WHAT'S THE MATTER NOW?
There is evidently something wrong in the virtuous Senate of North Carolina but where it is has not yet been exactly determined. Monday's Raleigh papers give an inkling of it when we are told that Mr. Caldwell introduced a resolution providing for an investigation into the charge of a corrupt combination of Senators on the passage of the Western Railroad bill.

Mr. Caldwell's resolution was not published and therefore we are left in the dark as to what sort of "corrupt combination" was meant by Mr. C. A little possible light however, is thrown upon the subject by an item in the Senatorial night session when Mr. Respass rose to a question of personal privilege and read from the editorial columns of the Goldsboro Messenger the following:

No RADICAL MAGISTRATES WANTED.—We learn that it is boldly charged about Raleigh that certain Republican members of the Legislature were induced to vote for the $50,000 appropriation to the Western Railroad, under a promise by certain Democratic members, that their wishes should be respected in the appointment of magistrates. What does this mean? Had the resignation of Mr. Respass anything to do with such bargain and sale?

Mr. Respass, we are told, explained why he had resigned from the committee on the selection of magistrates. In the beginning he had announced that he never would vote for a Radical, black or white, for magistrate, and not being able to work with his colleagues on that line, he had yielded to their request and resigned. He repeated he never would vote for a Radical for justice of the peace.

We shall await with some curiosity an elucidation of this mysterious matter. It must all be a mistake. The men who are bold enough to cut down the pay of the Secretary of State to $3 a day while they themselves get $4 a day (Sundays included) and mileage and railroad passes should be, it seems to us, a head and shoulders above any thing like "a corrupt combination."

And so Mexico is going to have an International Exposition in the land of the cactus, next year. It is to take place in the City of Mexico and the buildings are already being erected. The materials are to be purchased in this country and some of the lumber from the old Cape Fear may find its way there in the course of events.

Tremendous storms are reported as having occurred in the South of France, and hundreds of people are thrown upon the charity of the public, having been made houseless and homeless by the fearful inundations which have swept through that portion of the country. In Spain a tempest lasted four days, by which many lives were lost and great destruction to property. In Navarre and Asturias houses, farms and even villages were swept away and destroyed.

A PROPOSITION.

There are 170 members of the Legislature—50 in the Senate and 120 in the House besides the various officials. They pay themselves $4 a day and they get mileage and railroad passes too. Now let the members show their grit, their appreciation of a true economy, by cutting down their own salaries to $3 a day and hand in this amount, together with their mileage, to the Treasurer. The total amount would be between $13,000 and $14,000, not a mere bagatelle, by any means. The members can then go home happy on their railroad passes.

Prince Louis Napoleon has written a letter signifying his intention to join the British forces at the Cape of Good Hope. The Prince assigns various reasons for the act, among which are the fact that for eight years he has been the guest of the English people, received his military education at an English school, and the ties of friendship had been strengthened towards the English army by taking part in its annual manoeuvres. This may all sound very well, but if the Prince Napoleon has the spirit which characterized the First Napoleon, if the opportunity should ever occur when he could do so, he will not hesitate to join the forces of any nation which promises the means of retaliation for the cruel injustice done his illustrious relative by sending him to St. Helena. The Napoleonic spirit is not very forgiving, and never forgetful. The Prince on his return sailed yesterday for Capetown.

THE REPEAL OF THE SUPERVISORS LAW.

The Democratic majority in the House is to be congratulated upon the bold stand which they have taken in regard to the repeal of the Supervisors law, which in committee of the whole was passed on Tuesday by yeas 135 to nays 110. The bill is in the shape of an amendment offered by Mr. Southard, Democrat, from Ohio, to the General Appropriation Bill, and was opposed violently by the Radicals under the leadership of little Eugene Hale from the great (?) State of Maine.

The Radical Senate may refuse to concur in the amendment, and in that event an extra session will be necessary; then the onus for the expense of the extra session must remain with the Republican party while a Democratic Senate and House in the next Congress, it is hoped, will stand firm and refuse to pass any appropriation bill whatever, unless this odious law is repealed. In this way the next Congress, which is Democratic, can starve his fraudulency into submission, in the event that he refuses otherwise to give his signature to the bill.

The Washington Post, the very ablest Democratic paper in the United States, deserves the thanks of the whole Democratic party in the country, and especially in the South, for its persistent efforts in reminding Democratic Congressmen of their duty day after day for weeks past in regard to this particular bill.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 25, 1893.

Mr. Thurman, the other day, in a speech of a few minutes, discussed the propriety of attaching general legislation to the appropriation bills. He did it after preparation, and no doubt with the intention of influencing Democrats in the House to insist on retaining the amendment to the legislative bill, now under discussion, which repeals the Federal supervisors law. The effect of the speech is now shown in the increased firmness with which the House majority adhere to that amendment. The legislative bill is the last appropriation bill, and if the supervisor law is to be repealed at this session it must be in this way. It now seems likely the House will vote the repeal, but that after conference between the two Houses, it will be lost.

The Legislative bill is the last appropriation bill because the House, on yesterday, passed the Sundry Civil bill, the only other one not previously acted on. The House passed it as it came from Committee without discussion.

It appropriates $7,000,000. This seems a summary way of disposing of so much money, but those who have watched the proceedings of Congress during the session do not need to be told that whenever discussion has been had on an appropriation bill, the only effect has been to increase the amount appropriated. So, on the whole, it would have been better for the country and the Democratic party if the House had done in all cases as it did yesterday. Such a course would have saved many millions of dollars to the government.

The whole question of a special session depends upon the amendment mentioned above—the Supervisor amendment—and, I think, therefore, that the extra session will be avoided. All the necessary work can be done if the two Houses work handsomely.

An important bill was introduced by Senator Ingalls a few days since, and great efforts will be made to push it through at this session. It provides for a complete revolution in the manner of adjusting pension claims. Both sides now see that the present and prospective expense of the arrears act is greater than at first thought, and this bill is designed to reduce expenses of the Pension Bureau by adding to the difficulties in the way of securing pensions. Like the Indian transfer, the Army reorganization scheme, etc, this bill will probably fail for the reason that there is not time to consider it fully.

The arrogance of Mr. Coakling and the vanity of Genl. Burnside nearly produced personal violence in the Senate on Saturday. Their language was violent enough to lead to a hostile meeting "at another place," but I suppose Senator Hamlin, Senator Anthony, and the other old women who patched up a peace between Senators Gordon and Conkling last year will be able to prevent bloodshed.

Many of the Greenback Congressmen elect are here, and have agreed to act independently of both the great parties in organizing the next House.

SECESSION TALK.

Hints as to What California Will Do If the Chinese Don't Go.

It is stated that the San Francisco Daily Stock Report, the oldest financial paper on the Pacific coast, in urging that a monster mass meeting be held in San Francisco to demand of Hayes that he sign the Chinese bill, uses the following extraordinary language:

"This is a most critical time in the history of California. Whether there is to be bloodshed and anarchy in our fair State, riot, incendiarism and murder; whether our green fields are to be blackened and our garden-spot laid waste; or whether, rather than incur these dreadful evils, we shall calmly in the end, all other resorts having failed, meet and sever our connection with the national confederation, making laws for our preservation and the preservation of our children's heritage, the events of the next two days may determine. Already such a dread possibility as secession from the Union in the event of our failure to obtain the relief we demand from the Chinese evil is broadly talked of in high circles. The East has utterly failed to understand our situation and to extend the aid and sympathy we have the right to expect from the sisterhood of States. Leading men say that we have pleaded, have exhausted arguments, have cried aloud for relief, but our most earnest appeals have been treated with indignity, and our sufferings have been a mockery. As a last resort we will take advantage of the geographical lines that surround us, the vast extent of soil within our boundaries, the exhaustless resources of wealth that are ours, and will set up an accidental republic, which, if it cannot rival the old republic in its glory of the past will at least be a magnificent empire of white freemen, whose heritage shall be preserved to their children and their children's children forever."

THE TRUE Way to Invigorate.

The true way to invigorate a feeble system is to infuse activity into the operations of the stomach, that wondrous alchemist in which the food is transmuted into the constituents of the blood, the chief element of our vitality. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, because it accomplishes this end, is greatly to be preferred to many so-called tonics, useful indeed as appetizers, but ineffectual as aids to digestion and assimilation. This sterling cordial, while it invigorates the stomach, healthfully stimulates the liver, bowels, and kidneys, ensuring the escape through the regular channels of effete and useless matter thrown off by the system, which is thus purified as well as invigorated by it. Its tonic influence is soon made manifest by an increase of vital energy and a more active and regular discharge of every physical function, and it has the further effect of rendering the system unassailable by malarial epidemics.

COTTON for GUANO!

In offering to you the WILCOX, GIBBS & CO'S MANIPULATED GUANO for another season, we do so with the most perfect confidence that you will find it the BEST AND CHEAPEST FERTILIZER in use.

It is no new article, requiring experiments to establish its value, but has been for years with unbounded success, gaining in favor from year to year, and is accepted as the STANDARD FERTILIZER.

It has been our study, not to make it EQUAL to others, but SUPERIOR to our success in these efforts we refer you to the many of your neighbors who have it, as well as to the thousands in the South Atlantic Cotton States.

This Guano is so well known that it is unnecessary to publish any certificates, but a few testimonials in our circulars only from Planters who have made special tests of it alongside the Peruvian Guano, as showing how it compares with Peruvian Guano, which has heretofore been generally esteemed above all other Fertilizers.

It will have only a moderate supply for sale and would request Planters to place their orders early.

Our Agents are authorized to sell the MANIPULATED GUANO very favorably, payable in cotton on next Fall.
