of his nomination.
GURDGE.
 Cheap beer has triumphed in Cincinnati. The brewers have withdrawn their opposition to glasses for three cents and "schooners" for five.
 The government has $8,000,000 in silver dollars on hand, and will have $12,000,000 more before January 1. What is to be done with them is the question. They are not wanted in circulation, not even in the South, where the colored population were relied upon to absorb millions of them. The first silver wherewith to make the first dollars was paid for in gold; future purchases were paid for in silver dollars, which were then turned over to brokers, who paid them in at the custom houses for duties. Thus the circulation never got far from the United States treasury, nor have the silver certificates found any wider range of monetary utility. Secretary Sherman announces that all silver bullion will hereafter be paid for in standard silver dollars.
 An Important Function Stimulated: The kidneys exercise most important functions, which are so wearisome that they tax to the utmost the strength and endurance of these busy little organs. Everyman's every pulsation of the heart, every movement of a limb, every thought, make waste and necessitate the development of new atoms. The used up particles in the blood are sifted from it and dissolved in the watery fluid by the kidneys, which then discharge this fluid into the bladder. A train of disasters to the system would follow if these "ashes," so to speak, were not thoroughly strained off and discharged. This is the case when the kidneys become inactive. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, by restoring their activity, not only keeps open a most important outlet for impurities, but prevents diseases of the kidneys themselves which when inert become liable to fall a prey to diabetes, Bright's disease, nephritis, albumuria and other maladies specially incident to them, which, although not specially rapid in their progression, are particularly obstinate and fatal.
