NEWS AND REVIEWS.

It is proposed that the Chaplain-General of the British Navy shall in future be a Bishop.

The English revenue for 1878 was £1,803,485 over that of 1877. The only decrease was in stamps.

This winter there have been, for the first time in thirty-five years, fourteen consecutive days of skating in Regent's Park, London.

A correspondent of the London Times is skeptical as to the alleged distress, and points out that the excise returns do not sustain the allegations.

The Emperor of Germany is deeply lamenting the death of his secretary, Dr. Schneider, whose influence in some respects surpassed Bismarck's.

The office of Gov. Roberts of Texas is furnished with several splint-bottomed chairs, a plain table, a carpet that is burned in front of the fireplace, a cheap little washstand, and a bed.

Turkoman horses are said to be unsurpassable for endurance, and thus, although not handsome, are coming into high favor for military purposes. They are mainly of Arabian blood.

Sir Edward Thornton is Dean of the Diplomatic Corps at Washington simply because he has been longest there. It was only at the Congress of Vienna, on the motion of Lord Castlereagh, that this rational system of precedence was adopted. Prior to that the question of ambassadorial precedence had been a subject of constant trouble and heart burning.

Mount Etna, in Sicily, has varied its traditional habit of throwing up lava of late by discharging immense quantities of mud. The pieces would often drop upon each other and form columns ten or more feet high, which would finally fall and become amalgamated with the rest. Much water, of a salt taste, is mingled with the earthy discharges, and contains also a mixture of petroleum and sulphur.

The Moscow Gazette says that every day affords fresh evidence of the surprising degree to which the higher educational establishments have been imbued with a spirit of disaffection and lawlessness. "Yesterday it was a stone thrown at the rector's head; to-day it is a curator all but dragged out of the house by the collar of his coat; here an examiner is pushed down a flight of stairs; there a professor is driven out of the lecture room with noise and hisses."

W. J. Frank, a young Cincinnati roisterer, was robbed of $2,000 in a barroom. He immediately had the thief arrested, and the case was reported in the newspapers. Frank's father read about the robbery, and wondered how his son had got so much money. The mystery was dispelled by an emanation of the cash books of the old man's business, for the son, who had been a confidential clerk, had stolen $10,000.

The largest congregation in Boston, excepting two, is that of the Episcopal Church of the Advent, which is in charge of four celibate ministers of the Order of St. John the Evangelist. They live in a house conducted on monastic principles, and receive no salaries. A confessional is maintained in the church, and the ritual is of the most advanced kind. Boston's largest congregation is also Episcopalian, being that of the Rev. Phillips Brooks' Church, Trinity, which is at the opposite extreme in its plainness of worship.

Hon. Judah P. Benjamin, according to a London correspondent, occupies an elegant suit of law chambers and has a practice which yields him $150,000 annually, for which reason he would decline a judgeship which only pays $25,000. Mr. Benjamin is represented as saying that he could easily secure a seat in the House of Commons, several constituencies having given him very flattering invitations to represent them, but he has no desire to go into Parliament for the same reason that he would decline a judgeship—it involves too many sacrifices. Mr. Benjamin has a house in Paris and always spends his summer vacations there.

A German paper says that a few months ago a very eminent German Marshal, who keeps exceedingly early hours, found a young woman busy with her reaping hook in one of his fields long before the other laborers were astir. Inquiring the name of this exemplary female, he presented her with a thaler, and when later in the day his steward appeared, mentioned the subject and highly commended his early riser to him. The steward, who did not recognize the name, asked one or two questions and then said, "That's Marie Bauer, the cleverest field thief in this part of the country. Your Excellency may rest assured that she contrived to bundle off a handsome amount of your fine clover along with the thaler. She makes hay when the sun doesn't shine."

Mrs. Bertha Heydick fainted and fell on the stairway, with her infant in her arms, as she was going to the Dwyers' apartments in San Francisco. That was the climax of her troubles. Her husband had died in St. Louis, and she had used all her money in going to the Pacific coast, where she expected to find a home with relatives; but they had turned her out, and she had sought a refuge with the Dwyers, who were slight acquaintances. The noise of her fall brought a number of persons into the hallway, and among them was Capt. Martin of the steamer Tam O'Shanter. Luckily for Mrs. Heydick, she was very pretty, and the Captain was instantly filled with admiration. She told him her sorrowful story and then he found that he was in love with her. He told her so within five hours of their meeting, and on the following day they were married.

The Teller Investigation. The Teller Committee, says the Nashville American, has failed to show the state of affairs the Republicans have charged as existing in the South, and there is a very material modification in the reports of correspondents. The witnesses examined, when sifted, show a social state which is bad enough, but it is not a case of Bulgarian horrors, and then it is confined to a small area. The evidence taken in Louisiana really implicates but a small portion of the State, but a few counties, and but a small part of the people in political disturbances. As a partisan movement the investigation is a failure already, while it may result in good to the South. To the greater part of the South such a revelation of its social condition was necessary to the growth of helpful public opinion. What is most needed in the South is the irresistible solid force of the best thought constraining the unruly minority. The reason why there has been no such united moral force acting upon the few and small disturbed areas is plain enough. Such union of the moral and conservative social forces must come from within, not from without. The outward partisan pressure has been always fatal to its growth.

The Grant stalwarts, says the Philadelphia Times, are looming up grandly. Conkling is returned to the Senate from New York; Cameron from Pennsylvania; Logan from Illinois and Carpenter from Wisconsin, and Hawley is beaten in Connecticut. It now needs but the next to certain election of Chandler from Michigan to have all things in readiness to issue the order to the Republicans of the nation—"As you were, gentlemen." Next will swell up the chorus of "Give us back our Old Commander," and Grant will start the thunders of the echo in the fulness of time, when he lands on the golden slopes of the Pacific, and starts out on a transcontinental ovation that is expected to sweep him back into the White House. Unfortunately, the next Presidential election is yet nearly two years off, and who can tell what tide shall rule the political sea at a day so distant?

Better it is to sit on a barrel at the corner grocery with contentment than to repose in the most luxurious easy chair, adorned with a tidy, in the house of the order-loving woman.—Boston Transcript.

Bayard Taylor, says the Boston Transcript, wrote two of the best lines in English poetry in his little newspaper ballad on the "Anne Laurie" incident in the Crimea—

"The bravest are the tenderest, The loving are the daring."

While the monkey of an organ-grinder was quietly sitting upon a barrel in full costume a terrier dog made a dash at him. The monkey awaited the onslaught with such immovable tranquility that the dog was nonplussed and stopped short within a few feet to reconnoiter. Both animals stared steadily at each other, but the dog finally recovered from his surprise and was about to make a spring. At this juncture the monkey lifted his hat by way of salute. This mixture of the ways of monkey and man was too much for the dog. His tail dropped and he ran away.

The National Complaint.

Dyspepsia is the national complaint. Almost every other man or woman you meet has it, and the result is that the number of pseudo-remedies for it is as numerous as Pharaoh's host. They are for the most part worthless. There is, however, a searching eradicator of this distressing and obdurate malady, one whose genuine merits long since raised it to a foremost place among the staple medicines of America. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters extirpates dyspepsia with greater certainty and promptitude than any known remedy, and is a most genial invigorant, appetizer and aid to secretion. These are not empty assertions, as thousands of our countrymen and women who experienced its effects are aware, but are backed up by irrefragable proofs repeatedly laid before the public. The Bitters also promote a regular habit of body and give a healthful stimulus to the urinary organs.

P. L. BRIDGERS & CO.

Those who'll read this rhyme and wit our store Will appreciate more than ever before That our muse does not vainly aspire To climb Olympus, and ingloriously expire In the attempt, but keeps an even pace With the time, and always point to the place Where they 'blow' about one special thing, Which has, without doubt, the true business ring.

And this thing we will briefly explain, With the hope that we will cause no pain To brother grocers, who, in years gone by, Learned to 'get goods' at figures that were high.

Unfortunately we see some of them incline To follow the customs of "Auld Lang Syne;" But we consider it matter of congratulation That we've no foggy notions in our education!

In old time "big profits" had a wide range, And old habits are hard, hard to change; Of Wilmington grocers we take the lead!

Now to prove this assertion we only need To remind the public that our clean new store Made others be painted and swept a little moral.

Like all business men who are truly wise, We at once began to extensively advertise.

When our friends catching the idea, thought it well To increase their space, as the printers will tell!

At first we put some poetry in our "ad,"] But when they saw this plan was not bad, They followed our lead. And when we tried prose

They followed as nicely as if led by the nose! We next thought 'twould be well to try rhyme,

When lo! they grasped the idea as sublime! Though they have followed in all we have done,

When this battle is well fought and won, Some will see that "extra percent" isn't "nonense."

But with old stock and such heavy expense, They will find that the prices of P. L. Bridgers & Co.

If followed will surely bring them to weel! To prove that we mean what we say,

We announce that we sell for a week from to-day, Eleven pounds of "A Sugar" for only one dollar,

Which lead we invite all grocers to follow. The muse here caught sight of that one horse grinding machine of Herr Von Kr's Krigle, and was so thoroughly disgusted at the cheap way of grinding out poetry that neither love nor money could induce him to finish our rhyme, so it had to come to an abrupt ending.

Respectfully and Truly, P. L. BRIDGERS & CO.

THE SUN FOR 1879.

THE SUN will be printed every day during the year to come. Its purpose and method will be the same as in the past. To present all the news in a readable shape, and to tell the truth though the heavens fall.

Tas Sun has been, and will continue to be independent of everybody and everything save the Truth and its own convictions of duty. That is the only policy which an honest newspaper should have. It is not the policy which has won for this newspaper the confidence and friendship of a wider constituency than was ever enjoyed by any other American Journal.

Tas Sun is the newspaper for the people. It is not for the rich man against the poor man, or for the poor man against the rich man, but for the community. It is not the organ of any person, class, sect or party. There need be no mystery about its loves and hates. It is for the honest man against the rogues every time. It is for the honest Democrat as against the dishonest Republican, and for the honest Republican as against the dishonest Democrat.

It does not take its cue from the utterances of any politician or political organization. It gives its support unreservedly when men or measures are in agreement with the Constitution and with the principles upon which this Republic was founded for the people. Whenever the Constitution and constitutional principles are violated—as in the outrageous conspiracy of 1876, by which a man not elected was placed in the President's office, where he still remains—it speaks out for the right. That is the Sun's idea of independence. In this respect there will be no change in its programme for 1879.

Tas Sun has fairly earned the hearty hatred of rascals, frauds, and humbugs of all sorts and sizes. It hopes to deserve that hatred not less in the year 1879, than in 1878, 1877, or any year gone by. Tas Sun will continue to shine on the wicked with unmitigated brightness. While the lessons of the past should be constantly kept before the people, Tas Sun does not propose to make itself in 1879 a magazine of ancient history. It is printed for the men and women of to-day, whose concern is chiefly with the affairs of to-day. It has both the disposition and the ability to afford its readers the promptest, fullest, and most accurate intelligence of whatever in the wide world is worth attention. To this end the resources belonging to well-established propriety will be liberally employed.

The present disjoined condition of parties in this country, and the uncertainty of the future, lend an extraordinary significance to the events of the coming year. The discussions of the press, the debates and acts of Congress, and the movements of the leaders in every section of the Republic will have a direct bearing on the Presidential election of 1880—an event which must be regarded with the most anxious interest by every patriotic American whatever his political ideas or allegiance. To these elements of interest may be added the probabilities that the Democrats will control both houses of Congress, the increasing feebleness of the fraudulent Administration, and the spread and strengthening everywhere of a healthy abhorrence of fraud in any form. To present with accuracy and clearness the exact situation in each of its varying phases, and to expound, according to its well-known methods, the principles that should guide us through the labyrinth, will be an important part of Tas Sun's work for 1879.

We have the means of making Tas Sun, as a political, a literary and a general newspaper, more entertaining and more useful than ever before; and we mean to apply them freely.

Our rates of subscription remain unchanged.
