VIEWES AND REVIEWS.

London has been gradually making all her bridges free. Last month Waterloo Bridge was put on the free list.

The celebrated English racing stallion Saunterer died on the 13th ult., aged 24. Famous racing stallions are often very long lived.

After repeated failures by one court after another to secure the condemnation of the Socialist Hasselmann, in Germany he has been set at liberty.

Inviting President MacMahon to retire on the score that "every one has had, enough of him," has cost the Pays $400, and the imprisonment of two of those connected with it.

The fourth century of the birth of Giorgione, one of the founders of the Venetian school of painting, has been recently celebrated at Castelfranco, and a statue of him was unveiled on Sept. 26.

There are 200,000 Armenians in Constantinople. They have more than forty schools, of which the "Nubarian," founded by Nubar Pasha, now once more Premier of Egypt, a very able man, is chief.

A Providence swindler coolly sold a house to which he had no claim, and received $2,700 for the forged title. The owner first learned of the sale when the supposed purchaser ordered him to move out.

The last wire of the last cable of the East River bridge at New York was run over Saturday week, and the completion of this part of the work was greeted with flinging out of flags, and loud cheers by the workmen on the anchorages.

It is a fact not generally known that the paper on which the official catalogue of the Paris Exposition is printed was manufactured in a Connecticut paper-mill. The makers were awarded a bronze medal. The American paper manufacturers are making an earnest effort to create a foreign market for their products.

The Aldermen of Providence voted against permitting Mrs. Rentz's female minstrels to perform in that city, basing their action on the posters; but the manager solemnly declared that the posters misrepresented the character of the show, whereupon the Aldermen reconsidered their decision.

A city ordinance of San Francisco makes it a misdemeanor to sleep in a room containing less than 500 cubic feet of air to each person. It is enforced against Chinese only. Last month many were arrested for violating it, and 91 were squeezed into cells that gave them 23 feet of air to each man. What a notion this must give a heathen of the justice of Christians.

The Russianized Cimbria has sailed for home, leaving 260 Russian sailors quartered on the California and Columbia. According to a Russian officer, who was interviewed by a Philadelphia Times reporter, the majority of the sailors were farmers in Russia before being shipped on the Cimbria. More than half of them make their own shoes. "One time," said the officer, "you will see a man here making shoes. The next you will see of him he will be on top of the mast." The czar has the best navy of shoemakers in the world.

Deadwood now has a population of about 4,000, and is the commercial centre of the Black Hills region. It has rude theatres, dance houses, gambling halls, and uncounted barrooms; yet a recent visitor says there is far less ruffianism than might fairly be expected in a new mining place. There are banks, churches, a school house, a newspaper, and good hotels. Many lawyers get a good income out of the extensive litigation over the title to mines. Deadwood is in an irregular gulch, already outgrown its space, and begins to climb the precipitous sides of the hills by which it is enclosed. White cottages, approached by winding paths and steps, stand hundreds of feet above the level of the town. Under Deadwood proper there is another city—the city of the miners. Openings to the tunnels and shafts are seen at various places throughout the upper town. In the tunnels and shafts the placer miner digs out the yellow earth, and sluices it for the crumbs of gold that, during the long ages, have been slowly escaping from the quartz lodes in the hills. But capitalists have taken hold of the mining business of the Black Hills, and many quartz mills of the best class are running. The truth about the yield of gold is hard to find out, because the owners of rich mines seek to depreciate values, and the owners of worthless mines have a contrary intention.

BE WARNED IN TIME.

The Review has been constant, in season and out of season, in warning the Democrats of this District against the specious wiles of the Greenbackers in seeking to divide the vote of the party in the District. We have told them repeatedly, and we again tell them, that the votes of a Greenback candidate must all come from the ranks of the Democratic party; that there is no chance under Heaven for the election of a Greenbacker to Congress and that the only possible result in their power will be the defeat of Col. Waddell and the election of a Republican from this District.

Are our Greenback friends prepared for such a result as this? Do they calculate well the cost of their undertaking? For the sake of expressing their own particular convictions at the ballot box are they willing to run so palpable a risk as is before them of losing all? These questions are important and must be considered. We do not believe that there is one old-time Democrat in the ranks of the Greenbackers who has yet seriously determined to cut himself loose from the old organization or that there is one to whom the defeat of that party by the Republicans will not bring a bitter pang; and yet, lured on by the specious promises of a baseless hope of success in their own ranks they are risking more than they can afford to risk in this contest.

CRIME IN THE NORTH.

Simultaneously with the announcement from Washington City by the Attorney-General that the bloody shirt is to be raised again by the Republican party, coupled with instructions from this impostor of the fraudulent Cabinet to the United States Marshals in North and South Carolina—comes the intelligence of the murder of four negroes from a section where the people, like the sovereigns of Great Britain, can do no wrong in the eyes of the law as construed at Washington City. "Tears in virtuous Indiana this time, at a place called Mount Vernon, that the lynching was done.

The crime alleged against the victims of the mob's malice was, that they had violated the persons of three white women of ill repute, living in the suburbs of this Indiana town; and further, that an officer, in trying to arrest them, had been killed; consequently a mob felt justified in organizing themselves into a vigilance committee who took the law into their own hands and adjudicated the majesty of the same by hanging the four criminals without trial by judge or jury, and without a chance to say one word in defence. The discipline which the mob observed till it got command of the town, the grim method with which the vigilants masked themselves in the woods, the march to the jail, the coherent praying and howling of the terrified criminals in their cell while their executioners were beating in the doors, the knocking in the head of one wounded negro, the hanging of the others in front of the court-house, where the bodies were left swinging from the trees all day long and until the funeral of the murdered sheriff had been performed—all these scenes made up a drama of violence, tragedy and lawlessness that belong to another age and country, where civilization and christianity are neither practised nor preached and where neither ever existed. But had such acts of violence been committed in the "rebellious" South what a howl of virtuous indignation in behalf of outraged justice would go up from sainted Massachusetts, the home of the Beast, the State that was the first in these United States to trade and barter in human flesh and to establish slavery in this country!

We are very far from condoning the crime that is alleged to have been committed by the victims of this Yankee mob. We think that the full extent of the law should be meted out to all such villains. But we would suggest to the fraudulent President that his sympathetic words for the poor negro in the South when he first heard of his defeat, (before it had been determined to count him in by eight to seven) might very well be applied to his own section, and in his own neighborhood—almost at his own home.

The exquisite Conf'ing, too, before he retires into the shades of private life might very well "point a moral and adorn a tale" in the second greatest effort of his life by drawing public attention to the great amount of lawlessness and crime that exists in his own State; to the number of murders that are being committed; to the high life, the loose state of morals in fashionable society, the utter disregard for marriage vows, and the very low ebb to which virtue of every kind has fallen in his own section. Husbands, in the first circles of society, murder their wives, and wives murder their husbands to form a gaily alliance with their seducers; clergymen are arraigned for seducing and murdering young girls; people in high life are betraying the trust of their friends; bank presidents and cashiers by the scores are betraying and robbing their friends, and insurance Presidents of the very highest standing are convicted of perjury. Call it pharisaical if you will, but verily we had rather be a Southerner and live in a Southern land, and surrounded by our poor, but honest people, than live in the atmosphere of the Cookings or the Hathaways, or the Billings, with all their wealth, associated as it is, with personal and political dishonor.

Dean Stanley, while staying in Baltimore as the guest of the Trustees of John Hopkins University, called at the residence of Mme. Bonaparte and expressed a great deal of interest in examining the collection of objects associated with the Bonaparte family.

On the suppression of the Commune in Paris, 500 boys were among the prisoners taken, and it was proven that large numbers of the murders and incendiaries were committed by them. They were sent to a reformatory at Rouen, and on being carefully inspected by two eminent physicians, it was found that 327 were of very delicate form and stunted growth. They were, however, among the most mischievous and all the children of drunken mothers.

The Russian papers have lately contained reports about a band of robbers which has appeared in the district of Paulovsk, in Southern Russia, and has spread terror through all the neighboring region. It is said to be over 200 strong. The Captain is reported to be a peasant woman of singular beauty, who was previously connected with a gang of forgers of rouble-notes. The Russian Government is so desirous of procuring the arrest of this female chief that it has set a price of $11,250 upon her head.

BOILED DOWN.

Theodore Thomas is now on the sweet fiddle of Ohio.

A St. Louis clerk is crossed with the name Gasbill, and everybody disputes him.

Jogersoll has not so far in his present lecture tour drawn more than houses one-third full.

Dr. George Nares, of Arctic celebrity, has been commissioned on a voyage of scientific exploration in the South Pacific.

The German Emperor will celebrate his golden wedding in Berlin and Potsdam next June, "nothing happens" to prevent.

Chief Justice Daly, of New York, has been made an honor member of the Imperial Russian Geographical Society at St. Petersburg.

George T. Downing, who formerly kept the House rector at Washington in a popular eating and drinking saloon in New York.

A German town through which the Emperor and Empress were to pass was placarded with the announcement that the Emperor was to be assassinated.

Four hundred women entered the University of London this fall. In his new book, the Duc de Broglie will disclose some state secrets concerning the foreign policy of Louis XV.

MOONSHINE.

It is said that Prussian young ladies rise moonshades. Probably to hide the mouths which are hidden under them.

Psychologists say that the emotion of fear was unknown until man was married and had a mother-in-law.

A woman was sitting at the breakfast table the other morning, when an almost breathless neighbor came in and informed her that her husband was dead. She calmly remarked: "Wait until I get through breakfast and then you'll hear howling."

It was utterly impossible for the ancient Greeks to swear in their language, as we understand the custom in the present. This is all the more singular, as mules were one of the most common quadrupeds known to them.

The practice of association of ideas is one of the best means possible for strengthening the memory. Thus by a simple effort of recollection one can recall the appearance of water by remembering it looks like gin, and vice versa.

It is proof of a clear conscience and an honest man to bear the head up and look the world bravely in the face. Too great persistence in this respect, however, is apt to be inconvenient in wandering around the back yard in the dark when the clothes lines are strung up taut.

An honest ignoramus, who had escaped a great peril by an act of heroism, was much complimented for his bravery. One lady said: "I wish I could have seen your feat." Whereupon he stammered, and finally pointing to his pedestal exclaimed, said, "Well, there they be mum."

Ink can be preserved from mould by putting a clove in the bottle. When Mrs. Spriggins, wife of Spriggins, of the morning Awakener, read the above she cried excitedly, "There! Now I know what Mr. S. always carries in his vest pocket for! And the good old unsuspecting soul looked as pleased as if she had just heard of a new way of putting up blackberries.

Charlotte Observer. Death of a North Carolina Physician in Vicksburg.

A special dispatch from Vicksburg announces the death in that city, on the 12th, of Dr. Christopher Hapoldt, who went there about a month ago from Morganton, a volunteer physician to the yellow fever patients. The readers of the Observer will remember that he tendered his services to the Howard Association of New Orleans through Gov. Vance, and they were promptly accepted. Two weeks ago the Morganton Blade publishes several letters from him, detailing the difficulties he had encountered in reaching that point, having first gone to New Orleans and afterwards being sent to Vicksburg where there was a greater demand for his services. The last letter closed with the statement that he had been attacked by the fever.

Dr. Hapoldt was about fifty years of age and we believe was a native of Charleston. He studied medicine under some of the most distinguished physicians in Europe and in early manhood went to Morganton and located, where he subsequently married into one of the old families of Burke county, and has since resided there. He enjoyed a large practice before and during the war, but owing to dissipated habits, had lost much of his prestige, and for the last several years has led a comparatively obscure life. His name is added to the roll of the noble army of men and women who have taken their lives in their hands and entered the very jaws of death, prompted only by feelings of humanity and sympathy for their suffering fellow beings.

"Gott mit uns."

The policy of the HAMBURG-BREMEN INSURANCE COMPANY contains a clause (the 8th) which we have not seen or heard of in that of any other Company. It reads to this effect: "All losses shall be paid without unnecessary delay, and without deduction or discount." You can't find anything said about 60 or 90 days in the whole policy. And that said clause is no dead letter is proved by the fact that we have paid IN FULL all the Company's losses in North Carolina, (seven) during the last four years, within from one to twenty days after they occurred.
