OPERA HOUSE.

The Phoenix.

We were glad to see the very large and attentive audience at the Opera House last night to greet Milton Nobles and his excellent Company in that thrilling modern sensational drama "The Phoenix." This play, written by Mr. Nobles, and now in its fifth season, had been presented to the We invite attention to the very attrac- Wilmington public on a previous occasior, t ve advertisement of Capt. It is one of those peculiarly pleasi. g portrayals where the humorous and patheric, comic and thrilling situations are so closely intermingled as to bring into pleasant exercise the various sensations of itself is good reading matter and will give enjoyment without fatiguing any particular emotion with a too close attention. We were glad to see that the audience gave all the evidence of pleasure, which so meritorious performance richly merited.

Mr. Nobles, in the two phases of the leading character, Carroll Graces and Jim Bludso, "The Thornix," seemed scarcely a creation, but real in individual identity with those episodes of his life, of which the performance treats naturally, appearing before the audience. The scenes were life-like and vivid, and were perfectly enacted.

Mr. Schwartz as Moses Solomons, the jolly, rollicking, fun-loving Jew. was simply inevitable. This one impersonation deserves to make his fortune. The audience were perfectly convulsed whenever he appeared. It is one of the most successful representations we have ever seen, and this one character alone would be attractive enough in itself if all else were wanting
