Hurrah for Waddell and victory! Must be the war cry to-morrow.

Democrats, do your duty to-morrow, and fling the Radical ex-Judge high.

The result of to-morrow's election may decide the presidential contest in 1881.

Only one trifling case before the City Court this morning, which was dismissed.

Let every Democrat vote without fail to-morrow and then see that his neighbor does the same.

Once more to the breach, dear friends, once more! No lagging and no flagging can be indulged in.

Columbus county will make a good record for Waddell, Democracy and good government to-morrow.

Trade dollars, worth intrinsically more than standard silver dollars, are not taken at postoffices or custom houses, because they are not a legal tender.

The remains of the Hon. Hugh Waddell were escorted from St. James' church yesterday afternoon, where the funeral services were held, to Oakdale Cemetery by a large concourse of citizens.

Col. H. B. Short, [of Columbus, Major John W. Dunham, of this city, and D. S. Cowan, Esq., of Columbus, made ringing speeches for Waddell, Democracy and good government, at Whiteville, Columbus county, on Saturday last.

The Produce Exchange will close its doors to-morrow and there will be no transactions of any kind, we are informed, in the way of trading. This suspension is general in all the voting States, consequently there will be no market telegrams.

Notwithstanding the fire yesterday afternoon, we get out our regular edition of the Review to-day. The condition in which we found our office this morning is our apology, however, for numerous matters of importance curtailed and some altogether left out.

True Blue. Messrs. W. B. and R. H. McKoy, who are students of Judge Strong's law school, at Raleigh, arrived in this city this morning for the express purpose of voting for Hon. A. M. Waddell to-morrow.

A Hint. We would just like to drop a hint to our colored voters that there is a project on foot among Northern Republicans to take the right of suffrage from the colored race. Prominent Democrats have been approached by Republican leaders with this object in view, but the proposition has been indignantly scorned by the Democrats. The colored vote was sacred to Republicans just as long as by its means the party was kept in power.

Cold Water Bath. Dan L. Russell, the Republican and Gassional candidate for Congress, met with a cold reception at Clinton. As soon as he got on the stand an organ-grinder lumped out "Good bye Charlie" the monkey commenced to dance, which caught the eyes of the colored voters, and a Democrat wanted to know "if yere got a bench warrant, Judge." The "Judge" gave up his appointment as a bad job and found that Sampson county was "true blue" and not infected with Radical side dishes, alias Greenbackers.

THERE IS NO REASON why house-keepers should fail in their efforts to have deliciously light, wholesome bread, biscuits, rolls, cake and all articles prepared from flour. To have perfectly satisfactory results every time in all your baking, always use a strictly pure baking powder—such as Dooley's Yeast Powder. This powder costs only about the price of the adulterated kinds, and in buying if you get full net weight, 16 ounces to the pound. It is never sold in bulk or loose.

The Fire Yesterday.

About 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon dense volumes of smoke were seen issuing from the REVIEW and JOURNAL building, corner of North Water and Chestnut streets. The first floor was occupied by Messrs. J. W. Alderman & Co., and when the doors of this store were forced it was found that the fire was raging there. Buckets were first used by a number of citizens attracted to the spot and the fire department was promptly on hand and soon the flames were entirely suppressed. The fire caught in Messrs. Alderman & Co.'s store and from matches which the rats found. These matches were kept carefully covered, but the rats seem to have gnawed through the keg in which they were kept.

Messrs. Alderman & Co. were the chief sufferers. Their stock of groceries was worth about $1,500 and on this they had a policy of insurance with Messrs. Atkinson & Manning for $1,000. They had also an open policy for $500 on country produce received on consignment but this does not apply to the stock of goods on hand. The fire penetrated to the REVIEW and JOURNAL office, above the store, but fortunately our loss was light and was covered by insurance. Mr. J. H. Strauss, proprietor of the grocery store adjoining Messrs. Alderman & Co.'s, was damaged by water to the extent of about $200 and Mr. W. P. Oldham, stock of grain &c., was slightly damaged by water. The building, which is the property of Mr. Julius Samson, was injured considerably, say to extent of $500. Insured with Messrs. Jno. W. Gordan & Bro.

We have never seen a fire better handled, and to Col. Roger Moore, Chief Engineer, and his effectively organized fire department are the citizens indebted for a serious conflagration happily arrested.

Administration of the Oath to Registrars and Poll Holders.

The following named Justices of the Peace will in accordance with section 9, chapter 275, of the laws of North Carolina, to regulate elections, passed 1876-'7, administer the oath to-morrow morning to the Registrars and Poll Holders of the different Wards in this city as named below:

First Ward, Upper Division, Justice Jno. M. Henderson.

First Ward, Lower Division, Justice Henry Schulken.

Second Ward, Justice Solomon Bear.

Third Ward, Justice Jas. W. King.

Fourth Ward, Justice John Cowan.

Fifth Ward, Justice O. G. Parsley, Jr. The polls open at 7 A. M. and close at sundown.

The Disfranchised.

The attention of the poll-holders and challengers of the different wards in the city is respectfully invited to the following list of persons convicted of infamous crimes in the Criminal Court of New Hanover county, since the August election, and disfranchised according to law:

Jeremiah Johnson, larceny; Recco Jackson, obliterating records; Arthur Timmons, false pretense; Joseph Chance, Fred Sanders, Thomas Williams, Edmund Foy, larceny; Benjamin Person, Ward Fergus, false pretense; Robert Nash, Donas Rogers, larceny; LeGrand Barber, forgery; Wm. Jones, alias Pompey Sneed, Thomas Hawkins, alias Monroe Hawkins, John Hicks Sheet, Handy Jones, Charles King, larceny; James Walker, false pretense; Ben Brown, perjury.

The Programme for To-Night.

The Waddell Club of young men will meet at Hibernian Hall to-night at 8 o'clock, when together with the Committee of Arrangements, preceded by the Cornet Concert Club, they will march to the Purcell House for the purpose of receiving and escorting the Hon. A. S. Merrimon to the City Hall, where the distinguished Senator will address the Democratic party of this city in response to a special invitation extended him by the Democratic Executive Committee and many other leading citizens of this place, upon the political issues of the day.

To obviate the well known difficulty of hearing that all who have ever attended a public speaking in the City Hall have experienced, a platform or stage has been erected in the centre of the Hall, so that everyone within the sound of Senator Merrimon's voice to-night will be able to understand him. The Committee of Arrangements are to be congratulated upon their efforts in this direction.

D. L. Russell's political garden will raise the biggest beet of the season, and it will be on exhibition after to-morrow night, for a few days only.

The "Gates of Hell."

The Rev. DeWitt Talmage, of the Brooklyn Tabernacle, a sensational preacher of the Beecher order, without Beecher's sins so far as is yet discovered, made a visit some weeks ago to the haunts of vice and to the guilded "Gates of Hell" in New York city, under the escort of one or two friends and an officer or two of the police force, who possessed the "Open Sesame" to gambling hells and variety theatres. At the first named places the reverend man of God—so-called—says he saw young men ensnared and being drawn into the whirlpool of everlasting ruin by the fascination of cards. At the latter named places where scantily attired women kept time with their bodies and feet to the music of the orchestra, he saw men of all ages and conditions in life, from the bald-headed and gray-haired old judge and banker, down to the gay young swells and clerks. The sights and wonders which the Rev. Talmage witnessed on these occasions he now retails to his congregation, Sunday after Sunday, for the advancement of their moral condition.

The only noticeable effect, however, which these highly colored and artfully embellished narratives has thus far produced, is to increase very materially the number of his hearers, and this increase, so the northern papers inform us, is confined principally to young men and maidens, more particularly the latter.

Without any such object in view as the Reverend Talmage had, and without even borrowing the idea in regard to this matter, which we had originally thought of last summer, a reporter of the REVIEW, together with some of the high officials of the city as an escort proceeded on Saturday night last about ten o'clock to make a tour of observation in the classic precincts of the notorious locality known as Paddy's Hollow.

Commencing with a place on the suburbs of the refined locality mentioned above we first entered Madame Finck's, a highly colored lady of African descent, who keeps a house of accommodation for the jolly sons of Neptune, who after a long cruise by sea soon after getting in port try a land tack for awhile. Liquors and lager beer kept especially for seamen and the crowd that follow in their wake are kept in the front room of Madame Finck's establishment, while the rear hall, if we may dignify it by that name, is devoted to dancing. Here you can find men and women without regard to race, color or previous condition of servitude whirling around and around to the fascinating(?) music of the waltz. But the aroma d'Afrique was too strong for the sensitive organ which we inhale with and the party was compelled to beat a hasty retreat to the street.

The next place visited was Mrs. Williamson's seamen's boarding house, and the scene that met our enquiring vision here was similar to the one above described. At Delafate Towers', in the centre of the Hollow, the crowd was densest and blackest, with only a sprinkling here and there of white faces. Towers is a tall, sinewy fellow, with a complexion the color of his antecedent Ham—a moustache he wears with an imperial which gives him the appearance in expression of an African Mephistopheles. The police have a good word to say of Towers, who, they say, will help them quell a disturbance if it occurs in his house, and furnish the rope to tie the obstreperous party with too, if necessary.

The next place we looked into was Strodes', at the corner of Nutt and Mulberry streets; here we witnessed similar scenes with the exception that the parties in this place were all black and in their native element of dancing. Men and women here danced and kicked up their heels with as much delight as some of their progenitors would have cracked a chestnut.

At Bryson's, in the old Farmer's House building, we found things a little more genteel in appearance and the class of women participating in the dance seemed to be of the upper ten of their caste. The proprietor of this place was profuse in his offers to treat our party, but he found it too much of a cold water crowd to indulge, and so he desisted in his invitations.

Dicksey's, or Berton's, was the last place we entered. Here things are conducted in imitation of the Louvre in New York, but it's only an imitation, as can be well imagined by any one who has ever been there, and a very faint imitation at that.

From the character of the people who visit these places our readers can readily understand why the proceedings of the city court are so often taken up with trying cases of violations of the peace that occur in Paddy's Hollow. Some of the places mentioned above are the lowest of the low and the crowds that gather there, the vilest of the vile, and when the poison, called liquor, that they imbibe in these dens permeates their system and gets control of their brain, the degraded wretch is ready for anything, be it theft or robbery, rapine, burglary or murder. We think it a good place for a missionary, Moody & Sankey would here find a fine field to operate in but we doubt if it would be altogether as remunerative in a pecuniary sense as those they have visited in New York and Philadelphia, consequently we are afraid they won't come.

That Terrible Bear.

A week or two ago there was a wild report in circulation that a performing bear in a fit of rage, at Weldon, in this State, grappled with his owner, who was an Italian, and literally hugged him to death; and even some of the New York illustrated newspapers came out with wood cuts representing the struggle. That bear and the Italian were in this city during the early part of last week, and on Saturday we published an account of a rumor that the bear had been seen near Hilton and that by following his tracks, they saw the master resting, and the bear gnawing some dry bones &c. By a friend who has just returned from Columbus county we are informed that Mr. Italian and Mr. Bruin were at Whiteville on Saturday last and that the couple seemed to be on the most amiable terms with each other, to the delight of the colored people and young people of that town.

A Radical shroud with Greenback trimmings is just the thing for obituary's political funeral. The obsequies will be celebrated with mournful tenderness on Tuesday night.
