The attention of all being ready, the smaller gun was fired. Some d clared they could see the ball, others not; as for myself, I won't say that I could not see it. Then the larger gan was brought to range, and discharged, and all were unanimous in the verdict that they could see the ball in its course, it being visible but a second apparently. It was most plainly observed by standing directly back of the gun, and the more the spectator stood to one side the more effort was required to discern it. It was also noted that bullets which were coated with grease were more easily seen; the intense heat evolved by thei rapid transit evidently melting and vaporizing the coating.
