We learn there is movement on foot to erect a new city market house on Fifth, between Dock and Princess streets. The market is to be forty feet wide with thirty feet of street on each side. We imagine there will be a great objection to it.

Home Again.
Mr. Thos. S. Burbank, who has been in New York for several months past attending a course of lectures at one of the Medical Colleges, returned home last night.

They All Want Them.
The young people cry for them, the middle-aged long for them and the old people sigh for them. What? Why, the elegant, light rolls, muffins, biscuits and cake made with DOOLEY'S YEAST POWDER; and no wonder they all want them, for the Dooley Powder makes the best things of the kind in the world.

Brandy, Wine and Bitters.
Speer's P. J. Brandy, Port Grape Wine Bitters have an extensive and reliable demand. Physicians recommend them in preference to any other goods of the kind. Speer's Vineyards are at Passaic, New Jersey, and his wine was awarded the highest premium at the Centennial. For sale by J. C. Munds, P. L. Bridges & Co. and Green & Flanner.

Fix It.
That hole in the sidewalk on the North side of Market, between Second and Third streets, is a great annoyance to pedestrians, especially so as the sidewalk, just at that point, is less than three feet wide.

This Morning's Fire.
The alarm of fire this morning was caused by the burning of the roof of a shanty in Northrop's Alley, between Orange and Ann and running through from Second to Third streets. The building was occupied by colored persons and the fire was extinguished before the engines arrived.

$50 Reward.
A lad named John Catalano, about 11 years old, is missing and wanted at Indianapolis. A description of him was received at the police office in this city this morning. He is described as about four feet high, with light blue eyes, and when last seen was in a dark suit of clothes with a small harp in his possession. Whoever finds him will get $50 reward.

Venerable Visitors.
A truly venerable couple, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas D. Oldham, are on a short visit to this city to their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Oldham. They reside in Orange county, at the Oaks, ten miles Southwest of Hillsboro and twelve miles West of Chapel Hill. Mr. Oldham is 80 years of age and his wife is nine years his junior. They have been married fifty-two years, have had nine children, and at the celebration of their golden wedding, two years ago, had not seen a child. The number of their descendants now living has not been counted up lately, but it is certain that they have never been without a ham—an Oldham, we mean—in their house.

Lock your Doors.
Complaint is again made by the police authorities of the carelessness of some merchants and their clerks in leaving their places of business open at night or leaving them insecurely fastened. Last night the key of a store on North Water street was left in the door, in consequence of which, the policeman on that beat had to leave his post to go in search of the owner or the proprietor of the store for the purpose of notifying him of his, or his clerk's, carelessness. A little more careful attention in bolting windows and fastening doors would save the weary watchman a sight of trouble and the parties themselves, probably, the necessity of getting up out of a warm bed on a cold frosty night.

The Ancient Bones.
For the past year or two there has been much said relative to the discovery of human bones on the plantation of A. R. Black, Esq., in the lower part of this county, which belonged to the bodies of nobody knows who and nobody knows when. There is not much doubt in our minds that they are the bones of Indians placed there, perhaps, centuries before the occupancy of this country by the whites. It is well known that the aborigines almost invariably located near some stream where game and fish were abundant, and as a rule buried their dead in one large sepulchre. Several of these mounds or burial places have been found near this city, and there is every reason to suppose that the bones discovered there were those of some tribe of Indians, who had found on the banks of the Cape Fear many pleasant places on which to pitch their tents. There are two of the mounds, one of which is quite large, near Kenansville, Duplin county, in this State. Tradition informs us that those mounds were burial places for a portion of the Tuscarora tribe of Indians, who at one time made that an abiding place.

Presiding Elder.

Dr. Patterson Sick.
We regret to learn that Rev. Dr. Patterson, of St. John's, is confined to his bed with sickness. He held services yesterday and preached also and had announced Lenten services for to-day but this morning found himself unable to leave his bed. He is suffering with a severe cold but hopes to be able to hold the usual service on Sunday.

This Afternoon's Fire.
The alarm of fire was sounded this afternoon about 2:15 o'clock by the fire alarm of the First Presbyterian church and in about ten minutes afterwards was taken up by the Market House bell. The alarm was caused by the burning of the roof of a house on the south side of Church, between Second and Third streets. The damage was slight and the fire was extinguished before the fire department could locate it. The dwelling was occupied by Mr. Gabriel Register.

The Dime Festival.
Our young friends, the children of St. Paul's Lutheran Sunday School, advertise a Dime Festival for to-morrow evening, in this issue, to which we call the attention of our readers. The price is only ten cents, and we hope everybody and all the rest of creation will spare that little amount in encouraging a noble work while adding to the pleasure and enjoyment of all concerned. Don't forget the place—the South side of Market street, in the building formerly occupied by the Wheeler & Wilson Sewing Machine Company. There is lots of fun in ten cents thus bestowed.

A Revolution in Hair Dressing.
The masculine mind will rejoice at the fact that a style of dressing the hair more natural and more simple than has prevailed for years, is about to come into vogue. The ladies may not fancy it as well as the huge unsightly mounds of false hair, filled sometimes with filthy abominations, which have heretofore surmounted the feminine head but their husbands and their friends and their neighbors will rejoice. Here is what we find about the new style in a recently imported Paris letter:

A noted revolution has just been accomplished, but not alarmed, good readers; I am not about to discuss French politics or the aspects of the situation. The revolution whereof I speak is wholly a pacific one, yet it will be marked in its efforts, inasmuch as its tendency is to make our pretty American girls look all the prettier. I allude to the sudden and marked change that has passed over the heads of the female society leaders of Paris in the matter of arranging their hair. The old puritan preacher who took for his text, "Top-knot come down" ("Let him that is upon the housetop not come down") would surely have felt satisfied with the new fashion. All puffs and bows and braids and fussifications on the top of the female head have vanished into thin air. The Parisian belles now wear their hair simply parted in front and either waved or crimped as best suits the style of the face, and coiled at the back in a braided knot placed rather low. A single large flower placed at one side of this knot and drooping on the neck is the only ornament that fashion now sanctions. This new coiffure is not only simple and natural, but it is wonderfully becoming, the beautiful shapeliness of the feminine head coming fully into view for the first time in many years. The suddenness as well as the universality in which this new style has been adopted is very remarkable.

Letter from Florida.

For the Review.
SAVANNAH GA., Feb 25, 1879.

Since I last saw you I have, in the course of business, traveled considerable in the so-called "Land of Flowers." A more appropriate name would be "The Land of Small Lakes and Swamps." The whole face of the country in Northern Florida is covered with piney woods, cyprus swamps and ponds or, as they are called there lakes. In traveling from Lake City, by rail, to Tallahassee, one passes these ponds or lakes continually and the question arises, where does all the water come from? and why does it not disappear?

The solution seems to be that these lakes are formed by the rainfall, and the whole country being underlaid by a strata of rotten limestone, the water is held in the basins or depressions of the surface until it disappears by evaporation, or is reduced in quantity, to be replenished by the next rains. Such is a prominent feature of Florida.

Notwithstanding all the disagreeable consequences of so much standing, if not stagnant, water, Florida has many very interesting characteristics. Her winter climate is unsurpassed by any other of the greatly diversified climates of the States.

Her fruit growing is becoming the great product of the State. Her poor, sandy, piney woods soil, interspersed here and there with rich hammock lands, is becoming every day more and more valuable. A land that can produce abundantly, and of the finest type, the orange, the banana, the pineapple, the almond—in fact all the tropical fruits—must, indeed, be very valuable, when we remember that it is only forty-eight hours by steam from some of our principal cities, and by rail, but about that distance, in time, from New York and Boston.

Speaking of Florida as a "land of flowers" what think you of seeing the ripe and luscious oranges of last year hanging full upon the trees, and the same trees in full bloom for another crop? Such sights are now almost as common in Florida as orange trees. The oranges will remain firmly upon the trees, if suffered to do so, until July, when the sap returns to the roots. They ripen, become, in a measure, dry and "pulpy," to use an expression of the people, but when the sap rises again in the spring, these same oranges become juicy and sweeter than they were when they first ripened.

But the ripe fruit and the blooms for another crop, all on the same tree, are sights new to me and as beautiful as they are new.

If I had time to-night, I would tell you something of the great Okfenoke Swamp, that I have recently been exploring to find a location for a ship canal to connect the waters of the Atlantic with the Gulf of Mexico. I may give you some further account of this country, if I can find time. Yours truly, F.

Why not make up your minds, at present, what Hotel you are going to stop at when you arrive in New York? The Grand Central, on Broadway, is now kept on both the American plan at $2 50 to $3.00, and the European plan at $1.00, and upwards, per day. An elegant Restaurant at moderate prices is conducted by the Hotel.
