There is to be a change in the pedestrian mania. The Detroit Free Press mentions a lady who is going to try to wink her eye one billion times in one billion seconds.

Marshal MacMahon wouldn't hear of a pension, and refused to use the money voted to defray hospitalities at the Elysee during the Exhibition. It was distributed by his wife among the charities of Paris.

The total number of dwellings in Boston is 41,467, of which 1,512, valued at $6,804,100, are vacant. In addition to this there are 2,074 stores, 120 hotels, 80 family hotels, and 4,360 miscellaneous buildings making a grand total of 50,903 buildings.

Pope Leo XIII does not countenance the theory that all dancing is of the Evil One. To some ladies who asked his permission to dance during the late Carnival he said: "Go, my dears, and enjoy yourselves in an innocent dance, only don't keep up too late your papas and mammas when they want to get home again."

The Paterson (N. J.) clergymen have decided to issue a memorial to the inhabitants of that city, requesting them not to hold any funerals on Sunday. The preachers complaint that, in consequence of the number of funerals on Sunday, they sometimes do not find time for their meals.

Twenty-five years ago the first Atlantic cable was laid. Now there are 70,000 miles of cable, almost enough to go three times around the globe. How many plagues, pestilences and famines; how many heart-aches and rejoicings; how many wars and rumors of war, to say nothing of "peace and honor," have been flashed over the cable in these twenty-five years!

Some of the fashion writers say that the models of new dresses show a decided fulness. Clinging dresses, it seems, are slowly but surely going out, and tiedback dresses are becoming things of the past. Many of the women, drowned when the Princess Alice went down were so encumbered by their skirts that they could not help themselves when help was given them.

It is intimated that Zach Chandler is preparing a bill, which he will introduce in the Senate on the first day of the session; declaring Mr. Davis an outlaw and requiring him to pay full rent for the use of the quarters occupied by him in Fortress Monroe in 1865.—Baltimore Gazette.

It is said that the Duke and Duchess of Cumberland were watched by German detective officers from the moment they landed at Lubeck until they reached Austrian territory, and that this espionage only ceased upon the protest of the English Ambassador at Berlin against such an indignity to a Prince of the English royal family and a sister of the Princess of Wales.

If Prince Louis Napoleon's design in volunteering for the Zulu war was to direct public attention to himself and his house he has certainly attained his object. His letter to Rouher has been published, and commented upon in almost all the English and Continental newspapers. It was a day's talk for the Paris boulevards, and an enormous crowd of the unwashed Londoners assembled to witness the Prince's departure from Waterloo Station, and cheered him heartily.

Last Tuesday night at the conclusion of the tragedy of "Virginius" at the Memphis Theatre, John McCullough was called before the curtain and presented by Col. J. M. Keathing, on behalf of the citizens of Memphis, with an elegant and costly gold badge. The presentation was made in grateful remembrance of the generosity of Mr. McCullough, whose tributed the gross receipts of a performance last fall to aid the fever-stricken people of the South. The audience was one of the largest and most fashionable ever congregated within the walls of the theatre.

There is an ordinance in San Francisco that requires the sheriff to cut off the queues of Chinamen who are sent to the county jail. One prisoner, who was thus treated, sued the sheriff after regaining his liberty; he denied the constitutionality of the ordinance, and the question thus raised has been under consideration by a United States Judge for some time. Meanwhile, the sheriff continues to cut off the queues as fast as he gets jurisdiction over them, and the Chinamen are bringing so many suits against him for reparation that the board of supervisors have found it necessary to provide extra counsel for his defence.

THE TURN IN THE TIDE.

According to the New York Evening Post the general opinion among business men there is that bottom has been reached in prices, and a reaction has set in. The probability is that more dwelling-houses will be built in that city during 1879 than have been erected during any previous year. At present, inquiry with reference to real estate and dwelling-houses by persons now living in New York or the suburbs is very active, and even by capitalists living in other cities. Rents and prices will in all probability remain substantially the same as last year. There is a clamor for lower rents and lower prices, but owners are unyielding, and last year's prices will be given and received. It is noted that there is much inquiry made about real estate by capitalists from other cities with a view to investments.

A NATIONAL MUSEUM.

It will have been noticed, says the News and Courier, that Congress has appropriated the $250,000 asked for a National Museum, to be erected at Washington, near the Smithsonian Institute and the buildings of the Agricultural Department. The building, to be of brick and one story high, will cover about two and a quarter acres of ground, and every known precaution will be taken against fire, dampness, rust and vermin. The glass area will amount to nearly 13,000 feet or about one-seventh of the floor space, and special devices will be employed to display the exhibits to advantage. At the close of the Centennial Exhibition the United States was the recipient of many curious and valuable presents from foreign governments, which are now packed away in boxes, and the Smithsonian Institute has several important collections which cannot be shown for want of space. In the armory building 4,000 boxes are also awaiting exhibition room, so that the new museum will be largely furnished when it is first opened, probably a year hence.

RATES OF FARE BY LAW.

The Tallahassee Floridian publishes an act approved on the 11th inst., which declares that from and after its passage it shall not be lawful for any railroad company operating a railroad or railroads in that State to charge for the transportation of passengers over the same more than three cents per mile. And any officer or agent of any railroad violating the provisions of the act shall be guilty of a misdeamnor and upon conviction thereof shall be punished by a fine not less than twenty nor more than one hundred dollars.

We are led to remark herewith that perhaps the legislative body which recently dispersed itself at Raleigh is not an anomaly in its way after all; these may, perhaps, be found one or two legislatures elsewhere which even know less and display it more. Such laws as the above, if once put into active operation and kept there, would in time destroy the railroad system of any State in the Union.

AT WORK.

The Forty-sixth Congress of the United States organized yesterday and is now harmoniously at work. There are Democratic majorities in both bodies for the first time in eighteen years. Upon the wisdom of their deliberations will depend future majorities for the Democratic party will go squarely before the people for a verdict upon their legislation, and will not seek to retain, as they have not sought to regain, a political proscenium that is not in accord with the wishes of a majority of the people.

Mr. Randall has been chosen Speaker of the House, for the third consecutive Congress, and this result argues well for the House. He received 145 votes and was declared elected. Garfield, the Republican nominee, got 125, Wright, Greenbacker, 13, and Kelley, a Republican who has been coquetting with the Greenbackers, received 1 vote. The Greenbackers boasted that they would poll 15 votes for their candidate and they got in 13, which was creditable to their determination to abide by the platform on which they were elected. In the list we look in vain for the name of Judge Russell, Greenbacker from this district, and instead we find that of Russell, Republican, from Massachusetts. This is evidently a mistake. The Russell from Massachusetts voted for Garfield, and the Russell from North Carolina voted for Wright. Of this we are certain.

The Greenback party is nearly played out.

Zach Chandler is called by his admirers a man of "great moral sincerity."

Mr. Hayes will serve out the rest of President Tilden's term under Democratic surveillance.

For downright malicious lying regarding the South, the National Republican leads all the rest of the Northern papers.

Judge—"Your client had better make a compromise: Ask her what she will take." Counsel—"My good woman, his lordship asks what you will take." Old Woman—"I'm obliged to his lordship (courtesy), as he's so kind (courtesy), I'll just take a glass of warm ale."

A little girl was asked by her mother, on her return from church, how she liked the preacher. "Didn't like him at all," was the reply. "Why?" asked her mother. "Cause he preached till he made me sleepy and then hollored so loud he wouldn't let me go to sleep."

When a lady answered the ring of the door-bell in Baltimore last week, she was pushed rudely aside by a burly fellow who strode past her into the hall. The lady's screams brought her husband to the scene, whereupon the intruder remarked: "Beg pardon; didn't know any men were about," and rushed away before the gentleman recovered from his surprise.

Some forty years ago the programme of one of the concerts of the Norwich Musical Festival contained the following list of pieces and of singers. It can hardly be considered overloaded as regards punctuation. The "Messiah" was to be performed, and the numbers ran somewhat in this way: "Comfort ye Mr Hobbs, But who may abide Mr Balfe, Behold a virgin Mr Young. Behold darkness shall cover Mr Phillips. Rejoice greatly Miss Birch. He shall feed Miss Hawes. Come unto me Madame Stockhausen."

Fayetteville Gazette.

Hon. A. M. Waddell. Our Representative in Congress for eight years, Hon A M Waddell, of New Hanover, surrendered his trust as the public servant of the people of this district with the expiration of the present term. In 1870 he led a "forlorn hope," as it was then considered to be, against Oliver H Dockery. This district was considered hopelessly Radical, and Dockery was indeed a great leader in his party—a powerful speaker, a shrewd politician and an unconscionable demagogue. Few of us hoped for success, and Waddell was to stand only in the breach, to be a sort of Curtius of modern times, plunging with all the panoply of war, into the yawning gulf of defeat. But the keen rapier of the finished orator and cultured scholar was more potent than the sledge hammer of the redoubtable son of the 'Old Wagoner,' and with the idea of November Alfred stood over the prostrate form of the Radical Goliath, Oliver. Again and again he has been chosen by the Democracy of the Cape Fear section to represent them in the council halls of the nation in Washington, leading the party to victory by increased majorities with each succeeding election. In 1878 he was defeated by Daniel L Russell, by default, the Democrats failing to go to the polls. Of this we will now say nothing—long since those who failed him in the last campaign have bitterly regretted their loss of great security and confidence. North Carolina needs the services of such men as Col Waddell, and the day is not far distant when he will again be called to the front—not for Congress, for some other high position.

A Frightful Death.

Death yesterday overtook Mr Thos Neal, a young man of Sharon township under shocking circumstances. The youth, aged about seventeen years, a son of the late Wm Neal, had been plowing during the morning, and after dinner started to the field to resume his work, riding a spirited horse which had on him only the plow gears. About a hundred yards from the house, up the public road, the horse took fright, turned around and went running back down the road. The young man was thrown, his feet catching in the gears, and a moment later, his sister, standing on the piazza, saw the animal shoot past the house at fearful speed, and heard with horror the frantic shrieks of her unfortunate brother as he was dragged along the highway and tossed from side to side.

From the residence of Mr. Edgar H Walker, toward which the horse was going, the road is perfectly straight for some distance in the direction of Mrs Neal's, and Mr Walker, standing in front of his lot, saw the riderless horse charging toward him and soon discerned the form daubing by his side. Calling a colored man to his assistance, the two placed themselves across the road, and springing at the affrighted horse as he reached them, they threw him upon the fence on the side of the road and held him fast. The foot of young Neal was disengaged from the chain which had held it, but his release came all too late. He gasped three and died.

The horse had run within half a mile, and the face and body were shockingly bruised and mutilated. The skull was broken above the left eye and again behind the left ear; the nose had been split in twain; the clothes had been torn from the upper portion of the body, and from the waist to the neck there remained hardly a square inch of skin. What agony he must have endured during the few brief moments while dashing helplessly along by the horse's side, can never be known nor imagined.

Not Symptoms, But the Disease.

It would seem to be a truth appreciable by all, and especially by professors of the healing art, that to remove the disease, not to alleviate its symptoms, should be the chief aim of medication. Yet in how many instances do we see this truth admitted in theory, ignored in practice. The reason that Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is successful in so many cases, with which remedies previously tried were inadequate to cope, is attributed to the fact that it is a medicine which reaches and removes the cause of the various maladies to which it is adapted. Indigestion, fever and ague, liver complaint, gout, rheumatism, disorders of the bowels, urinary affections and other maladies are not palliated merely, but rooted out by it. It goes to the fountain head. It is really, not nominally, a radical remedy, and it endows the system with an amount of vigor which is its best protection against disease.
