Iliness of Dr. Ennett.

We regret to learn that intelligence has been received here of the severe illness again, of Dr. W. T. Ennett, of Pender, who was thought by his attending physician and friends a few days ago to be in a fair way of recovery. We can only hope that our worst fears may not be realized and that this worthy gentleman may yet be spared to his family and State, for there are few within our knowledge who have served their families with equal devotion and there are none, we venture the assertion, who were more zealous in their country's cause, during the war, than this gallant gentleman who surrendered at Appomattax as Major of the Third N. C. Infantry, Commanding Cox's brigade.

Such men and such citizens can afford to be spared now, and we earnestly trust that our friend may live to enjoy some of the blessings of honest government, for which he has striven so hard and made so many sacrifices to bring about.

The Charle ton News & Courser has this to say of the performance in that city of "Our Boarding House," the enter tainment which is to, be offered to mr people to-morrow evening :

The very full audience at the Academy last evening showed how generally the name of the promised play had tickled the imagination of the public Most people, at some period in their lives, have had an opportunity of being amused at the queer manifestations of human batu e which the American boarding house is apt to exhibit in k leidoscopic variety, and the anticipation of seeing these reproduced and caricatured behind the footlights was Lovel and pleasing. But though the play was in many respects excellent, it was not precisely what the audience had come to see. The droll things with which boarding-house life is so replete hold a secondary place in the entertainment, being made form as it were the framework in which the story of a sham marriage piece that is funny and laughable. The ludicrous makeshift s, the shocking scandals, the sly flirtations, and the curious social mixtures of which the boardinggave the play all the advantage of smooth. The silks, satins and gauzes which are and careful acting Fioretti, the sinister Italian, was the most striking portraiture of all. It is not surprising that Betty, the lively maid of all work, was the object of petticoat jeal ousy, for the effect of instance, there is the dark, rich, yellowish her fascinations is st night was by no means limited to the susceptible masculine hours old; and, according to the age of the boarders.
