The excursion down the river and out to sea yesterday was year much enjoyed by our up country visitors. Some of them paid their respects to Old Neptupe.

Just as the Revenue Cutter Crawford was leaving Charleston a swam of bees took charge of one of the small boats and all efforts to route them were fruitless. They were barreled up a few days ago and sent ashore at Smithville.

Look Out for Them.

The Raleigh Observer cautions the people of this city to keep a sharp lookout for two well-dressed young men, one wearing a beaver and the other a felt hat, and calling themselves respectively Applewhite and Geda, who have been in Raleigh trying to get up a business directory, and who left forgetting to pay their board bills. The Observer says that they are either in Norfolk, Petersburg, Richmond or Wilmington.

Greenbackers.

According to previous agreement the Greenbackers held a meeting last evening in the Court House. After the disposal of regular business speeches were announced in order: Messrs J. M. King, S. Sallings, H. E. Foster, Duncan Holmes, (col), Chas Robinson, (col), and R. S. Waller, addressed the audience. Our informant states there were about seventy-five whites and between two and three hundred colored men present. A'meeting of the Green-backers will be held in the Fifth Ward on Friday evening and in the First Ward on Tuesday evening for the purpose of organizing Ward Clubs.

Runaway. Yesterday afternoon, what might been a terrible catastrophe was prevented by the presence of mind of a lady. Mr. H McL. Green was out driving, accompanied by a lady friend, when he noticed some part of the harness was unfastened. In jumping from the buggy, his feet became entangled in the reins, which started the St. John's Church, and a beloved teacher The remains are to arrive here tomorow, via Goldsboro, and the funeral services will take place from her father' residence, Saturday morning at 10 o'clock.

Appletons' Journal.

The policy of Appletons' Journal ha recently been to give a rapid succession of stirring novelettes instead of long serials, and every number now begins or gives complete, a strong, fresh story such as may be called a novel in miniature. The number for September concludes "A Bit of Nature," by Albert Rhodes, and gives the first half of a story entitled "A Leap-Year Romance," which is described as

"true tale of Western life," and which certainly breaks new ground in fiction Another story, which is given complete, called "A Strange Experience," touches upon the recent development of magnetism and spiritualism, and depicts accurately and effectively certain phases modern life which puzzle philosophers and open to us all a world of speculation It is a strong, well-written story. Both "A Leap-Year Romance" and "A Strange Experience," while touching upon the latest themes and the most pronounced ideas of the period, are written in a con servative, impartial, and judicial spirit, and are thoroughly good stories. The illustrated articles in the number are a paper on the New York Post-Office, handsomely set forth by numerous pictures, and an article describing in a lively manner life in Paraguay.

The Theatrical Outlook.

Mr. Jno. T. Ford, the well-known theatrical manager of Baltimore, who has done much to give the Southern people an opportunity of seeing the bright stars of the American stage, announces his in tention to come South during the winter with the finest array of talent he has ever presented. The Baltimore Gazette which contains Mr. Fords announcement, says "The stars that the Ford's have presented in the past to the South were Janauschek, Cushman, Jefferson, Owens, Lydia Thompson, Mrs. Oates, Edwin Booth, John McCullough, Mary Anderson and others. This season, under the same resolution, which was also unanimously carried:

> Resolved. In the event that the Mayor finds it necessary to do so, he be, and is hereby empowered to appoint two additional detectives to examine railroad trains and stop any persons coming from any > points known to be infected with yellow fever, and to act under such instruct tions as he may think proper for the protection of the city against the said disease.

On motion the Board adjourned.

Chess Playing, "Telle est Vie." MR. EDITOR;

As you have had experience both as a "Grass Widower" and "Chess Player" 1 think you can appreciate the following passing thought: Look at these chess players; with what an air of confidence they commence the game, each (in his own opinion) sure to win. Presently one loses his Queen. The air of hope vanishes from his brow and despair of success takes its place until by over confidence his antagonist loses his Queen. Then the struggle waxes warm again, but the pristine interest is wanting until it is discovered that one of the players has a chance of winning a new Queen. Then the race is renewed in earnest. The Queen is restored to her throne and how boldly she comes forth to the support of her King ! A few more moves and victory wreaths the brow of the supported King while the other vainly seeks his Castle and is speedily checkmated.

Moral-Defend your Queen in all extremities.
